PARLEY GROUP TO SAIL TODAY FROM HOBOKEN

Secretary Adams Plans to Leave Capital on Boat Train.

OTHER DELEGATES ARE WITH STIMSON

Ship Will Weigh Anchor When Navy Chief Arrives.

HOOVER TO CONTROL TACTICS FROM HERE

Final Reduction Draft Will Be Gone Over With Borah, Is Prediction.

The American delegation to the five-power naval reduction conference at London, termed by President Hoover "the most important international conference for world peace to be held in many years, and probably for many years to come," will sail on the George Washington from Hoboken, N. J., this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Yesterday the remainder of the delegates, with the exception of Secretary of the Navy Adams, followed Secretary of State Stimson to New York.

Mr. Stimson left the Capital on Tuesday, immediately after the farewell White House breakfast given by the President to the delegates and the naval advisers and experts.

Adams Departs Today.

Secretary Adams, accompanied by 30 of the American technicians, secretaries, code clerks and stenographers, will board a special boat train at 9 a. m. It will go directly to Hoboken and the George Washington will steam away as soon as the delegation gets aboard. The American delegation totals 95 men and women. About twenty newspaper men will accompany the official party.

At home, at his desk in the old State, War and Navy Building, President Hoover will keep his finger constantly on the pulse of the conference. It was Mr. Hoover who suggested the conference and who has been its guiding spirit.

He will be informed of all the important moves by cable code messages, handled by the State Department.

Hoover to Make Decisions.

When the time arrives at the conference for the American delegation to decide on a matter of major importance it will be President Hoover who will make it, not the delegates. No final commitment will be made without the President's approval.

Mr. Hoover, however, will leave all but major decisions to Secretary Stimson and his six associate delegates.

The American delegates consist of Secretary Stimson, chairman; Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas; Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania; Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow.

Pratt and Jones in Party.

Admiral William V. Pratt and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones head the list of naval advisers and the naval technical staff. Four rear admirals, two captains and one commander are included on the staff of experts.

At the State Department it was said that the first two weeks of the conference, which commences January 21, will be taken by each nation in generally outlining the situation as it affects that nation's security.

The second two weeks will be used for discussion. It will not be until after the delegates have been in London for a month, or perhaps for a longer time, that the preliminary negotiations will be made, or the first draft of an agreement or treaty sketched.

Cotton in Charge of Relays.

The mechanics of the relays between the delegates and President Hoover will be handled by Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton, who will be the Acting Secretary of State in Mr. Stimson's absence. Mr. Cotton has sat in at all of the preliminary conferences the American delegates have held, and is thoroughly in touch with the disarmament situation.

He and President Hoover will go over the dispatches together quietly 3,000 miles from the heat of the conference. It is probable that when the final agreement stage is reached by the conference the President will call in Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign affairs committee, and go over the treaty proposals with him.

President Hoover is not losing sight of the fact that the treaty reached at the London conference must be approved by the Senate. He hopes to evade all of the pitfalls of Senate opposition which the late President Wilson encountered after he had come back from Europe with the draft of the League of Nations.

The situation confronting the American delegates at the London

Capital Girl to Marry Count de Jantze Today

Genevieve Ryan Will Be Wed to Nobleman in Paris Church.

VISCOUNT DE JANTZE.

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Count Frederick de Jantze tomorrow will marry Miss Genevieve Ryan, of Washington, D. C., at the Parisian Church of St. Pierre de Chaillot. It was learned at the church tonight that his marriage with the former Alice Silverthorne, of Chicago, was annulled by the Vatican in 1927, making it possible to have a religious ceremony tomorrow.

The annullment followed the shooting of Viscount Raymond de Trafford at the North Station in Paris by the then countess. The countess, who also wounded herself, was given a suspended jail sentence of six months.

The count today declined to comment on the marriage beyond saying:

"I am deeply painted at your query. One unfortunate wedding experience should be sufficient for public curiosity. All I want is peace and silence."

JURORS IN NEW YORK TO SEE SMITH BOOKS

SUBPENAS ARE ARGUED

Records of the F. H. Smith Co., sought by the Government in its investigation of alleged fraudulent activities of this stock brokerage firm which recently moved its headquarters from Washington to New York City, will be taken Monday afternoon before the Federal grand jury in the latter city.

The announcement was made there yesterday afternoon by Nugent Dodds, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, as the latest development in the case, which went before the grand jury Tuesday afternoon in an inquiry of the firm's activities which resulted in indictments in Washington against seven of its officials.

Mr. Dodds said that he has been assured by George S. Leisure, attorney for the F. H. Smith Co., the Columbia Trustee Co. and the Union Trustee Co., that their books and records will be produced at that time. In this connection Mr. Dodds asserted that since it is these records the Government seeks it would be immaterial whether an appearance before the grand jury is made by the three officers of the firm who had been subpenaed to produce the books of the company the previous day.

The three are C. Bryan Pitts, chairman of the board of directors of the F. H. Smith Co.; John H. Edwards, jr., vice president, and Gerald R. Trimble, secretary. In their failure to appear, Mr. Leisure produced three women employes of the company as substitutes. Mr. Dodds, however, refused to permit them to testify.

Mr. Leisure yesterday claimed that there had been a "misunderstanding" in regard to Dr. Dodds' announcement that the three officials had been subpenaed with the firm's records.

"Three men were served as representatives of the three corporations, not individually," Mr. Leisure stated. "They were not named in the subpena. Accordingly, compliance with the subpena was to be effected by the presence of representatives of the companies named and such representatives were in the grand jury room yesterday although the names of the corporations were not called, with the result that they were not answered. I was present and after 4 o'clock mentioned the fact that the companies subpenaed had not been called upon."

Mr. Dodds likewise announced that he was exerting every effort before

LAWSON CANTRELL TO HEAD PAUL HIGH

Native of Texas Is Selected From Six Candidates for Post as Principal.

WOMAN JANITOR ASKED

Lawson J. Cantrell, 37 years old, a native of Texas, was approved as principal of the new Paul Junior High School yesterday by the District Board of Education at its meeting at the Franklin School.

Mr. Cantrell has been with the District schools for three years, acting recently as principal of the Brightwood Junior High School annex. He was selected upon the recommendation of other high school principals from six candidates.

The question of the respective abilities of men and women in the matter of cleaning house and the care of small children came before the board and evoked a prolonged discussion.

The issue was raised by Mrs. Leslie Boudinot Wright, of 4620 Thirtieth street northwest, representing the mothers of the children who will enter the new B. W. Murch Elementary School on February 1. Declaring that the children needed the watchful eye of a matron during recess periods and in washrooms, Mrs. Wright asked the board to name a colored woman who has been caretaker of the Murch portables as one of the two members of the janitor staff.

"Our children need a woman to look after them on the playgrounds and in the washrooms when the teachers are not present," she said. "And I've never seen a man yet who could clean right."

Under the present system a janitor-engineer and a fireman are assigned to each elementary school, and both are men. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent, expressed the belief that a woman could not perform the services of either of these men. The matter will be investigated further.

Announcement was made by Dr. Ballou that 28 portable schools were equipped with electric lights between December 26 and January 2, in accordance with the board's order, and that 30 more are in the process of being electrified.

The board voted to recommend to the District Commissioners the inclusion of an item for the purchase of land adjacent to the Grant School in the deficiency bill.

Northcutt Court-Martial Verdict Kept Confidential

Navy Official Will Learn Fate When Findings Are Filed.

(Associated Press.)

A finding has been made in the court-martial case of Lieut. Harold Wilson Northcutt, of the Navy Construction Corps, who disappeared from his station at Norfolk on October 22, and was found twelve days later by Government agents in Vancouver, Canada.

Navy officials, who must review the finding, refused to announce the verdict. No notification of an acquittal on any of the three charges against Northcutt has been given.

The charges were desertion, entering a foreign country without permission, and "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman." They were based upon the disappearance of the 36-year-old former star stu-

DRYS TAUNTED IN HOUSE ROW ON RUM ISSUE

Black and Schafer Flay Prohibitionists in New Tirade.

LATIN AND BIBLICAL CITATIONS FEATURE

"Now Is Time to Drink!" New Yorker Quotes From Horace.

CRIME GROUP IS HIT ON SECRET HEARING

Coast Guard Excoriated for Alleged Liquor Theft by Republican.

(Associated Press.)

The ancient classics were invoked yesterday by wets in the House as they led debate on the War Department supply bill into the field of prohibition to assail the drys for applauding what they termed "dry killings."

Irony and Latin were employed by Representative Black (Democrat), New York, as he nominated Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to be a "cheer leader" for the drys.

"Of course," he said, "I do not want him to turn any somersaults here because some chips and stocks might fall out of his pocket."

Biblical Analogy Drawn.

Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, drew an analogy from the Bible.

"Each day's tragic news," he asserted, "indicates more human lives sacrificed on the altar of prohibition Baal."

He characterized this figure as a "god" of the drys, "which must have blood."

Giving what he termed a theme song of Horace, Representative Black shouted "Nunc eta bibendum!" (Now is the time to drink).

Crime Group Rapped.

His delving into the classics was by way of emphasizing his demand that President Hoover's law enforcement commission hold public hearings. He said it should give "a judicial determination whether the prohibition law is workable."

"If it does not do that," he said, "then the entire Congress should rebuke it, because it will have proved itself useless.

"There has been a general let down lately in the speeches made by the drys," he asserted, and cited the speech of Representative Beedy, dry Republican of Maine, Tuesday, as a "particular specimen."

Drys Are Criticized.

Beedy, he said, "advocates a new amendment to the eighteenth amendment," which, he said, would "read something like this: . . . That this amendment shall not apply to red-blooded American seamen, standing in water 3 feet deep, provided they can steal a rumrunner's liquor."

Referring to a speech made Tuesday by another prohibitionist, Representative Adkins (Republican), Illinois, Black said "Mr. Adkins said he was at a party and did not see any drinking."

"I wonder," the New Yorker asked, "if he was at that 'dry convention' the Republicans held at Kansas City a short while ago."

Beedy's Address Is Hit.

The prohibition question will not be solved, Black contended, "until some President of the United States is impeached for not enforcing this law." Expressing "the greatest respect in the world" for President Hoover, the New Yorker said he failed to understand why the President "can not see the realities and come to the rescue of the country instead of temporizing with it as he has."

Schafer also discussed Beedy's address of Tuesday and asserted that arrests for runkenness in Portland, Me., had greatly increased during the ten years of prohibition.

"Following the applause favoring the dry killings Tuesday," Schafer said, "within the shadow of the Nation's Capitol we find, according to a press release, that another Federal prohibition agent shot a citizen Tuesday night while making a prohibition raid without a search warrant."

"God of the Drys."

"For almost ten years," he continued, "the crimson tide has flowed and the next victim ever waits at the gate of his temple," referring to the "god of the drys."

"No one, innocent or guilty of violating the sacred prohibition laws, knows whether his bleeding form will be the next to be cast upon the reeking altar without warning. It may be some of those who vigorously op-

BOMB CHARGES AWAIT COUNCIL IN FORENOON

Hearing Scheduled for Yesterday Morning Is Deferred.

SLEUTHS TRACE DOWN AUTO LICENSE PLATES

Investigators Say Theory Is Strengthened After Trip to Frederick.

LAWYER SEES BRADY; RELEASE NOT PLANNED

M. Hampton Magruder Visits Brothers in Marlboro Jail at Request of Kin.

Whether or not murder warrants will be sworn out today in the Seat Pleasant bombing is dependent upon a conference to be held this morning between detectives conducting the investigation and State's Attorney J. Frank Parran.

Parran had announced that warrants would be issued and a preliminary hearing held yesterday. He changed his mind and postponed the hearing.

The State's attorney declared that the links of evidence in the case need to be connected before the decision can be made.

Detectives investigating the crime have stated that they have gathered enough evidence to warrant charges being preferred. They are Lieut. Joseph T. Itzel and Sergt. Charles Schalter, of the Baltimore Detective Bureau, and County Policeman Frank P. Prince.

Brothers See Attorney.

The investigators yesterday passed almost the entire day checking the ownership of the set of tags which were found at the home of Herman Brady, 22, Mitchellville farmer.

Herman and his brother, Lawrence Leroy Brady, 26, Washington auto mechanic, are held in the County Jail at Upper Marlboro for investigation.

They were arrested Sunday after Herman signed a statement which, detectives claim, implicates his brother. The trail of the tags carried the detectives to Frederick. Upon their return they said they could not reveal what had been learned but added that it considerably strengthened the theory upon which they have been working.

M. Hampton Magruder, prominent Marlboro attorney and a former State's attorney, yesterday conferred with the Brady brothers at the Marlboro Jail.

Will Not Seek Writ.

He said he had not been retained to represent them, although he had come with that view. He further said that if he were retained as counsel he would not interfere with the State's investigation by asking for a writ of habeas corpus.

Lieut. Itzel, upon his return from Frederick, immediately got into communication by telephone with Parran. The latter, however, would not come to Marlboro from his Brandywine home to learn what information the detectives have gathered.

Parran indicated quite broadly that the case would soon be closed when he said he contemplated a duck hunting trip over the week-end. He said the trip would serve as a rest after his activities in the case.

Liquor Report Erroneous.

Detectives do not expect to question the two men this morning, as they believe their conference with Parran will take up the greater part of the forenoon.

It had been reported yesterday that a bottle of liquor had been found in a secret compartment of Leroy Brady's automobile. Authorities last night, however, said that this report was erroneous.

Herman Brady was the husband of Naomi Hall Brady, 18, one of three persons killed by the explosion of the bomb, which was camouflaged as a Christmas box. Three other members of her family are in Washington hospitals as a result of the explosion.

Sackett's Nomination Is Too Late for Senate

(Associated Press.)

The official document informing the Senate that President Hoover had selected Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, to be Ambassador to Germany made a futile trip from the White House executive offices to the Capitol yesterday.

The messenger who was dispatched with the nomination returned down Pennsylvania avenue with it still in his hand. He found that the Senate had adjourned after he had left the President's office. It was thought probable last night that the nomination will be sent back to the Senate early today.

G. O. P. YOUNG GUARD WINS SENATE BATTLE ON COMMITTEE JOBS

La Follette, Thomas and Blaine Hold Positions at End of Tilt.

STANDPAT GROUP'S LAST STAND, BELIEF

Progressives Are Victors After Threatening to Fight on Floor.

SMOOT VOTE CHANGE AROUSES CONJECTURE

White House Is Kept Busy Asserting It Had No Hand in Matter.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Republican Old Guard made what is believed to be its last stand yesterday.

When that two-day fracas in the committee on committees had come to an end the Progressives not only had Senator La Follette on the Senate finance committee, but Senator Thomas, of Idaho, as well. In addition they had Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, on the hitherto very conservative committee on banking and currency, and also on the just as conservative committee on privileges and elections.

Thus what had threatened to become an open airing of Republican troubles on the Senate floor was settled in the committee room behind closed doors. But it was not settled in any conciliatory way, in any spirit of give and take, with every one looking to the welfare of the party as a whole. It was settled by brute force.

Vote Was Four to Four.

Four members of the committee had voted for La Follette on Tuesday and four Old Guardsmen had just as stolidly voted against him, while Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee abstained from voting, but muttering all the while that if Senator La Follette came on his committee he would go off, or in his less vigorous mood, that he would feel like he ought to go off.

This was the situation when the nine members gathered around the table yesterday. The same four members voted for Senator La Follette—Senators Capper, McNary, Nye and Oddie, and the same four Old Guardsmen voted confidently against him—Senators Moses, Bingham, Reed and Deneen. Then, lo and behold, Senator Smoot flopped and voted for La Follette.

The exact picture of what went on in the committee room is held unto the committee members' breasts. Information had to be obtained as best it could, but it is understood that Senator Hiram Bingham showed much emotion; indeed, more expression than he has ever shown in his Senate life.

Reed Present by Proxy.

Senator Reed was present only by proxy. Senator Deneen probably did not much care. He is not a dyed-in-the-wool Old Guardsman. And Senator Moses—well, it takes a mighty severe licking to make him squawk. He is used to the rough and tumble of it all. He smiled, but did take occasion to observe something about the good old days being gone—those days when the Republicans got behind closed doors with their troubles and kept them there.

All one has to do now, with these new-fangled movements springing up and storms sweeping out of the West as fast as one is dissipated, he is reported to have said, is to threaten to take a fight to the floor, and thereby get what he wants.

This is, of course, what the Progressives had threatened to do.

White House Denies Action.

It was a matter of speculation as to whether Senator Smoot had a visitation during the night. The

SECRETARY ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

HAD ACTED AS RECEIVER

Joseph Castle Ridgway, said to be secretary to Representative Harold Knutson, of the Sixth Minnesota District, posted $2,500 bond yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for his appearance May 20 at Fargo, N. Dak., to stand trial on a charge of embezzlement.

Ridgway was arrested earlier in the day on a warrant sworn to before the commissioner George O'Dougherty, a special agent of the Department of Justice. He was taken into custody in the offices of Representative Knutson by Deputy United States Marshals John J. Clarkson and C. Cerimele.

The warrant on which he was arrested follows the return of an indictment by a Federal grand jury in North Dakota on October 30 last.

The warrant charges that Ridgway, "while acting as receiver of the First National Bank of Beach, N. Dak., being appointed on January 24, 1924, by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, did on or about August 9, 1927, embezzle $750 out of the moneys of the trust as receiver, and was indicted in the United States District Court for Fargo, N. Dak.," on October 30 last. The warrant specifies in addition that

POPE IMPARTS BLESSING

Rome, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Princess Marie Jose of Belgium became the wife of Crown Prince Humbert and the prospective Queen of Italy this morning at a marriage ceremony resplendent with color and pageantry in the Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal Palace.

Three kings and two queens, two former kings and three former queens, and twenty-eight princes and twenty-six princesses crowded into the chapel with a host of eminent political, social and military personages from many countries.

After the ceremony the young royal bridal couple drove to the Vatican, where Pope Pius XI received them, gave them the pontifical blessing and wished them happiness. It was the first time in the history of the papacy that a Pope had received and blessed a future King and Queen of United Italy.

Crown Prince Humbert, who is 25 years old, and Princess Marie Jose, who is 23, were married by Cardinal Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, according to the ritual reserved for royalty.

On one side of them in the chapel stood the assembled kings, queens and princes, and on the other side Premier Mussolini, Marshal Petain, of Husband Battles for Life as Result of Double Domestic Tragedy.

One life has been snuffed out and another is perilously close to extinction because a tea kettle bubbled over while an aged woman was preparing a meal for herself and her husband. As the kettle boiled, the gas flame beneath was extinguished, and a steady flow of gas saturated the room in which the couple had dozed off.

The woman, Mrs. Florence Martin, 55 years old, of 203 P street northwest, died last night at 8:30 o'clock in the Emergency Hospital. Her husband, Albert, 50 years old, is still unconscious and is not expected to recover.

In a desperate attempt to save Mrs. Martin's life, physicians of the Emergency Hospital asked for volunteers among the student nurses in

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 2 and 22 Today

White House grew red in the face during the day, insisting that the President was not taking a hand in the matter. Senator Smoot and Claudius Huston, Republican national chairman, had both approached Mr. Hoover on the matter; it was said, and he had stopped them, figuratively, at the door.

But it is a matter of knowledge that the White House, so to speak, without getting down to actual names, has been interested in the fight for several weeks and has collaborated with senators in trying to work the problem out.

It is not the understanding that it was personally opposed to Senator La Follette's going on the committee, but that it did assist in trying to sidetrack him when Senator Smoot threatened to resign if Senator La Follette were placed on his committee. This was very probably Huston's attitude.

As a matter of fact, Smoot was largely responsible for the fight.

Inconsistency Is Argued.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, is not believed to have encouraged the movement against La Follette. Instead, he is believed to have argued the inconsistency of the Old Guard's stand. Four senators were read out of the party in 1924, he recalled, and the party got into nothing more than an awful mess.

There, too, was the case of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee. He openly supported Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 campaign. Yet no one suggested that he should be divested of his judiciary chairmanship. Senator La Follette did not support either presidential candidate.

Now, in view of the fact that it all revolved around Senator Smoot's attitude, the wonder is why he changed his mind and left the three musketeers of the Old Guard holding the bag. Senator Moses held, in addition, the proxy of Senator Reed, which he had thought was quite a holding. Senator Reed has gone away to London and the naval parley.

Bright Star Appeared, Claim.

The Progressives chuckled and said that a bright star had appeared to Senator Smoot overnight, a star that revealed that the Old Guard would have to take Senator La Follette in the end, out in public on the Senate floor, a revival, indeed, of the old whipping post.

There is a question of whether this would have been so. The Democrats as a whole would not have entered into the Republican fracas by voting with the Progressives in a fight on the Senate floor. Some of them, however, would have. Just whether there would have been enough of them to put La Follette over will never be known.

There is the unanswered question, too, of whether the Young Turks would not have voted for La Follette in party conference and stopped the matter right there.

Hoover Influence Held Unlikely.

There was the inevitable suggestion that the White House had borne down upon Senator Smoot, but in view of its indignation that the President's name had been brought into the matter at all, this would seem to be unlikely.

Senator Smoot himself would not explain his transformation. As soon as he got out from under his tariff papers on the floor he hurried to the showers in the Senate Office Building, where, of course, reporters could not corner him.

There was the suggestion that the story about Thomas will prove interesting when it is known. The Progressives were only contending for one man on the finance committee. Of course, Thomas is not really one of them. But he comes from Borah's State and the Progressives believe that when he takes definite form at all it will be along Progressive lines.

Old Guard Generous, Belief.

The story of his appointment in addition to that of La Follette, it is believed, will show, when it becomes known, a real generosity beneath the hard exteriors of the Old Guard. It is understood that the Old Guard really wanted the Northwest to have a man on the finance committee, thought the section was entitled to it, and that in this same spirit would not hear to the application of Senator Metcalfe, of Rhode Island, because that would make four New England members and the Old Guard realized that was unfair.

About La Follette, the Old Guard argued that he was not from the Northwest, but rather from that section already well heeled on the finance committee, with Deneen of Illinois, Couzens of Michigan, and Watson of Indiana. The Progressives' answer to this was that the State from which La Follette came was immaterial; he was of the Progressive mold.

And to show their sincerity the Old Guard put Thomas on the committee even after it was determined that La Follette should go on.

Incidentally, Senator Hastings, of Delaware, received a place on the all-important interstate commerce committee. The Progressives have the chairmanship of this.

Bank Legislation Hearings Opened

House Committee Begins Study of Complicated Proposals Facing It.

(Associated Press.)

Confronted with complete proposals for legislation affecting the national banking system, the House banking committee yesterday initiated hearings looking toward a study of the situation in the light of current conditions.

The committee failed to agree on two bills proposed by the Federal Reserve Board, and decided they should be redrafted. One would empower the board to cancel Federal Reserve Bank stock held by a member after the member had discontinued banking operations. The other would authorize the board to permit withdrawal of any State bank or trust company without the six months' notice now required.

Meanwhile another far-reaching change of law was proposed by Representative Strong, of Kansas, ranking Republican on the committee. He said that today he will introduce a bill to eliminate group and chain banking.

HOT WORDS ATTEND SUGAR LOBBY QUIZ

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, Tilts With Broker Over Use of Hoover's Name.

BREAKFAST IS DESCRIBED

(Associated Press.)

Mention of President Hoover in connection with tariff activities of the American bottlers of carbonated beverages precipitated a heated exchange yesterday before the Senate lobby committee between Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and H. H. Pike, jr., a Wall street sugar broker.

The outburst resulted from a letter written last February by Pike to P. A. Staples, of the Central Hershey Co. of Havana, which said W. C. D'Arcy, publicity man for the Coca-Cola Co., "has a personal method of approach to Hoover and is going to see that Hoover gets full but concise data on the sugar subject."

Mr. Pike, who previously had testified that the Coca-Cola and Hershey companies were financing a campaign by the Bottlers Association against a high sugar duty in the tariff bill, said he was unable to give the exact source of his information. It had come, he said, from a person who had attended a breakfast given by Robert W. Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola Co.

Others Present Listed.

The letter said those present at the breakfast, in addition to Mr. Pike and Mr. Woodruff, were Mr. D'Arcy, Mr. Horsey, export vice president of the Coca-Cola Co., and Ralph Hayes, publicity vice president of the Chatham & Phoenix National Bank.

Leaning across the committee table, Robinson—the only regular Republican on the committee—pointed a finger at the witness and shouted:

"That looks to the average man, I would think, that there was some backstairs method of approach."

"It would not mean that to a business man," Mr. Pike returned.

Heard Hoover Mentioned.

"We had this little meeting at breakfast," the witness testified. "You can count how many people were there—six or eight. We talked about what are we going to do to prevent this wicked increase in the sugar tariff? And one of those people said to me, 'I think Mr. D'Arcy can put these sugar facts before President Hoover,' which is a perfectly proper thing for him to do, and I do not remember which of those men told me that, but they never told me how he was going to put it there, and I do not say that in the memorandum."

Senator Robinson asked Mr. Pipe if he thought it was "a fair method of procedure" to send the information to Mr. Staples, adding that "he could tell it to anyone he desired."

"I think it is very fair," Mr. Pike said.

"Bandying the President's name around when you today say you do not know what the method was or what you were talking about them?" Senator Robinson shot back.

Wishes He Had Method.

"I did not know, but if I had a method of putting it before President Hoover I should do so, and I would tell you so and I would be very proud of having the ability," Mr. Pike retorted.

"Then why don't you tell me what it was? What was the method?" Senator Robinson demanded.

"I do not know and did not know at the time, and I do not say in the memorandum that I did know."

"Then you ought to have kept quiet about anything you knew nothing about. Isn't that true when you are using the name of the President of the United States in this lobbying capacity of yours?" Senator Robinson asked.

"No, sir," Mr. Pipe replied.

The sugar broker, the only witness yesterday, testified that about $32,000 had been spent in the campaign thus far against a high sugar tariff and that the Hershey corporation and Coca-Cola Co. each had agreed to spend as much as $25,000.

He said the money had been paid by the companies through him to Junior Owens, secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, of which both companies are members.

Mr. Pike added that the Hershey Co. had already paid about $820,000, and that he had advanced the Coca-Cola contribution, which he said would be repaid when a final accounting was made.

Three Witnesses Today.

The witnesses today will be C. O. Townsend, sugar expert of the tariff commission; R. L. Purdon, sugar expert of the Commerce Department, and Maurice Mermey, connected with W. H. Baldwin, New York publicity man.

Mr. Townsend was called as a result of testimony Tuesday that a "Mr. Thompson," described as a tariff commission sugar expert, had given "confidential" information to a representative of a sugar company.

The committee said there was no Thompson connected with the commission and Mr. Townsend was called to ascertain whether he knew anything about the matter.

Purdon Mentioned Before.

Mr. Purdon, sugar expert of the Commerce Department, has been mentioned in previous testimony as having conferred with representatives of sugar companies concerning the sliding scale for sugar duties.

A document placed in the record Tuesday said Mr. Purdon had been "asked by the White House" and Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, to work out a sliding scale.

Another development at yesterday's hearing was the introduction into the record of a memorandum prepared by Mr. Pike which purported to give his views of the tariff attitude of several members of the Senate finance committee.

Baltimore Hotel Man Drowns on Duck-Hunt

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Harry Busick, president of the Lord Baltimore Hotel Co. in Baltimore, was drowned this morning in a ducking blind while hunting at the Elliott Island Gun Club, on Fishing Creek, near Vienna, Md. Other members of a party of Baltimore hunters found his body floating in the water, they said, after bringing the body here.

Insanity Is to Be Plea of Walter Crabtree, Belief at Romney.

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Although counsel for Walter Crabtree, alleged triple murderer, are reticent about his case, which is to come to trial here during the present term of Circuit Court, it is believed that the defense will be insanity.

Crabtree, who is alleged to have killed Deputy Sheriff Benjamin E. Miller, Magistrate H. Carter Inskeep and Emory Wolford, a former soldier, in addition to wounding three women while on a rampage here a few weeks ago, has confessed to the slayings, according to officers.

It is reported around Romney that Crabtree's relatives have employed former United States Senator M. M. Neely, of Fairmont, as one of his attorneys, but no announcement of this has been made.

BORAH URGES ACTION ON HAITIAN QUESTION

Appointment of Civilian as High Commissioner Is Proposed.

DEMANDS FREE ELECTION

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, yesterday advocated immediate action in Haiti by President Hoover as the committee began consideration of the President's request for a commission of investigation.

Appointment of a civilian as high commissioner for Haiti and authority for a "free and untrammeled election" were proposed by Senator Borah in a statement issued after the committee failed to reach a decision on the House resolution authorizing an investigating commission.

Senator Borah severely condemned military rule of the Haitians. He offered no objection to the commission asked by the President, and said the absence of several members had precluded committee action on the resolution. He predicted an early report by the committee.

Urges Instant Action.

"But I feel that something ought to be done without waiting for the report of a commission," said the Idahoan. "We should appoint a civilian as high commissioner or as governor—for that is what it is—of Haiti.

"Second, we should give the Haitian people a free and untrammeled election. At this election they should be permitted to vote for their congress, and then the congress should be permitted, as is provided by the Constitution, to elect their president.

"We have been of much service to the Haitians in some respects, particularly in the bettering of their sanitary conditions, but we have not assisted them in the slightest in political affairs or in preparing them for self-government.

"Should Be Ashamed."

"Over twelve years ago we dissolved their assembly by force of arms and since that time they have not been permitted in any substantial way to have anything to do with their government. They are completely disfranchised.

"The United States Government ought to be ashamed to stand before the world at this time with all our professions of peace and against military power in the attitude of keeping a military heel upon a helpless people. This is a fundamental matter of policy and will have to be decided by the Government."

Virginia Debaters To Open Contests

Hampden-Sidney Team to Meet Johns Hopkins Friday Night.

Hampden Sidney, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.). Beginning one of the hardest forensic schedules ever listed by a Virginia college, Hampden-Sidney Friday night will meet the strong Johns Hopkins team in Baltimore to debate the question, "Resolved, that high protective tariff is detrimental to world peace."

The tilt with Johns Hopkins will be the first platform meeting between the two institutions, inaugurating an extensive interstate program for the coming year at Hampden-Sidney. Later in the season, in addition to the strong teams to be met among the usual Virginia rivals, a double team will tour the South encountering such opposition as the University of South Carolina, University of Florida, Furman University and probably Tulane.

Since the founding of Hampden-Sidney six months before the Declaration of Independence was signed, there has been great interest in debating activities, both within the college and in intercollegiate circles. More than 20 aspirants for places on the debating team appeared for tryouts.

Plummer F. Jones, of Buckingham, Va., and Winston N. Bloch, of Louisville, Ky., will present Hampden-Sidney in the contest with Johns Hopkins.

Boy Put on Probation In Blocking of Train

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 8.—Leslie Mogle, 12-year-old son of C. A. Mogle, of Toms Brooks, was tried before Juvenile Judge M. L. In view of his years the boy was placed on probation.

The express was delayed for an hour, it being necessary to transfer a carload of stock when the brake rigging was torn from beneath the car. The engine pilot also was damaged. The arrest was made by Sheriff Luther Sheetz and Police Lieut. J. H. Woodson, of the Southern Railway detective force.

Savant Depicts Progress In Quest of Artificial Life

Bureau of Standards Physicist Foresees Day When Secret of Production of Protoplasm Will Be Revealed to Scientists.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The latest step by science toward one of its hardest tests, learning whether it can produce life artificially in its laboratories, was described tonight by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, physicist, of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. He spoke before a meeting of the New York Electrical Society.

This step, he said, is the discovery within the year by Prof. Hans Fisher, of Munich, Germany, of a way to make artificially the substance called the "respiration ferment." This material is the red part of the blood corpuscle, both in humans and animals. It carries the oxygen from the lungs to the body tissues. Without it a person would quickly suffocate. Fischer, after 17 years research, succeeded in making the ferment from ordinary chemicals, including carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen.

"The body," said Dr. Heyl, "is after all, simply a physical and chemical laboratory. There is no reason why we can not understand it all some day. We are getting nearer all the time. One hundred years ago it was considered impossible to make synthetically, that is artificially, such a thing as organic compound, a substance having certain peculiarities of living things. It was even impious to think it might be done. Yet now thousands of these organic compounds have been produced synthetically.

"The progress recently has been rapid and the latest is the discovery of the respiration ferment by Fischer. This ferment is the middleman in delivery of oxygen from our blood to bodily tissues. This process is intimately connected with our life. Its synthesis goes to show that some day we shall know all the processes.

"I am quite satisfied that eventually we shall come to a solution of the mystery of life. Then we shall understand all the life processes as well as we now know the burning of a lump of coal.

"Protoplasm is the basis of all living matter. Some day we shall learn how to produce protoplasm. It may or it may not turn out to be living. If it is alive, we shall have created life artificially."

Dr. Heyl was asked whether there is in sight any possibility of creating life that is conscious, things that know they are alive.

"That is too far ahead to talk about," he said. "We shall learn the physics, mechanics and chemistry of the body. We may find sometime the connection between life and consciousness, but I do not know."

Barring of Stubbs From Democratic Caucus Leads to Hot Attack.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Action last night of the Senate Democratic caucus in barring from its activities Senator R. H. Stubbs, Middlesex County, resulted today in a spirited attack by Stubbs on Senator Saxon W. Holt, Newport News, author of the motion against the Middlesex member.

Senator Stubbs, gaining the floor after two attempts, was ruled out of order by Lieut. Gov. West and asked to take his seat after he had offered his opinion that Senator Holt was better fitted to be "an advance agent of rumrunners."

Senator Stubbs was invited by the presiding officer to appeal from the ruling if he wished to do so, but he declined. Senator Holt sat through the discussion without speaking.

Senator Stubbs, who supported Dr. William Mosely Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee for governor in 1929, and who refused to support Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928, was classed with the Senate Republicans by the Democratic caucus last night. He was excluded near the end of the caucus session.

Danville, Va., Jan. 7.—Unrequited love was today blamed for the killing last night of Alice Turner, 17, by Dan Purdy, 23, who then ended his own life at the home of the young woman at Koehler, in Henry County, while the estranged couple stood beside a phonograph which was playing a love song.

In the girl's hand was clutched a note reading: "Papa, Dan is going to kill me and himself. He is dissatisfied with life. Try to save me." She had found time to hurriedly scribble it in the hopes of handing it to her father, Peter Turner, in an effort to forestall her death. The opportunity, however, never came and while she stood beside the phonograph, frozen with horror, Dan Purdy fired two bullets into her body and then sent a bullet into his own head.

THROAT OF DOCTOR IS CUT BY PATIENT

Hospital Physician Dies 15 Minutes After Attack; Had Back Turned.

INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Dr. B. L. Miller, staff physician at the Harrisburg State Hospital, was killed today by Moses Sweet, of this city, a patient, who attacked him with a razor. The physician's throat was cut so severely that he died fifteen minutes later.

Dr. E. M. Greene, superintendent at the institution, said Dr. Miller had just entered the ward in which Sweet was confined and that the physician had talked with Sweet for a few moments before the attack. When Dr. Miller turned to talk to another patient, the superintendent said, Sweet attacked him with the razor.

Superintendent Greene said Sweet's only explanation of the attack was that Dr. Miller "was keeping me here. Sweet, however, had at no time been under the care of Dr. Miller and had only seen the physician when he came to visit other patients in the ward.

Dr. Miller had been attached to the local institution for three years, coming here from Indianapolis. Sweet was committed to the hospital last June by a lunacy commission appointed by the Dauphin County court.

Superintendent Greene said he had been unable to learn where Sweet procured the razor and added that no further statement would be made by him until after the inquest, which will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The patient was not immediately arrested, but was kept in his usual quarters in the ward.

Industrial Spies' Inquiry Is Wanted

Senate Resolution Asks Alleged Espionage Be Investigated.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution to authorize an investigation by the Senate labor committee of espionage in industry in the United States was introduced yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

The resolution, which was referred to the labor committee, asked that after the investigation the committee report to the Senate what legislation it thought desirable "to correct such practices as they may find inimical to the public welfare."

The resolution added that agencies, and other interests connected with them, "are detrimental to peaceful relationship between employers and employes, setting up a system of espionage in industry, thriving on the unrest and fear they create and spreading false rumors and scares and often bringing about strikes in order to maintain their alleged services."

Snook Appeal Plea Is Again Rejected

Lawyer Says Fight Will Be Carried to United States Supreme Court.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The State Supreme Court today rejected the motion of Dr. James H. Snook, former Ohio State University professor, for rehearing of his appeal from a sentence of death in the electric chair January 31, for the murder last June 13 of Theora Hix, Ohio State coed.

Attorneys for Dr. Snook tonight were prepared to appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The ruling today was the last move in Ohio Supreme Court which previously had overruled his dual appeal from the Franklin County Common Pleas Court conviction.

Attorney Arthur Fricke, Cincinnati, chief counsel for Dr. Snook, said an appeal to United States Supreme Court will be made "very soon."

Action of the Ohio court left Dr. Snook with only two chances of escaping death, the United States Supreme Court and an appeal for executive clemency to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper. The court did not go into the request of the defense for a written opinion on its reasons for rejecting the appeal.

'Evidence' Decried In Taylor Murder

District Attorney Asserts Interviews Are Attempts at Sensationalism.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—District Attorney Buron Fitts today characterized as "attempts at sensationalism" recent purported interviews with persons figuring in the William Desmond Taylor murder case, and said no new evidence had been produced.

The district attorney said that Otis Nelson, alias Hefner, and Henry Peavey, whose alleged statements concerning the slaying of the noted motion picture director in 1922 have been published by some newspapers recently, had been questioned many times before and had demonstrated they have no knowledge useful to a solution of the mystery.

Nelson or Hefner, a former convict who is sought for violation of his parole, Mr. Fitts said, had been thoroughly discredited long ago, while recent statements attributed to Peavey, Negro servant of Taylor, were the same as made previously. The purported interviews, pointing to a motion picture actress as the slayer, were not carried by the Associated Press.

THRONGS ACCLAIM HUMBERT AND MARIE

Crown Prince and Bride Visit Tomb of Unknown Hero After Ceremony.

PAPAL BLESSING IS GIVEN

France, and the military chiefs of Italy.

The royal wedding procession entered the Hall of the Royal Guards, adjoining the Pauline Chapel, at 10:35 a. m., 35 minutes late for the ceremony.

Princess With Her Father.

Princess Marie Jose, accompanied by her father, King Albert of Belgium, came at the head of the royal group, and was followed by Belgian and Italian officers.

Then came Crown Prince Humbert and his mother, Queen Helena of Italy, followed by King Victor Emanuel with Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

The procession passed through a crowd of a thousand guests in the hall of the royal guards. Among them were members of the Italian and Belgian aristocracies, state officials and members of the Diplomatic Corps. The men were in full uniform or full dress, and the women wore gowns in pastel shades, veils and tiaras.

The party then entered the Pauline Chapel where the highest ranking diplomats and the cabinet ministers were waiting for them.

Royalty on Throne Dais.

The King and Queen of Italy ascended a small throne dais on the gospel side of the altar, and the King and Queen of Belgium a similar throne on the epistle side.

Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert knelt on red plush prie-dieux mounted with gold.

Ceremony Is Brief.

The actual marriage ceremony was over almost before the distinguished congregation realized that it had begun.

Cardinal Maffi pronounced the "I join you in matrimony" about five minutes after the couple first knelt before the altar.

In accordance with old custom an ancient rectangular veil 12 feet long was held over the heads of the royal pair by the Count of Turin, the Duke of Abruzzi, the Prince of Undine and the duke of Pistoia, and it was dropped after they had answered "si;" the princess and the crown prince turned to their parents for the final gesture of parental consent before answering "yes."

The Belgian and the Italian sovereigns replied by an inclination of the head.

Princess Wears Cream Velvet.

Then Crown Prince Humbert placed a ring on Marie-Jose's finger, and Cardinal Maffi proceeded to celebrate the mass, for which Pope Pius granted plenary indulgence to all those participating.

At the elevation of the host, trumpets rang out, and drums sounded in accordance with royal ritual.

After the mass the procession moved out of the chapel with the same pagentry and color.

The new crown princess of Italy was dressed in white cream velvet and wore a train bordered with ermine 7 yards long. Crown Prince Humbert was resplendent in the full dress uniform of an infantry colonel and wore the collar of the Annunziata, Italy's highest decoration. The princess's gown reached to her ankles.

Motor to Vatican.

The couple, accompanied by courtiers and by the Italian Ambassador to the Holy See, hastened to enter automobiles for the drive to the Vatican. They were 25 minutes late because of the great crush of people around the Quirinal Palace.

Pope Pius smiled benignly when they were ushered into his presence and dismissed their excuses for tardiness with a gesture.

He presented Crown Prince Humbert with a beautiful tapestry representing Pinturicchio's Madonna, with a frame decorated with the papal triple crown, and the coats of arms of the papacy, the House of Savoy and the Royal House of Belgium. He gave the princess a gold rosary set with precious stones.

Civil Rite Performed.

The religious marriage was accompanied by a civil rite that included the reading of the civil code and the signing of the register by witnesses, who included Cardinal Maffi, the King of Italy and the King of Belgium, President Federzoni of the senate, and Premier Mussolini, as notary of the crown.

The bridal couple before going to the Vatican went out on a balcony of the palace and showed themselves to an enormous crowd below, who cheered wildly.

Their route to the Vatican was lined with other cheering crowds.

Duce Is Saluted.

Premier Mussolini's entrance into the Quirinal with the wedding procession marked an epoch in the social development of fascism. For the first time since his advent to power in 1922 the duce was greeted by royalty and nobility on all sides with the Roman or fascist salute, made with the outstretched right arm. He returned the salute in the same fashion.

Mussolini was dressed in the full uniform of his rank and entered the palace accompanied only by Undersecretary of State Giunta.

He did not take part in the royal section of the procession, where kings and princes gave their arms to queens and princesses, but came immediately after.

Honor Unknown Soldier.

The bridal couple ended the formalities of the day by laying a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They were cheered by a tremendous crowd, which was held back with difficulty by soldiers and police.

Their wedding day was favored by good weather. The sun shone in the morning and the sky was only slightly overcast in the afternoon.

The elaborate police precautions that had been arranged long before the wedding proved to be unnecessary, and there was no attempt at disorder. The princely pair drove to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in an open horsedrawn carriage.

Army Review Scheduled.

The new Princess of Piedmont, Marie Jose, tomorrow will begin her official duties in her new station by witnessing a review of Italy's fighting forces.

Accompanied by her husband, her father, mother and two brothers, and the royal family of Italy, she will go to the former Parioli Race Track, just outside the capital, where 20,000 men of arms, the pick of Italy's contingents, will parade before her, giving the "eyes right" as they pass.

Her husband's own regiment, the 92d Infantry, will be well in the van. It is a command of which the crown prince is extremely proud. Its men come from his native Piedmont, and are hardy mountaineers.

Governor's Fete Tonight.

Tomorrow night the princess and her husband will be the guests of Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, governor of Rome, at a brilliant reception.

On Friday morning the young royal couple will review a procession of Roman school children in the Piazzi Di Siena. In the afternoon the pair will witness a procession of civil authorities from all over Italy. Friday evening the governor of Rome will be their host at a gala performance in the Royal Opera House.

On Saturday they will at last be able to get away from officialdom and start their honeymoon, part of which will be spent in the royal hunting lodge of San Rossore, near Pisa. Some time next week they will make their formal entry into Turin, the prince-bridegroom's city of residence, and former capital of Italian kings. A formidable program of entertainment by the municipality and local nobility awaits them there.

Florida Meeting Draws Coolidge

Former President in South to Attend Insurance Company Convention.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge was here today for the opening of the midwinter convention of the New York Life Insurance Co., but he expects to attend only one business session.

The only part the former President will play in the meeting will be to speak on the economies of life insurance at the evening session tomorrow. His address will be broadcast by radio station WJZ, New York, over a national hookup.

Mr. Coolidge, who is one of the directors of the New York Life Insurance Co., refused to discuss anything political.

"I did not come here to be catechized," he said, "and I do not care to discuss anything pertaining to my future or politics in general."

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will visit with friends in Mount Dora after the convention ends.

Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the company, opened today's initial session of the convention at which general economic problems, and matters of particular interest to the insurance business, will be discussed.

the grand jury to obtain mail fraud indictments against seven directors of the company, all of whom had been indicted in Washington at the time the firm was moving its headquarters to New York. This move, Mr. Dodds charged, was made to save its books from the Washington grand jury and to escape further investigation there. He charged also that the company defrauded its patrons through misleading statements regarding the value of its securities.

These seven, Mr. Dodds asserted, included Mr. Pitts, Mr. Edwards, Daniel R. Crissinger, former Comptroller of the Currency and former governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Maj. Henry C. Maddux, Samuel J. Henry, president; Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Maryland, chairman of the House District committee, and C Elbert Anadale, vice president.

LONDON CONFEREES DUE TO SAIL TODAY

conference and that of the 1921 Washington disarmament conference are radically different. Then the United States was far ahead of the other nations in battleship strength, and Secretary of State Hughes was able to take a bold lead and state at the outset of the conference just what America would do in the reduction line.

To-day, however, this country is behind Great Britain in battleship and cruiser strength because of failure of the Government and Congress to keep up the ratios agreed at the 1921 conference.

Secretary Stimson therefore can not make such a bold play as did Secretary Hughes.

Task Facing Stimson.

The procedure of Mr. Stimson, who so far has been successful in his method of diplomatic approach, will be to work out by slow, painstaking stages, an agreement which will satisfy each of the five nations—the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy—and will leave none, by harsh or enforced terms, disgruntled.

Good-will will be constantly stressed. Dramatics will be absented from the conference, if Mr. Stimson can have his way.

But behind the scenes will be the realization by the delegates of the five nations to just what a failure of the conference may mean, and the knowledge that if it should come to a showdown race for naval construction, the United States holds the trump card—money.

Much Is at Stake.

Mr. MacDonald heads the delegation of Great Britain. The Premier of France is at the head of the French delegation. A failure of the conference with a resulting costly race in battleship construction, and with a gathering of the clouds of war once more, would be sure to have serious political consequences for the governments concerned with the failure.

It is predicted that the conference will last for close to four months. This means that the more than 100 Americans who sail on the George Washington will not be home until the end of May or early June. The wives of most of the delegates are accompanying them and Secretary Stimson has rented a country house in the London suburbs for a period of months.

On arriving in London, he will confer with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy, chief Italian delegate, and probably with heads of other delegations before the opening session of the parley on January 21.

Hard Named Broadcaster At London Conference

The British Broadcasting Corporation yesterday confirmed to the National Broadcasting Co. that William Hard, Washington newspaper correspondent and broadcaster, had been approved to present to America the story of the five-power naval parley in London through B. B. C. Preceding the speech of King George V at the opening conference, January 21, Mr. Hard will introduce the subject to the American radio audience over the National Broadcasting Co. networks. His voice will come from England by short-wave transmission.

Mr. Hard will sail with American delegates on the George Washington carrying credentials that he would be persona grata as representative of the American radio and liaison between the B. B. C. and the National Broadcasting.

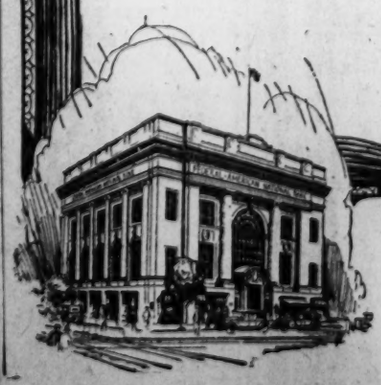
AN OPEN BOOK ON BANKING

JOHN W. POLE, the Comptroller of the Currency, having supervision of all National Banks, reports that there are 7,473 National Banks in the United States.

JOHN POOLE, President, Federal-American National Bank, reminds you that this bank stands 176th out of these 7,473 banks in point of size of its capital of $1,600,000.00, Surplus of $900,000.00, Undivided Profits of over $350,000.00 which is ample assurance that large estates and large businesses placed here enjoy unusual financial protection.

JOHN POOLE, President.



FEDERAL-AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

White House grew red in the face during the day, insisting that the President was not taking a hand in the matter. Senator Smoot and Claudius Huston, Republican national chairman, had both approached Mr. Hoover on the matter, it was said, and he had stopped them, figuratively, at the door.

But it is a matter of knowledge that the White House, so to speak, without getting down to actual names, has been interested in the fight for several weeks and has collaborated with senators in trying to work the problem out.

It is not the understanding that it was personally opposed to Senator La Follette's going on the committee, but that it did assist in trying to sidetrack him when Senator Smoot threatened to resign if Senator La Follette were placed on his committee. This was very probably Huston's attitude.

As a matter of fact, Smoot was largely responsible for the fight.

Inconsistency Is Argued.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, is not believed to have encouraged the movement against La Follette. Instead, he is believed to have argued the inconsistency of the Old Guard's stand. Four senators were read out of the party in 1924, he recalled, and the party got into nothing more than an awful mess.

There, too, was the case of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee. He openly supported Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 campaign. Yet no one suggested that he should be divested of his judiciary chairmanship. Senator La Follette did not support either presidential candidate.

Now, in view of the fact that it all revolved around Senator Smoot's attitude, the wonder is why he changed his mind and left the three musketeers of the Old Guard holding the bag. Senator Moses held, in addition, the proxy of Senator Reed, which he had thought was quite a holding. Senator Reed has gone away to London and the naval parley.

Bright Star Appeared, Claim.

The Progressives chuckled and said that a bright star had appeared to Senator Smoot overnight, a star that revealed that the Old Guard would have to take Senator La Follette in the end, out in public on the Senate floor, a revival, indeed, of the old whipping post.

There is a question of whether this would have been so. The Democrats as a whole would not have entered into the Republican fracas by voting with the Progressives in a fight on the Senate floor. Some of them, however, would have. Just whether there would have been enough of them to put La Follette over will never be known.

There is the unanswered question, too, of whether the Young Turks would not have voted for La Follette in party conference and stopped the matter right there.

Hoover Influence Held Unlikely.

There was the inevitable suggestion that the White House had borne down upon Senator Smoot, but in view of its indignation that the President's name had been brought into the matter at all, this would seem to be unlikely.

Senator Smoot himself would not explain his transformation. As soon as he got out from under his tariff papers on the floor he hurried to the showers in the Senate Office Building, where, of course, reporters could not corner him.

There was the suggestion that the story about Thomas will prove interesting when it is known. The Progressives were only contending for one man on the finance committee. Of course, Thomas is not really one of them. But he comes from Borah's State and the Progressives believe that when he takes definite form at all it will be along Progressive lines.

Old Guard Generous, Belief.

The story of his appointment in addition to that of La Follette, it is believed, will show, when it becomes known, a real generosity beneath the hard exteriors of the Old Guard. It is understood that the Old Guard really wanted the Northwest to have a man on the finance committee, thought the section was entitled to it, and that in this same spirit would not hear to the application of Senator Metcalfe, of Rhode Island, because that would make four New England members and the Old Guard realized that was unfair.

About La Follette, the Old Guard argued that he was not from the Northwest, but rather from that section already well heeled on the finance committee, with Deneen of Illinois, Couzens of Michigan, and Watson of Indiana. The Progressives' answer to this was that the State from which La Follette came was immaterial; he was of the Progressive mold.

And to show their sincerity the Old Guard put Thomas on the committee even after it was determined that La Follette should go on.

Incidentally, Senator Hastings, of Delaware, received a place on the all-important interstate commerce committee. The Progressives have the chairmanship of this.

Bank Legislation Hearings Opened

(Associated Press.)

Confronted with complete proposals for legislation affecting the national banking system, the House banking committee yesterday initiated hearings looking toward a study of the situation in the light of current conditions.

The committee failed to agree on two bills proposed by the Federal Reserve Board, and decided they should be redrafted. One would empower the board to cancel Federal Reserve Bank stock held by a member after the member had discontinued banking operations. The other would authorize the board to permit withdrawal of any State bank or trust company without the six months' notice now required.

Meanwhile another far-reaching change of law was proposed by Representative Strong, of Kansas, ranking Republican on the committee. He said that today he will introduce a bill to eliminate group and chain banking.

HOT WORDS ATTEND SUGAR LOBBY QUIZ

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, Tilts With Broker Over Use of Hoover's Name.

(Associated Press.)

Mention of President Hoover in connection with tariff activities of the American bottlers of carbonated beverages precipitated a heated exchange yesterday before the Senate lobby committee between Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and H. H. Pike, jr., a Wall street sugar broker.

The outburst resulted from a letter written last February by Pike to P. A. Staples, of the Central Hershey Co. of Havana, which said W. C. D'Arcy, publicity man for the Coca-Cola Co., "has a personal method of approach to Hoover and is going to see that Hoover gets full but concise data on the sugar subject."

Mr. Pike, who previously had testified that the Coca-Cola and Hershey companies were financing a campaign by the Bottlers Association against a high sugar duty in the tariff bill, said he was unable to give the exact source of his information. It had come, he said, from a person who had attended a breakfast given by Robert W. Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola Co.

Others Present Listed.

The letter said those present at the breakfast, in addition to Mr. Pike and Mr. Woodruff, were Mr. D'Arcy, Mr. Horsey, export vice president of the Coca-Cola Co., and Ralph Hayes, publicity vice president of the Chatham & Phoenix National Bank.

Leaning across the committee table, Robinson—the only regular Republican on the committee—pointed a finger at the witness and shouted:

"That looks to the average man, I would think, that there was some backstairs method of approach."

"It would not mean that to a business man," Mr. Pike returned.

Heard Hoover Mentioned.

"We had this little meeting at breakfast," the witness testified. "You can count how many people were there—six or eight. We talked about what are we going to do to prevent this wicked increase in the sugar tariff? And one of those people said to me, 'I think Mr. D'Arcy can put these sugar facts before President Hoover,' which is a perfectly proper thing for him to do, and I do not remember which of those men told me that, but they never told me how he was going to put it there, and I do not say that in the memorandum."

Senator Robinson asked Mr. Pipe if he thought it was "a fair method of procedure" to send the information to Mr. Staples, adding that "he could tell it to anyone he desired."

"I think it is very fair," Mr. Pike said.

"Bandying the President's name around when you today say you do not know what the method was or what you were talking about them?" Senator Robinson shot back.

Wishes He Had Method.

"I did not know, but if I had a method of putting it before President Hoover I should do so, and I would tell you so and I would be very proud of having the ability," Mr. Pike retorted.

"Then why don't you tell me what it was? What was the method?" Senator Robinson demanded.

"I do not know and did not know at the time, and I do not say in the memorandum that I did know."

"Then you ought to have kept quiet about anything you knew nothing about. Isn't that true when you are using the name of the President of the United States in this lobbying capacity of yours?" Senator Robinson asked.

"No, sir," Mr. Pipe replied.

The sugar broker, the only witness yesterday, testified that about $32,000 had been spent in the campaign thus far against a high sugar tariff and that the Hershey corporation and Coca-Cola Co. each had agreed to spend as much as $25,000.

He said the money had been paid by the companies through him to Junior Owens, secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, of which both companies are members.

Mr. Pike added that the Hershey Co. had already paid about $20,000, and that he had advanced the Coca-Cola contribution, which he said would be repaid when a final accounting was made.

Three Witnesses Today.

The witnesses today will be C. O. Townsend, sugar expert of the tariff commission; R. L. Purdon, sugar expert of the Commerce Department, and Maurice Mermey, connected with W. H. Baldwin, New York publicity man.

Mr. Townsend was called as a result of testimony Tuesday that a "Mr. Thompson," described as a tariff commission sugar expert, had given "confidential" information to a representative of a sugar company.

The committee said there was no Thompson connected with the commission and Mr. Townsend was called to ascertain whether he knew anything about the matter.

Purdon Mentioned Before.

Mr. Purdon, sugar expert of the Commerce Department, has been mentioned in previous testimony as having conferred with representatives of sugar companies concerning the sliding scale for sugar duties.

A document placed in the record Tuesday said Mr. Purdon had been "asked by the White House" and Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, to work out a sliding scale.

Another development at yesterday's hearing was the introduction into the record of a memorandum prepared by Mr. Pike which purported to give his views of the tariff attitude of several members of the Senate finance committee.

Baltimore Hotel Man Drowns on Duck-Hunt

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Harry Busick, president of the Lord Baltimore Hotel Co. in Baltimore, was drowned this morning in a ducking blind while hunting at the Elliott Island Gun Club, on Fishing Creek, near Vienna, Md. Other members of a party of Baltimore hunters found his body floating in the water, they said, after bringing the body here.

His companions said Busick had been alone in the blind while they occupied other blinds and that all had planned to meet at 10 o'clock this morning, preparatory to return to Baltimore today. When they went to the place where Busick had been they found only decoy ducks, and after a search his body was found floating on the water nearby. They were unable to say how long he had been dead and found nothing to indicate how the accident had happened.

Trial Approaches In Triple Killing

Insanity Is to Be Plea of Walter Crabtree, Belief at Romney.

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Although counsel for Walter Crabtree, alleged triple murderer, are reticent about his case, which is to come to trial here during the present term of Circuit Court, it is believed that the defense will be insanity.

Crabtree, who is alleged to have killed Deputy Sheriff Benjamin E. Miller, Magistrate H. Carter Inskeep and Emory Wolford, a former soldier, in addition to wounding three women while on a rampage here a few weeks ago, has confessed to the slayings, according to officers.

It is reported around Romney that Crabtree's relatives have employed former United States Senator M. M. Neely, of Fairmont, as one of his attorneys, but no announcement of this has been made.

BORAH URGES ACTION ON HAITIAN QUESTION

Appointment of Civilian as High Commissioner Is Proposed.

DEMANDS FREE ELECTION

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, yesterday advocated immediate action in Haiti by President Hoover as the committee began consideration of the President's request for a commission of investigation.

Appointment of a civilian as high commissioner for Haiti and authority for a "free and untrammeled election" were proposed by Senator Borah in a statement issued after the committee failed to reach a decision on the House resolution authorizing an investigating commission.

Senator Borah severely condemned military rule of the Haitians. He offered no objection to the commission asked by the President, and said the absence of several members had precluded committee action on the resolution. He predicted an early report by the committee.

Urges Instant Action.

"But I feel that something ought to be done without waiting for the report of a commission," said the Idahoan. "We should appoint a civilian as high commissioner or as governor—for that is what it is—of Haiti.

"Second, we should give the Haitian people a free and untrammeled election. At this election they should be permitted to vote for their congress, and then the congress should be permitted, as is provided by the Constitution, to elect their president.

"We have been of much service to the Haitians in some respects, particularly in the bettering of their sanitary conditions, but we have not assisted them in the slightest in political affairs or in preparing them for self-government.

"Should Be Ashamed."

"Over twelve years ago we dissolved their assembly by force of arms and since that time they have not been permitted in any substantial way to have anything to do with their government. They are completely disfranchised.

"The United States Government ought to be ashamed to stand before the world at this time with all our professions of peace and against military power in the attitude of keeping a military heel upon a helpless people. This is a fundamental matter of policy and will have to be decided by the Government."

Virginia Debaters To Open Contests

Hampden-Sidney Team to Meet Johns Hopkins Friday Night.

Hampden Sidney, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Beginning one of the hardest forensic schedules ever listed by a Virginia college, Hampden-Sidney Friday night will meet the strong Johns Hopkins team in Baltimore to debate the question, "Resolved, that high protective tariff is detrimental to world peace."

The tilt with Johns Hopkins will be the first platform meeting between the two institutions, inaugurating an extensive interstate program for the coming year at Hampden-Sidney. Later in the season, in addition to the strong teams to be met among the usual Virginia rivals, a double team will tour the South encountering such opposition as the University of South Carolina, University of Florida, Furman University and probably Tulane.

Since the founding of Hampden-Sidney six months before the Declaration of Independence was signed, there has been great interest in debating activities, both within the college and in intercollegiate circles. More than 20 aspirants for places on the debating team appeared for tryouts.

Plummer F. Jones, of Buckingham, Va., and Winston N. Bloch, of Louisville, Ky., will present Hampden-Sidney in the contest with Johns Hopkins.

Boy Put on Probation In Blocking of Train

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 8.—Leslie Mogle, 12-year-old son of C. A. Mogle, of Toms Brooks, was tried before Juvenile Judge M. L. Walton, jr., at Woodstock this morning, charged with placing a large rock on the Southern Railroad track 4 miles south of here shortly before express train No. 46 reached that point. In view of his years the boy was placed on probation.

The express was delayed for an hour, it being necessary to transfer a carload of stock when the brake rigging was torn from beneath the car. The engine pilot also was damaged. The arrest was made by Sheriff Luther Sheetz and Police Lieut. J. H. Woodson, of the Southern Railway detective force.

Savant Depicts Progress In Quest of Artificial Life

Bureau of Standards Physicist Foresees Day When Secret of Production of Protoplasm Will Be Revealed to Scientists.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The latest step by science toward one of its hardest tests, learning whether it can produce life artificially in its laboratories, was described tonight by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, physicist, of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. He spoke before a meeting of the New York Electrical Society.

This step, he said, is the discovery within the year by Prof. Hans Fisher, of Munich, Germany, of a way to make artificially the substance called the "respiration ferment." This material is the red part of the blood corpuscle, both in humans and animals. It carries the oxygen from the lungs to the body tissues. Without it a person would quickly suffocate. Fischer, after 17 years research, succeeded in making the ferment from ordinary chemicals, including carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen.

"The body," said Dr. Heyl, "is after all, simply a physical and chemical laboratory. There is no reason why we can not understand it all some day. We are getting nearer all the time. One hundred years ago it was considered impossible to make synthetically, that is artificially, such a thing as organic compound, a substance having certain peculiarities of living things. It was even impious to think it might be done. Yet now thousands of these organic compounds have been produced synthetically.

"The progress recently has been rapid and the latest is the discovery of the respiration ferment by Fischer. This ferment is the middleman in delivery of oxygen from our blood to bodily tissues. This process is intimately connected with our life. Its synthesis goes to show that some day we shall know all the processes.

"I am quite satisfied that eventually we shall come to a solution of the mystery of life. Then we shall understand all the life processes as well as we now know the burning of a lump of coal.

"Protoplasm is the basis of all living matter. Some day we shall learn how to produce protoplasm. It may or it may not turn out to be living. If it is alive, we shall have created life artificially."

Dr. Heyl was asked whether there is in sight any possibility of creating life that is conscious, things that know they are alive.

"That is too far ahead to talk about," he said. "We shall learn the physics, mechanics and chemistry of the body. We may find sometime the connection between life and consciousness, but I do not know."

Barring of Stubbs From Democratic Caucus Leads to Hot Attack.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Action last night of the Senate Democratic caucus in barring from its activities Senator R. H. Stubbs, Middlesex County, resulted today in a spirited attack by Stubbs on Senator Saxon W. Holt, Newport News, authos of the motion against the Middlesex member.

Senator Stubbs, gaining the floor after two attempts, was ruled out of order by Lieut. Gov. West and asked to take his seat after he had offered his opinion that Senator Holt was better fitted to be "an advance agent of rumrunners."

Senator Stubbs was invited by the presiding officer to appeal from the ruling if he wished to do so, but he declined. Senator Holt sat through the discussion without speaking.

Senator Stubbs, who supported Dr. William Mosely Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee for governor in 1929, and who refused to support Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928, was classed with the Senate Republicans by the Democratic caucus last night. He was excluded near the end of the caucus session.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 8. — Fire at Brookneal, 34 miles south of here, at midnight last night, did damage estimated at $100,000, though an estimate of the insurance was not available. R. G. Williams' lumberyard was burned, and Foster's tobacco warehouse, valued at $10,000, with $800 worth of tobacco, and a tobacco flue factory also were burned.

The hosiery mill employed 25 people, and the force was being steadily increased.

A Lynchburg fire truck made the run there in 55 minutes, but was of no service because of the lack of water. Several store buildings were damaged slightly, but a home bucket brigade saved these structures from destruction.

Danville, Va., Jan. 7.—Unrequited love was today blamed for the killing last night of Alice Turner, 17, by Dan Purdy, 23, who then ended his own life at the home of the young woman at Koehler, in Henry County, while the estranged couple stood beside a phonograph which was playing a love song.

In the girl's hand was clutched a note reading: "Papa, Dan is going to kill me and himself. He is dissatisfied with life. Try to save me." She had found time to hurriedly scribble it in the hopes of handing it to her father, Peter Turner, in an effort to forestall her death. The opportunity, however, never came and while she stood beside the phonograph, frozen with horror, Dan Purdy fired two bullets into her body and then sent a bullet into his own head.

THROAT OF DOCTOR IS CUT BY PATIENT

INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Dr. B. L. Miller, staff physician at the Harrisburg State Hospital, was killed today by Moses Sweet, of this city, a patient, who attacked him with a razor. The physician's throat was cut so severely that he died fifteen minutes later.

Dr. E. M. Greene, superintendent at the institution, said Dr. Miller had just entered the ward in which Sweet was confined and that the physician had talked with Sweet for a few moments before the attack. When Dr. Miller turned to talk to another patient, the superintendent said, Sweet attacked him with the razor.

Superintendent Greene said Sweet's only explanation of the attack was that Dr. Miller "was keeping me here. Sweet, however, had at no time been under the care of Dr. Miller and had only seen the physician when he came to visit other patients in the ward.

Dr. Miller had been attached to the local institution for three years, coming here from Indianapolis. Sweet was committed to the hospital last June by a lunacy commission appointed by the Dauphin County court.

Superintendent Greene said he had been unable to learn where Sweet procured the razor and added that no further statement would be made by him until after the inquest, which will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The patient was not immediately arrested, but was kept in his usual quarters in the ward.

Industrial Spies' Inquiry Is Wanted

Senate Resolution Asks Alleged Espionage Be Investigated.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution to authorize an investigation by the Senate labor committee of espionage in industry in the United States was introduced yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

The resolution, which was referred to the labor committee, asked that after the investigation the committee report to the Senate what legislation it thought desirable "to correct such practices as they may find inimical to the public welfare."

The resolution added that agencies, and other interests connected with them, "are detrimental to peaceful relationship between employers and employes, setting up a system of espionage in industry, thriving on the unrest and fear they create and spreading false rumors and scares and often bringing about strikes in order to maintain their alleged services."

Snook Appeal Plea Is Again Rejected

Lawyer Says Fight Will Be Carried to United States Supreme Court.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The State Supreme Court today rejected the motion of Dr. James H. Snook, former Ohio State University professor, for rehearing of his appeal from a sentence of death in the electric chair January 31, for the murder last June 13 of Theora Hix, Ohio State coed.

Attorneys for Dr. Snook tonight were prepared to appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The ruling today was the last move in Ohio Supreme Court which previously had overruled his dual appeal from the Franklin County Common Pleas Court conviction.

Attorney Arthur Fricke, Cincinnati, chief counsel for Dr. Snook, said an appeal to United States Supreme Court will be made "very soon."

Action of the Ohio court left Dr. Snook with only two chances of escaping death, the United States Supreme Court and an appeal for executive clemency to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper. The court did not go into the request of the defense for a written opinion on its reasons for rejecting the appeal.

'Evidence' Decried In Taylor Murder

District Attorney Asserts Interviews Are Attempts at Sensationalism.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—District Attorney Buron Fitts today characterized as "attempts at sensationalism" recent purported interviews with persons figuring in the William Desmond Taylor murder case, and said no new evidence had been produced.

The district attorney said that Otis Nelson, alias Hefner, and Henry Peavey, whose alleged statements concerning the slaying of the noted motion picture director in 1922 have been published by some newspapers recently, had been questioned many times before and had demonstrated they have no knowledge useful to a solution of the mystery.

Nelson or Hefner, a former convict who is sought for violation of his parole, Mr. Fitts said, had been thoroughly discredited long ago, while recent statements attributed to Peavey, Negro servant of Taylor, were the same as made previously. The purported interviews, pointing to a motion picture actress as the slayer, were not carried by the Associated Press.

THRONGS ACCLAIM HUMBERT AND MARIE

Crown Prince and Bride Visit Tomb of Unknown Hero After Ceremony.

France, and the military chiefs of Italy.

The royal wedding procession entered the Hall of the Royal Guards, adjoining the Pauline Chapel, at 10:35 a. m., 35 minutes late for the ceremony.

Princess With Her Father.

Princess Marie Jose, accompanied by her father, King Albert of Belgium, came at the head of the royal group, and was followed by Belgian and Italian officers.

Then came Crown Prince Humbert and his mother, Queen Helena of Italy, followed by King Victor Emanuel with Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

The procession passed through a crowd of a thousand guests in the hall of the royal guards. Among them were members of the Italian and Belgian aristocracies, state officials and members of the Diplomatic Corps. The men were in full uniform or full dress, and the women wore gowns in pastel shades, veils and tiaras.

The party then entered the Pauline Chapel where the highest ranking diplomats and the cabinet ministers were waiting for them.

Royalty on Throne Dais.

The King and Queen of Italy ascended a small throne dais on the gospel side of the altar, and the King and Queen of Belgium a similar throne on the epistle side.

Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert knelt on red plush prie-dieux mounted with gold.

Ceremony Is Brief.

The actual marriage ceremony was over almost before the distinguished congregation realized that it had begun.

Cardinal Maffi pronounced the "I join you in matrimony" about five minutes after the couple first knelt before the altar.

In accordance with old custom an ancient rectangular veil 12 feet long was held over the heads of the royal pair by the Count of Turin, the Duke of Abruzzi, the Prince of Undine and the duke of Pistoia, and it was dropped after they had answered "si;" the princess and the crown prince turned to their parents for the final gesture of parental consent before answering "yes."

The Belgian and the Italian sovereigns replied by an inclination of the head.

Princess Wears Cream Velvet.

Then Crown Prince Humbert placed a ring on Marie-Jose's finger, and Cardinal Maffi proceeded to celebrate the mass, for which Pope Pius granted plenary indulgence to all those participating.

At the elevation of the host, trumpets rang out, and drums sounded in accordance with royal ritual.

After the mass the procession moved out of the chapel with the same pagentry and color.

The new crown princess of Italy was dressed in white cream velvet and wore a train bordered with ermine 7 yards long. Crown Prince Humbert was resplendent in the full dress uniform of an infantry colonel and wore the collar of the Annunziata, Italy's highest decoration. The princess's gown reached to her ankles.

Motor to Vatican.

The couple, accompanied by courtiers and by the Italian Ambassador to the Holy See, hastened to enter automobiles for the drive to the Vatican. They were 25 minutes late because of the great crush of people around the Quirinal Palace.

Pope Pius smiled benignly when they were ushered into his presence and dismissed their excuses for tardiness with a gesture.

He presented Crown Prince Humbert with a beautiful tapestry representing Pinturicchio's Madonna, with a frame decorated with the papal triple crown, and the coats of arms of the papacy, the House of Savoy and the Royal House of Belgium. He gave the princess a gold rosary set with precious stones.

Civil Rite Performed.

The religious marriage was accompanied by a civil rite that included the reading of the civil code and the signing of the register by witnesses, who included Cardinal Maffi, the King of Italy and the King of Belgium, President Federzoni of the senate, and Premier Mussolini, as notary of the crown.

The bridal couple before going to the Vatican went out on a balcony of the palace and showed themselves to an enormous crowd below, who cheered wildly.

Their route to the Vatican was lined with other cheering crowds.

Duce Is Saluted.

Premier Mussolini's entrance into the Quirinal with the wedding procession marked an epoch in the social development of fascism. For the first time since his advent to power in 1922 the duce was greeted by royalty and nobility on all sides with the Roman or fascist salute, made with the outstretched right arm. He returned the salute in the same fashion.

Mussolini was dressed in the full uniform of his rank and entered the palace accompanied only by Undersecretary of State Giunta.

He did not take part in the royal section of the procession, where kings and princes gave their arms to queens and princesses, but came immediately after.

Honor Unknown Soldier.

The bridal couple ended the formalities of the day by laying a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They were cheered by a tremendous crowd, which was held back with difficulty by soldiers and police.

Their wedding day was favored by good weather. The sun shone in the morning and the sky was only slightly overcast in the afternoon.

The elaborate police precautions that had been arranged long before the wedding proved to be unnecessary, and there was no attempt at disorder. The princely pair drove to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in an open horsedrawn carriage.

Army Review Scheduled.

The new Princess of Piedmont, Marie Jose, tomorrow will begin her official duties in her new station by witnessing a review of Italy's fighting forces.

Accompanied by her husband, her father, mother and two brothers, and the royal family of Italy, she will go to the former Parioli Race Track, just outside the capital, where 20,000 men of arms, the pick of Italy's contingents, will parade before her, giving the "eyes right" as they pass.

Her husband's own regiment, the 92d Infantry, will be well in the van. It is a command of which the crown prince is extremely proud. Its men come from his native Piedmont, and are hardy mountaineers.

Governor's Fete Tonight.

Tomorrow night the princess and her husband will be the guests of Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, governor of Rome, at a brilliant reception.

On Friday morning the young royal couple will review a procession of Roman school children in the Piazzi Di Siena. In the afternoon the pair will witness a procession of civil authorities from all over Italy. Friday evening the governor of Rome will be their host at a gala performance in the Royal Opera House.

On Saturday they will at last be able to get away from officialdom and start their honeymoon, part of which will be spent in the royal hunting lodge of San Rossore, near Pisa. Some time next week they will make their formal entry into Turin, the prince-bridegroom's city of residence, and former capital of Italian kings. A formidable program of entertainment by the municipality and local nobility awaits them there.

Florida Meeting Draws Coolidge

Former President in South to Attend Insurance Company Convention.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge was here today for the opening of the midwinter convention of the New York Life Insurance Co., but he expects to attend only one business session.

The only part the former President will play in the meeting will be to speak on the economies of life insurance at the evening session tomorrow. His address will be broadcast by radio station WJZ, New York, over a national hookup.

Mr. Coolidge, who is one of the directors of the New York Life Insurance Co., refused to discuss anything political.

"I did not come here to be catechized," he said, "and I do not care to discuss anything pertaining to my future or politics in general."

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will visit with friends in Mount Dora after the convention ends.

Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the company, opened today's initial session of the convention at which general economic problems, and matters of particular interest to the insurance business, will be discussed.

GRAND JURY TO SEE SMITH CO. BOOKS

the grand jury to obtain mail fraud indictments against seven directors of the company, all of whom had been indicted in Washington at the time the firm was moving its headquarters to New York. This move, Mr. Dodds charged, was made to save its books from the Washington grand jury and to escape further investigation there. He charged also that the company defrauded its patrons through misleading statements regarding the value of its securities.

These seven, Mr. Dodds asserted, included Mr. Pitts, Mr. Edwards, Daniel R. Crissinger, former Comptroller of the Currency and former governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Maj. Henry C. Maddux, Samuel J. Henry, president; Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Maryland, chairman of the House District committee, and C Elbert Anadale, vice president.

LONDON CONFEREES DUE TO SAIL TODAY

American Delegation Departs on "George Washington" This Afternoon.

ADAMS LAST TO LEAVE

conference and that of the 1921 Washington disarmament conference are radically different. Then the United States was far ahead of the other nations in battleship strength, and Secretary of State Hughes was able to take a bold lead and state at the outset of the conference just what America would do in the reduction line.

To-day, however, this country is behind Great Britain in battleship and cruiser strength because of failure of the Government and Congress to keep up the ratios agreed at the 1921 conference.

Secretary Stimson therefore can not make such a bold play as did Secretary Hughes.

Task Facing Stimson.

The procedure of Mr. Stimson, who so far has been successful in his method of diplomatic approach, will be to work out by slow, painstaking stages, an agreement which will satisfy each of the five nations—the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy—and will leave none, by harsh or enforced terms, disgruntled.

Good-will will be constantly stressed. Dramatics will be absented from the conference, if Mr. Stimson can have his way.

But behind the scenes will be the realization by the delegates of the five nations to just what a failure of the conference may mean, and the knowledge that if it should come to a showdown race for naval construction, the United States holds the trump card—money.

Much Is at Stake.

Mr. MacDonald heads the delegation of Great Britain. The Premier of France is at the head of the French delegation. A failure of the conference with a resulting costly race in battleship construction, and with a gathering of the clouds of war once more, would be sure to have serious political consequences for the governments concerned with the failure.

It is predicted that the conference will last for close to four months. This means that the more than 100 Americans who sail on the George Washington will not be home until the end of May or early June. The wives of most of the delegates are accompanying them and Secretary Stimson has rented a country house in the London suburbs for a period of months.

On arriving in London, he will confer with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy, chief Italian delegate, and probably with heads of other delegations before the opening session of the parley on January 21.

Hard Named Broadcaster At London Conference

The British Broadcasting Corporation yesterday confirmed to the National Broadcasting Co. that William Hard, Washington newspaper correspondent and broadcaster, had been approved to present to America the story of the five-power naval parley in London through B. B. C. Preceding the speech of King George V at the opening conference, January 21, Mr. Hard will introduce the subject to the American radio audience over the National Broadcasting Co. networks. His voice will come from England by short-wave transmission.

Mr. Hard will sail with American delegates on the George Washington carrying credentials that he would be persona grata as representative of the American radio and liaison between the B. B. C. and the National Broadcasting.

JULIUS ROSENWALD AND WIDOW MARRY

Sears - Roebuck President and Mrs. Goodkind to Go to Mediterranean.

FEW GUESTS SEE RITES

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist and head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Mrs. Adelaide Rau Goodkind, formerly of St. Paul but now also of Chicago, were married today in the suburban home of Lessing J. Rosenwald, one of the Rosenwald sons.

Except Judge Horace Stern, of the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia, who performed the civil marriage ceremony, the only persons present were sons and daughters of the bride and bridegroom. The bride is the mother of one of Mr. Rosenwald's daughters-in-law, Mrs. Lessing J. Rosenwald.

There was little information for the public beyond the bare announcement of the wedding and the names of those present.

Rites at the Meadows.

The home of Lessing Rosenwald, who is head of the Philadelphia branch of the mail order house, is the Meadows, a pretty place in the exclusive York road section in Abington, just north of the Philadelphia County line in Montgomery County.

Mr. Rosenwald and Mrs. Goodkind were overnight guests at the son's home, having come from New York yesterday in a private car. The marriage license was obtained in the Montgomery County Court at Morristown this forenoon. Mr. Rosenwald's age was given as 67 and that of the bride as 60. It was stated that Mr. Rosenwald's wife died in May, last year, and Mrs. Goodkind's husband died in February, 1919.

The utmost simplicity characterized the wedding. It was stated that there were no special decorations of the home and that after the ceremony a breakfast was served at which only the seventeen persons at the wedding were seated at the "T" shaped table.

List of Guests.

The names of those who witnessed the ceremony, given out at the house, were:

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred K. Stern, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Stern, New Orleans; Dr. and Mrs. David Levy, New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Rosenwald, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Lessing J. Rosenwald, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goodkind, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Felsenthal, Chicago.

The two Mrs. Sterns and Mrs. Levy are daughters of Mr. Rosenwald. Mrs. Felsenthal is the other daughter of the bride, and Harold Goodkind is the bride's son.

It was given out that the newly wedded pair would leave immediately on a Mediterranean tour, sailing from New York.

Mrs. Rosenwald was the widow of Benjamin Goodkind, who was before his death associated with the Mannheimer Brothers Department Store in St. Paul, where she was identified with charitable and social movements.

NORTHCUTT VERDICT VEILED IN SECRECY

dent of the Navy, and his discovery in Canada.

While Northcutt awaits official announcement of the outcome of the trial at the Bremerton Navy Yard, his wife and young son are here.

Department of Justice agents were said to have been aided in the quest for Northcutt by a letter written to him by a trained nurse, whom he had met on a visit to his ship at the Brooklyn Navy Yard a year and a half ago.

Mr. Northcutt's family here assisted in the search for him, fearing at first that he had been robbed or injured. He left home at Norfolk, Va., in his automobile, to deliver to University of Virginia authorities funds which he had collected from his students in extension course which he taught.

Two days later the car was found abandoned in Richmond, and his family sought assistance of police. The funds were made good, however, and it is understood that they did not figure in the court-martial trial.

Known as a student of unusual earnestness, Northcutt graduated third in scholastic honors in his class at Annapolis. He thus earned his choice of postgraduate courses, and pursued one of them at Brooklyn. When he completed this course, he selected his Norfolk station. He had been there about a year when he disappeared. He was married four years ago.

A transcript of the record of the proceedings of the trial court, composed of seven naval officers, was received yesterday at the Navy Department. It will be reviewed by Judge Advocate General Sellers, who will pass upon its technical and legal phases, and then it will be submitted to the Bureau of Navigation, and the Secretary.

The Navigation Bureau or the Secretary may lighten a sentence if it sees fit. Penalty may be dismissal or "loss of numbers," or demotion.

the belief that a blood transfusion would strengthen her chance for recovery. Miss Mary Carpenter, a 19-year-old nurse, was selected, and a pint of her blood was drained into Mrs. Martin's arteries. The sacrifice was futile. The aged woman died 15 minutes later, just as a second nurse was being tested for another transfusion.

The aged couple were found by William Herron, from whom they rented rooms, late Tuesday afternoon. Both were unconscious, and first-aid work by the fire rescue squad failed to revive them. The room gave evidence of the fact that the kettle was permitted to boil over while a meal was being prepared. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt will investigate the case today.

Film Plane Crash Cause Not Learned

Picture Firm Manager Says No Stunt Flying Was Asked of Pilots.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Max Golden, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, testifying at a coroner's inquest today into the collision of two motion-picture airplanes over the ocean near Santa Monica, Calif., last Thursday, in which ten persons were killed, testified a private investigation has failed to establish the cause of the tragedy.

Golden said his employes, detailed to make an inquiry, could find no reasons for the crash, and stated the scene which was being photographed at the time called for no exhibitions of daring flying.

The witness, who took the stand after nine relatives of the dead had been called to identify the five bodies recovered, said the flight was made to film a part of the picture, "Why Such Men Are Dangerous," involving a parachute jump.

It has been the theory of aviators that one pilot probably was blinded by the sun and flew into the other ship. Five bodies have not been recovered.

Mother and Child Die As Latter Opens Jets

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Fred Williams, 28, and her 3-year-old son, Richard, were dead today, and a second child, Doris, 5, was near death from gas asphyxiation.

It was believed the deaths were caused when Richard, playing in the kitchen, climbed upon a little wagon and turned on four burners of a new gas range. The wagon, a Christmas present, stood near the stove.

Bull Invades City Hall After Escaping Arena

Salamanca, Spain, Jan. 8 (A.P.). A bull crashed the gate of the arena today, fled to the street and then crashed the door of the city hall.

The bull climbed the winding stairs of the hall and rushed into the assembly room. A doorman who attempted to stop the bellowing intruder was gored.

After smashing mirrors and overturning furniture, the bull returned to the street and charged into a crowd, injuring two persons. A young man climbed a lamp post, drew a razor from his pocket and hurled himself at the animal's throat, killing it.

Art Acord Is Fined $150 on Rum Count

Former Cowboy Film Star, Without Funds, Tries to Raise Money.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Art Acord, former cowboy film star, today was convicted in Municipal Court of charges of possession of liquor and sentenced to pay a fine of $150 or serve fifteen days in jail. Acord offered no defense to the charges; and on his plea that he was "broke and friendless," the court ordered a stay of execution of sentence until tomorrow, when Acord said he might be able to raise the money.

Acord was returned here from Nogales, Ariz. He claimed he had left the city innocently on the assurance of friends that they would arrange for disposition of the charges.

In arresting Acord at Nogales officers were compelled to use force, after the actor attempted to stab one man and escape by leaping from a hotel window.

Girl Pleads Guilty On Check Charges

21-Year-Old Nurse Is Returned to Hospital to Await Sentence.

Ina Rutledge, 21-year-old nurse who is said to admit three aliases, pleaded guilty in Police Court yesterday to eight separate charges under the bad check law and will be sentenced tomorrow.

The young woman, said to have been a former nurse at Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore and wife of a physician, was sent back to Gallinger Hospital for observation following her plea. She is said to have complained that she has appendicitis and physicians are watching for other symptoms.

Detectives Keck and Thompson, who arrested the woman, state that she recently completed a sentence at Baltimore for a similar offense and that they have received information from Maryland authorities that she would feign illness in order to delay court procedure.

Lutheran Heads Adjourn Session

Synod Presidents Fail to Adopt Convention Recommendations.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The meeting of synod presidents of the United Lutheran Church adjourned here today without drafting any recommendations to the biennial convention of the church to be held next October.

One of the prominent subjects to be brought before the conference was a suggestion made by Dr. J. J. Scherer, president of the Virginia Synod, that the supporting subsidies granted by churches to financially limited students for the ministry be withdrawn. There was a general approval of the idea expressed by the other delegates but no formal action was taken.

The synod presidents were advised by Dr. R. H. Gerberding, of Minneapolis, president of the Synod of the Northwest, to take up the question of secular influence on congregations and ministers with the pastors of churches in their own synods.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

AID PLEDGED HOOVER BY WOMEN'S CLUBS

General Federation Board, in Session Here, Praises Naval Cut Idea.

DR. ROWE SPEAKS TODAY

The support of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in promoting reduction and limitation of naval armament was pledged to President Hoover in a resolution passed at the session of the midwinter board meeting of the federation at the national headquarters on N street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the federation, sent the following letter to President Hoover immediately after the adjournment of the board:

"My dear Mr. President:

"The board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in meeting assembled, January 8-10, 1930, wishes to express to you its keen gratification of your active leadership in promoting the coming conference in London called to consider the reduction and limitation of naval armaments.

"Realizing that if definite results are to be attained commensurate with your desires there must be constant pressure of public approval expressed intelligently and enthusiastically, we assure you, Mr. President, that you may depend upon the women of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for such support.

"No group of women more loyally or whole-heartedly aided our Government in the World War than the members of this organization and no group of women will more loyally and whole-heartedly support you and our Government in its constructive work for world peace.

"Cordially yours,

"MRS. JOHN F. SIPPEL,

"President, General Federation of Women's Clubs."

Reviewed by President.

This action was taken by the federation after a conversation held by President Hoover with Mrs. Sippel when he received the members of the board at the White House at 12:20 yesterday.

In the course of his conversation the President said that the time is coming when he will call upon the battalion of women of the General Federation for assistance.

Mrs. Hoover was not well enough to keep her appointment to receive the club women at 1 o'clock, but the President expressed a hope that she would be able to do so later in the week.

Cathedral Service Attended.

Members of the board attended a special service held for them in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral at 5:15 yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington.

In a brief address Dan Bratenahl commended the ideals of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in regard to the community and the home and its work through the Nation. The dean urged his congregation to maintain the spiritual element in all their work.

Before the service many members of the board inspected the crypt chapels and objects of religious devotion and interest in the Cathedral Close, escorted by members of the cathedral clergy staff.

Club Ideals Are Stressed.

In her address at the opening session of the board meeting yesterday morning Mrs. Sippel stressed the necessity of putting the ideals of the clubwomen to practical purposes.

"Our danger lies," she said, "not so much in forgetting that we are a cultural and idealistic body as in failing to keep a clear and vivid distinction between ideals that are unchanging and eternal and the instruments of the idealistic expression which change with the changing order of material achievement. Unless we think through words of wisdom the implements too often slip into the place of the ideals and arrogate to themselves the devotion which belongs only to the ideal.

"We need to be eternally on guard," the president warned, "lest we lose our grip on what is essential in life—on the big ideas toward which all efforts converge."

Accidents in Homes.

Mrs. Sippel reported on the survey being made by the general federation at the request of the Bureau of Standards on accidents in the homes of the Nation.

The Bureau of Standards has requested the clubwomen to aid in determining the main factor responsible for the accidents.

Mrs. John D. Sherman, chairman of the department of the American home, said that the clubwomen in practically every State are continuing their efforts for adequate equipment of every kind—mental and moral, as well as material, for the big job of housekeeping and homemaking. Many communities, she announced, have established Key homes as outlined by the American home department of the federation.

Key Home Described.

The ideal Key home, Mrs. Sherman said, can only be made possible by interesting all groups of the community concerned with any phase of home life. Religion in the home, Mrs. Sherman said, is a subject that is holding the attention of women in all sections of the country.

Mrs. Sheldon L. Tooner, of Auburn, Ala., chairman of the Home Extension Service, stressed the necessity of leisure for women in rural districts to insure them enrichment of their own lives and of the community life.

The far-flung work of the general federation was outlined by Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, of California, secretary of International Clubs, who told of the work the clubs of American women are doing in other countries.

The General Federation at its January, 1929, board meeting voted to undertake a program for securing friendly relations between women of the United States and the women of Central and South America. Most of the report of the Department of International Relations made by the chairman, Mrs. Ben Hooper, was in regard to this movement.

Mrs. Hooper called attention to the fact that the General Federation worked for the ratification of the multilaterial treaty last year and has supported movements toward world peace and understanding.

She also pointed out that the General Federation has expressed itself as being in favor of adequate preparedness until such time as all nations have decided to disarm.

Program for Today Outlined.

A social meeting was held at the headquarters last night with a program of American songs by Miss Matilda Heuser.

This morning the Department of Education, of which Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt is chairman, will present reports. This afternoon has been designated as "play afternoon" and the delegates will attend teas and receptions given for them.

This evening Dr. L. S. Rowe, of the Pan-American Union, will speak, and a musical program will be given by the Bernheimer Trio with Miss Louise Bernheimer, cellist.

TWO ARTISTS WIN PRAISE IN CONCERT

Kochanski and Orloff Are Presented Here by Mrs. Townsend.

BOTH WELL RECEIVED

Paul Kochanski, master violinist, and Nicholai Orloff, Russian pianist, were the joint artists on the program of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's fortieth musical morning at the Mayflower yesterday.

That Kochanski is one of the most promising of the violinists prominent today in the musical world was demonstrated anew in the skill of his gorgeous bowing, his faultless double stopping, harmonics clear, sweet and well-nigh flawless and clear-cut trills, arpeggios and the verve with which he plays. There is no exploitation about Kochanski—he plays simply and naturally and in his solos this spirit was very evident.

In the duet, a "Sonata" by Cesar Franck, both artists sustained the demand upon them by this composition with admirable playing. An ovation was tendered them at the conclusion of the Sonata.

One of the best accepted numbers was "Flight," dedicated to Col. Lindbergh and composed by Mr. Kochanski. This musical interpretation of an airplane rushing through the skies was very effective and realistic.

The delicacy of his interpretation of Chopin's "Fantaisie Impromptu" won the audience for Mr. Orloff at the beginning of the program. He showed spirit and temperament and charm in his playing. He also scored in his presentation of the popular Soiree de Vienne by Schubert.

Both artists presented most versatile programs and displayed finish and understanding of the various composers in their presentations of their works.

The musicians received many encores and responded most graciously to them. Mr. Kochanski was assisted at the piano by Pierre Luboshutz.

By refraining from over-indulgence

You men who would keep trim and fit ... you women who covet the tantalizing curves of the truly modern figure—when tempted to do yourself too well, light a Lucky instead. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DEALING WITH HAITI.

The problem of Haiti engages the attention of Senator Borah. He is not opposed to sending a commission to investigate conditions, but he believes that some things can be done without waiting for the report of a commission. One of these steps, he thinks, should be the appointment of a civilian as high commissioner or governor, and another is the restoration of the voting franchise to the people. Senator Borah holds that they should be permitted to elect their own congress, which in turn is empowered by the constitution to elect a president.

Twelve years ago the Haitian national assembly was dissolved by American authority "by force of arms," according to Senator Borah, and since that time the people have not had a voice in their government. The president is chosen by the council of state, but it is evident that the council acts at the behest of the United States Government.

Haiti was the second of American nations to gain its independence. It has been a republic since 1844, and although subject to revolutions its people at least enjoyed the right to vote. Senator Borah reproaches the United States for failure to assist the Haitians in political affairs or in preparing them for self-government. He asserts that the United States should be ashamed to profess peace and antimilitarism and then be found in the attitude of keeping a military heel upon a helpless people. He adds that this is a question of policy and must be decided by the "Government," apparently meaning the Executive.

The restrictions placed upon the Haitian people seem to be unnecessarily severe. It may be time to recognize their right to elect their own assembly. The last word in governmental affairs must be spoken by the United States, in view of the complications that might arise if an elected president should clash with the American authorities. Nevertheless, a larger share of participation in the government should be given to the people, since Haiti is their own country and all the efforts of the United States are directed toward reestablishment of a government by the Haitians. They will never make progress in the difficult art of self-government unless they are given an opportunity to practice it, at least to some extent. If Liberia can maintain a stable republic there appears to be no reason why Haiti can not do so. Revolution would be impossible with the United States on guard. The political squabbles that might arise between Haitian and American authorities would be comparatively insignificant, since the United States has power under the treaty to make its will effective. If the Haitians are permitted to share in the government they will have some reason to hope for complete restoration of their powers; but if they are denied the right to elect their own assembly they will be resentful of American occupation, even if it builds roads, improves sanitation, establishes schools and promotes agriculture and commerce.

The substitution of a civilian for a military officer as the principal agent of the United States in Haiti would be a move for the better. Enlargement of the elective franchise would help to convince the people that the United States is actually making progress toward the reestablishment of a government by the people.

Senator Borah's suggestions are well worthy of immediate consideration by the President.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

Senator Bingham's resolution, which would authorize the President to appoint a commission to study the Philippine question, provides a means of approaching the question from a practical standpoint.

It is significant that the resolution calls for a conference "on questions affecting the Philippine Islands" rather than on the direct subject of independence. The prevailing sentiment in the United States is that the islands should have their independence, and most reports from the Philippines are to the effect that the natives are overwhelmingly in favor of managing their own affairs. This means little, however, in a factual consideration of the case, because the independence sentiment is idealistic and does not contemplate the economic consequences. The people want to be free and the politicians would relish the added power that separation from the United States would give. But there are growing indications that the Filipinos are not willing to sacrifice their access to American markets, even for independence.

Consideration of the question on the basis of military advantage to the United States runs counter to American tradition. The welfare of the Filipinos themselves should be the hinge on which all future action should turn. But false notions that the welfare of the islands can be served by cutting them loose to drift into chaotic economic conditions and ultimate revolution or foreign subjection should be, once and for all time, cleared out of the way. For the time being, at any rate, the best interests of all lie in the continued guardianship of the United States, with greater participation by the Filipinos in domestic affairs.

There are two ways in which the commission recommended by Senator Bingham could be of great service. First, it could determine and make clear to the Filipino people just what independence from the United States would mean, and observe their reaction. Second, it could point out the course necessary to make independence feasible.

At present the islands are headed toward economic union with the United States. Their development since the war with Spain has been made on the basis of free American trade, which would be closed to them under an independent status. Separation would cut off a large share of the commerce of the archipelago and bring about economic stagnation. The islands have no chance of success as an independent nation unless they have a firm economic foundation to build upon. If it is found to be advantageous to carry out the promise of Congress as expressed in the Jones law, it is imperative that the Philippines go through a period of economic preparation.

AVOIDING A SURPLUS.

The address of James C. Stone, vice chairman of the Federal Farm Board, leaves no doubt as to how the board intends to deal with the problem of agricultural overproduction. Production must be cut down to a level with demands. Mr. Stone considers this an essential part of the Farm Board's program, and no doubt the success of the relief movement will be measured by the results obtained in this direction.

Economic laws can not be put aside in the movement to place agriculture on a par with industry, Mr. Stone said. Agriculture must do what industry is already doing; that is, produce for the available market instead of producing as much as possible and trying in vain to market it. "Cooperative marketing for agriculture corresponds in a large measure to corporations for industry," Mr. Stone concluded, "and neither will succeed unless they are efficiently and honestly managed, with the determination to ask for their produce prices based primarily on the laws of supply and demand."

On this theory the Farm Board is advocating reduction of wheat and cotton acreage this year. Mr. Stone believes the wheat farmers should plant 20 per cent less than they did last year. The plan has met with opposition from some senators who would rather see surplus crops paid for out of Federal revenue, and it would not be surprising to hear demands that the Farm Board "explain its policy to Congress." But the constructive farmers of the country would do well to disregard this and follow the board's advice.

In many cases the arbitrary limitation of supply to increase prices has brought disaster. Notable examples are the failure of the British rubber monopoly and the Brazilian valorization plan for coffee. But since the agricultural cooperatives of this country are a long way from monopoly status, it appears that dangers of this kind are remote if they exist at all. On the other hand, there will be difficulty in persuading the farmers that they ought to limit their crops. The board will no doubt be on guard against too drastic limitation, which would stimulate agricultural production in other countries. The immediate problem is to curtail planting on a scale that will avoid a surplus this fall.

REGULATING AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT.

Col. Leonard P. Ayers, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, says: "The annual slowing down of the automobile industry in the early winter months is probably the greatest single cause of seasonal unemployment in American industry. The making of automobiles is a huge business and a most volatile one. Its rate of output during the spring months is frequently twice as great as that of December or January, and the swing from high to low in 1929 has not been far from four to one. The industry employs hundreds of thousands of workers, and in addition it is the most important customer of a long list of other industries."

The winter months are undoubtedly the hardest ones for the unemployed to endure, as warm clothing and fuel are extra items. If the automobile industry would endeavor to produce an equal number of cars for each of the twelve months of the year instead of having a production of twice as many cars in the spring as in the winter, a balanced production would certainly result in a standard and continual roster of employes in this major industry. Also the industries which are largely dependent upon the automobile manufacturers for their sales would remain unchanged throughout the year.

To obtain this end it would be necessary for the automobile executives to cooperate in the even distribution of manufacturing their products and also to cease producing new models of cars each year. However, this would result in the building up of inventories of finished cars and parts, which would present some difficulty. Such a problem might be overcome by cooperation. A large car inventory carries with it the possibility of competitors introducing a new model which will cause a reduction in price of the cars already built; hence the need of elimination of the new yearly model. Col. Ayers says: "Nevertheless, it is probable that the abolition of annual style changes and consequently the abolition of automobile shows would be steps toward the stabilization of automobile production, and that is about the most important need of American industry at this time."

This advice for a change in the mass method of production of automobiles might be taken into consideration by the conference of business leaders. With unemployment still in evidence throughout the Nation, the change might be tested and adopted if it proves beneficial to the producers as well as the employes and the nation at large.

CRIMINALS AND MOTOR CARS.

Gov. Frank G. Allen, of Massachusetts, has recommended to the State legislature the enactment of a law to forbid issuance of a license to operate an automobile to any person who has been convicted of more than one felony. It is not clear that such a law would be useful. A criminal would have a right to license a car unless he had been twice convicted of a felony. Automobiles could still be operated by criminals clever enough to escape punishment. The methods of evading such a law would be innumerable, and the resulting confusion in the issuances of licenses might easily hinder the tracing of racketeers who use automobiles in their trade.

Men who are in the habit of robbing banks do not hesitate to steal automobiles. Indeed, a large percentage of crime is committed with the aid of stolen automobiles.

What Gov. Allen desires is to keep automobiles out of the hands of criminals. That would be a good thing if it could be accomplished. The importance of the automobile in crime can hardly be overestimated. Detection has become extremely difficult because of the speed with which a criminal can move from the scene of crime. The problem of gang murders is hopelessly complicated by the practice of taking the victim "for a ride." Machine gun attacks are only possible through use of the automobile. The modern criminal would be crippled if some practical way of keeping automobiles out of his reach could be found. But at present there seems to be no more hope for making the gangster a pedestrian than there is for disarming him.

THE PRICE OF SILVER

From the New York Times.

It often happens, after a world-wide financial shock, that attention is suddenly diverted to a market which few had been watching. Business communities which had centered interest on the vagaries of the stock exchange have this time discovered all at once that the fall in the price of silver bullion since last October has in some respects been the most striking of all. Until nearly the end of December, silver had not gone so low at London as in several other older periods of decline—in 1903 or 1915, for instance. But the market's downward course has brought this week's price well below any touched in the silver market's history for a century past. Within two months it has fallen 1⅜ pence per pound, or nearly 7 per cent; in the last twelve months it has declined 5⅞ pence, or 22 per cent.

Four or five decades ago a rapid fall in silver used to be discussed for its bearing on the question of the "money supply" in relation to ordinary prices; particularly on the "gold appreciation" theory, which was alleged to be established by the depreciation of silver bullion in terms of gold. In the days of free silver coinage agitation, during and before 1896, these were cardinal principles of American party platforms, which usually urged legislative measures designed to restore the price of silver. That was partly because of the "money-supply" contention, partly to help the American mining industry. Those days are gone, however. During more than a quarter of a century markets and legislators alike have recognized that silver must now be regarded as one of the commodities, even though continued use of it for subsidiary currency in gold-standard countries and as the standard of value in a few backward communities imparts peculiar opportunities to its consuming market.

The idea that silver's price moves up or down solely according as the world's gold production increases or decreases is not often set forth nowadays. The world's output of gold decreased progressively and rather rapidly during the three years after the war. Yet silver, instead of falling in gold value, rose from 47¾ pence in March of 1919 to 89½ in February of 1920, then broke to 30⅝ in March of 1921.

Prices of commodities in general have declined since September. But their decline has been marked by no such rapidity as that of silver, and certainly by no such breaking of previous "low records;" therefore the present fall in silver must apparently have had peculiar causes of its own. They are not difficult to discover; indeed, there is some reason for surprise that they did not operate earlier. Increased production may have had a hand in it; for, although silver mines in the United States have decreased their output during recent years, the world's annual output as estimated by our mint has been the largest in history—nearly 50 per cent greater in 1928 than in 1920. That increase in annual supply has occurred in the face of a decrease in normal annual demand.

RECKLESS DRIVERS.

"The drunken drivers who were apprehended in Connecticut spent 75 years in jail during 1928. They paid in fines enough to buy 200 average-priced cars. Nearly 1,700 of them had their licenses suspended for various periods."

That extract from a report of the Connecticut commissioner of motor vehicles is suggestive of the effective warfare that is being made upon the outstanding menace in present-day traffic. It is indicative of the aroused public sentiment that is using the force of law for protection against recklessness in the handling of vehicles. Connecticut's ability to go about the business with a certainty in results was aided by the drivers' license system, according to the Kansas City Times. Taking vehicles out of the hands of hundreds of drivers who are so irresponsible as to attempt to mix liquor with operation of the machines, and using the same method against other forms of recklessness, will be bound, in a reasonable time, to increase materially the safety on the streets and highways of any community or State.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

IN DEFENSE OF CHILDHOOD.

"Oh, Janet, why do you race and shout?
Why do you drag all the chairs about?"
And I answer the mother: "Have you forgot
You were like that, as a little tot?

"When you were seven and a half years old,
Often your mother was moved to scold,
Often your mother was heard to say:
'Will you ever be ladylike, tell me, pray?'"

Mothers and grandmothers sip their tea
And are just as proper as they can be,
And no doubt Janet at thirty-five
Will be the properest dame alive.

But seven-year-olds will race about
And leave the dresser drawers all pulled out,
But with all of their racket and noise and fuss,
You wouldn't want children to be like us.

To Boast of a Daily Bath Is to Confess the Habit Is New.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"WILLIE JONES," says the teacher, "who discovered America?" Poor Willie, frightened and miserable, gropes among his scattered wits for some answer that will save him from ridicule and disgrace.

"Moses," he suggests hopefully.

At once the class is in an uproar. There are amused giggles and shouts of derision. Hands are raised in eloquent appeal for a hearing. Bobby Brown rises from his seat and snaps his fingers to attract attention.

"Very well, Bobby," says the teacher, "you may tell us."

And Bobby shouts the correct answer joyously and triumphantly. His happiness is complete.

Why? Because he is given opportunity to display his learning, and because his superior knowledge publicly humiliates a rival.

When Bobby is older and knows enough to realize how little he knows he will not be so eager to display his knowledge and feed his vanity at the expense of somebody else; but now he knows very, very little and it is his ignorance that makes him perform as he does.

The merchant who has a very small stock must keep most of it in the show window to attract attention and make a good impression. The farm boy denied opportunity to discover how large the world is will boast of his trip to the county seat. And the backwoods illiterate, ignorant of higher standards, will think himself the peer of earth's greatest men because he can jump farther than any rival in the community.

The ignorant seize every opportunity to display their little store of knowledge and life offers them no greater pleasure than the opportunity to correct and humiliate one of their fellows.

"Are you that ignorant?" they cry gleefully. "Why, any fool knows better than that." And when they have enjoyed their triumph to the fullest they treasure the memory of it and retell the story as proof of their superior wit.

It is not rudeness alone that prompts a boor to correct every trivial mistake made in his presence. It is chiefly his pride in knowledge—and invariably it is like the small boy's pride in his ability to divide twelve by four. The poverty of his knowledge makes the achievement seem great.

The eagerness to correct others is a confession.

The one who volunteers to settle an argument about Paris is the tourist who spent three days there—not the buyer who crosses twice a year.

GOOD TURN WEEK.

As this is being written, says the Toledo Blade, the driver of an interurban bus stops his vehicle in the middle of the street and hops out, scoop shovel in hand, to dig out an automobile stalled in the snow, but which is in no way obstructing the progress of the bus. While the bus driver does his voluntary and uncompensated good turn, a truck is backed up against a horse-drawn lumber wagon to lend added power for an up-grade pull against deep-drifted snow.

"How much?"

"Aw, that don't cost you nothing."

Street-level language. The syntax is bad, but it makes articulate perfectly the spirit of good-turn week in Toledo which began with the great snowfall last Wednesday.

Thousands of helping hands of strangers have been held out during the last few days to thousands of motorists whose traffic troubles ranged from the trifling and temporary to the exceedingly serious.

The Boy Scout daily rule of conduct is adopted by the big brother scouts in the emergency situation.

Not the least of the bad weather compensations is this general manifestation of helpfulness and good will in this holiday season.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Public Opinion Supports Principle of Baumes Law, Giving Life Imprisonment to Habitual Criminals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "The Baumes penal laws come in for a raking by a number of leading penologists and prison wardens," says The Post summary of a sitting of the administration's Law Enforcement Commission to find out what is wrong with present prison management and to provide against prison outbreaks.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, said that "take away the last ray of hope of prisoners is a serious thing to do;" laws that are too stringent have made life and long-term prisoners desperate.

This view, which is shared by many well-meaning humanitarians, would be more impressive if it could be shown that these desperate prisoners were not desperadoes before their imprisonment.

Modern prison reform, which aims at the improvement of prison conditions beyond that already accomplished, is heartily indorsed by public opinion. But, at the "same time, I think it is safe to say that public opinion to a very great extent indorses the Baumes law with its provision that habitual felons shall be imprisoned for life. Whether four convictions, or more or less than four convictions, should be the statutory measure of habitual criminality, may be an open question. But in my view the soundness of the idea behind the Baumes law is self-evident.

PENOLOGIST.

If Washington Police Are to Become Dry Sleuths the Force Should Be Doubled.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From The Post's news article (January 4) concerning Attorney General Mitchell's recommendations for a "drier District," I clip:

"The chief feature of the prohibition bill, which was drafted by Senator Howell, of Nebraska, an ardent dry, would be to extend to all policemen of the District authority to cooperate in prohibition enforcement, and to reenact certain parts of the old Sheppard law. At present only a small number of policemen are available for dry law work."

If the cooperation applied merely to such activities as the making of arrests, well and good.

But the Federal dry force would be inclined to go much beyond the intent of the lawmakers, and it would not be long before the District police would be devoting a very great portion of their time to the dry specialty of sleuthing.

Thus, with our entire police force intensively interested in the catching of bootleggers, fully cooperating "in prohibition enforcement," the enforcement of other laws would weaken.

I would like to see the prohibition law enforced—thoroughly enforced. Therefore, as a willing taxpayer, I hope the Howell bill will pass, with this provision: That the present police force of the District be doubled to meet the demands of the impending situation.

Do Away With Fiction in Libraries, Says Bookworm, And Censorship Settles Itself.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In re the attack by Senator Blease on bad books let me suggest that the best way to settle the matter so far as the Public Library is concerned will be to exclude all fiction therefrom. Today any one can at small expense buy as much fiction, good or bad, as is good for his or her health. So its absence from the library shelves will not work a grievous wrong to the literati of National Capital.

Relieve the library from the distribution of "story books" and its usefulness as an educational institution will be enhanced. And besides, since libidinous literature comes mostly in the shape of fiction, its elimination will save much wear and tear of censorship.

BOOKWORM.

Hard-Boiled Convicts Who Lead Prison Breaks Should Be Segregated.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My suggestion to the President's Law Enforcement Commission, relative to the prevention of prison outbreaks, is that dangerous prisoners be placed in a ward, or wards, by themselves. In the recent outbreaks the other prisoners have been led or driven like sheep by not more than a half-dozen or so ringleaders with a penchant for bumping people off. So that, guided by the records at their command, it should be easy for the prison authorities to found up those among their charges who are homicidally handy with a gun or other lethal weapon. I am for the segregation of the hard-boiled, strong-armed guy with the gat, in jail or out.

Did the Maoris Originate in Alaska?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Maoris arrived in New Zealand hundreds of years ago, in six canoes, but no one knows definitely where they came from. Did they come from North Alaska? The natives there rub noses as a greeting, which is also the Maori greeting.

If any reader is interested he will find a Maori dictionary in the Senate Library, in Washington (as I sent a copy there years ago). He could compare Maori words with Esquimaux and Alaskan words. No doubt the Minister for Native Affairs at Juneau, Alaska, Honolulu and Wellington, New Zealand, would aid with literature.

LEADERS OF PARLEY HURRY TO END WORK

Steps Considered in Event Germany Defaults in Her Payments.

FEW QUESTIONS REMAIN

The Hague, Netherlands, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Premier Tardieu, chief of the French delegation to the second reparations conference, said tonight that the leaders of the delegations still hoped to end their work by the beginning of next week.

There remain several questions, including that of sanctions, or measures to be taken in the event that Germany should default in her payments, and the date of the payment of monthly installments on the reparations account. These questions, however, are being worked upon constantly, and it is expected they will be ready for final decision before Wednesday next.

The French delegation today sent to the Germans a document summing up the negotiations thus far with a summary of the French arguments concerning sanctions. It is understood the French have entirely abandoned the idea of a military reoccupation of German territory in case of a German default, and have proposed a system of references to intermediaries finally going to the international court in case a decision can not be obtained elsewhere.

The question of commercialization of the unconditional annuities is being considered in private conversations concerning which the delegates have observed the greatest discretion. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that this question will not come to a head until after Jackson Reynolds, M. A. Traylor, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and the other bankers who drew up the plan for the International Bank have conferred here beginning Monday.

Premier Tardieu is going to Paris in any case on Tuesday next for the reopening of Parliament. His subsequent movements will depend on developments. He is supposed to meet Secretary of State Stimson before the London conference, but final details remain to be fixed.

There was somewhat of a flurry in conference circles today between the French and German delegations. Premier Tardieu in a declaration to the French press last evening repeated what he had said at a meeting to the effect that the Germans, by raising repeated objections on account of the difficulty of getting their decisions approved in Berlin, had showed a lack of confidence in themselves and asked how they in consequence could ask their creditors to have confidence in them.

This declaration was spread around in distorted versions and provoked a demand by the German delegation for an explanation. The situation was quickly cleared up when this was given.

Women Attain Equality In Business, Is Claim

Mrs. Stephen Pell, of New York, speaking yesterday over a Nation-wide radio hook-up, declared that women have swept away social, political and economic barriers they formerly encountered because of their sex, and are rapidly gaining equality with men. Particularly stressing economic advance, Mrs. Pell said there are now in this country over 3,000 women lawyers, 6,000 women bankers, brokers, building and loan officers and insurance company officers, over 13,000 women managers and manufacturing officers, 5 women bank presidents, 2 women railroad presidents, and nearly 200,000 women who own and manage their own farms.

Mrs. Pell, who is a member of the National Council of the Woman's Party, spoke on the program broadcast over a coast-to-coast network scheduled every week by the National Woman's Party, dealing with the activities of women.

Cleveland Strike Agreement Signed

1,500 Garment Workers Who Walked Out Expected to Return Monday.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—More than 1,500 of the 2,000 strikers in the Cleveland garment industry walkout are expected to return to work next Monday.

Officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and representatives of the closed shop manufacturers signed a tentative agreement for cessation of the strike late today after a three-hour session.

Only the union shops are affected by the agreement and the strike of the 500 workers employed by non-union plants will continue in full force, union officers said.

The strike-breaking agreement, details of which were not made public, will be presented to the union membership for ratification Friday afternoon. If accepted the terms of the agreement will be given out.

The strikers demand a 40-hour week instead of a 44-hour week, guarantee of wages from contract garment firms, elimination of all sweat shop conditions and assistance of manufacturers to prevent establishment of garment plants in towns near Cleveland.

As far as could be learned, no negotiations with the open shops are under way. Picketing at these shops will be continued, union officers said.

Tellez Called In For Inauguration

No Mystery Seen Here in Mexico City Summons to Ambassador.

Mexico City, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The foreign department announced tonight it had called Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez to Mexico City from Washington and that he was expected here in the latter half of January. First Secretary Pablo Campos Ortiz will remain as charge d'affaires of the embassy.

The department spokesman declined to amplify the statement, tell whether the recall was temporary or permanent or why the ambassador had been summoned.

Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez of Mexico will go to the capital of his country next week to be present at the inauguration, February 5, of Pascual Ortiz Rubio as president.

The ambassador made arrangements for the forthcoming trip some three months ago, and diplomatic circles see no mystery concerning the reason of his departure.

Since the ambassador stands high in the ranks of the national revolutionary party and, therefore, will become dean of the Diplomatic Corps at Washington next month, there is not even a shadow of rumor in the capital that his trip concerns anything more than the inauguration.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE complicated situation in the Senate is undoubtedly what is holding up President Hoover's legislation on happiness. It was one of his major promises of the campaign.

There is absolutely no reason to believe that he has forgotten the pledge. It is simply that the present is not considered the proper time to submit his plan.

It is not a case either of his party in the Senate being against him on this matter. There is, however, a sincere difference of opinion as to whether the Western or the Eastern brand of happiness would be better for the country.

* * * *

As to which brand the President prefers there is considerable doubt. He is known to favor a happiness that will protect both the producer and the consumer, but he has not disclosed even to his most intimate friends his preference as between the Eastern and Western brands.

There is no sincere ground for criticism in this state of affairs. Happiness is not something that can be worked out by the mere saying of the word. It calls for the best minds of the Republican party.

The President was sincere when he promised it and those who say the senators are simply diabolical when they will not coperate with him are blind to the facts.

* * * *

ASIDE from this difference of opinion between the Western and Eastern groups of the party, there is the serious question of whether the happiness legislation should provide for compulsory happiness, or merely provide the way for voluntary happiness.

Prohibition has afforded a lesson for many of the senators. As soon as it was declared to be the law of the land there were thousands who had never imbibed before who began violating this inhibition.

Now the question arises: If happiness is forced upon the people will there not be the same situation? Undoubtedly there are millions of Americans who sincerely want to be happy and if some voluntary way is worked out by which they can be so they would quite probably avail themselves of the opportunity.

* * * *

BUT try to enforce happiness, make happiness mandatory, and if prohibition has taught us anything, it is that the country would have to be littered with happiness agents to make people abide by the happiness law.

This brief discussion is simply to remind those critics, those who are always finding fault, that this happiness pledge of the administration needs time to be worked out.

It will require the earnest and best thought of the progressives and the regulars when they are not seeing so red. For the President to present the problem to them now would result in the country getting but a patchwork of happiness, if that.

It may, indeed, be that the matter will have to be turned over to a National Happiness Commission.

$30,000,000 SET-UP FOR COTTON READY

Farm Board Project Ready for Business Monday, Williams Says.

LEGGE URGES SUPPORT

New Orleans, La., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Carl Williams, member of the Federal Farm Board, told a meeting of New Orleans business men today that the $30,000,000 National Cotton Corporation would be ready to do business next Monday, but failed to disclose where headquarters would be located. Mr. Williams said the charter for organization of the corporation would be filed Saturday.

"The $30,000,000 Cotton Corporation is well on its way to functioning," he said. "It will start with a million bales of cotton, unlimited Government credit and with all the means to buy and sell enjoyed by any cotton merchant. It means an entirely new factor in the cotton business."

He was accompanied by Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, who urged New Orleans business men to support the board in its efforts to aid cotton planters regardless of where the corporation's headquarters was located.

Several cities, including New Orleans, Memphis and Dallas, have been striving to get the headquarters.

Chairman Legge said the cotton farmer was faced with the problem of the market going down and production going up. The board, he said, plans to work with the farmer for smaller production and better quality.

Replying to the statement of Alfred Danziger, president of the Association of Commerce, that New Orleans hoped to get the headquarters, Mr. Legge advised those present not to be disturbed over the location of the headquarters. New Orleans and Louisiana, Mr. Danziger said, were in the position of having spent money on wharves, warehouses and canals and were anxious for the business to come to the port.

"There is no trouble in finding money to move cotton," the chairman said. "New Orleans has the facilities to handle it.

"Regardless of where the headquarters may be located, the commodity itself must move through some port."

Sir Esme Howard To Speak on Radio

British Envoy Will Open Series of Good-Will Broadcasts.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, will inaugurate a new series of international good will broadcasts over the Columbia Broadcasting System on January 21, his ten-minute address to the peoples of this continent being timed with the opening of the naval conference in London.

The series will continue for more than a year, with 55 ambassadors and ministers of foreign nations speaking for a short period following a 45-minute program of music typical of the respective countries. The hour for this feature is 7 to 8 o'clock, Eastern standard time, and has been relinquished each Tuesday evening by the Carborundum Co.

Ambassador Howard was selected to lead off in the series because he is dean of the Diplomatic Corps in Washington and because he is concluding a five-year term of service in the United States, so that his talk from the old British Embassy building, 1300 Connecticut avenue, will be in the nature of a farewell to the people of the United States and Canada.

Highest Italian Honor for Maffi

Order of Annunziata Is Conferred on Prelate by Monarch.

Rome, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—For the first time since the fall of temporal power of the Pope, the highest rang in the kingdom of Italy, the collar of the Order of Annunziata, today was conferred on a prelate of the Catholic Church.

King Victor Emmanuel conferred the decoration on Cardinal Maffi, who celebrated the wedding of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium. The former cardinals of Milan and Turin who had received the order before 1870 continued to hold it, but after their deaths no other churchman was so decorated.

King Albert of Belgium conferred on the cardinal the grand cordon of the Order of Leopold II.

AMENDMENT AIMED AT MERGER CONTROL

Provision Would Have I.C.C. Fix Rate Values Before Approving Combines.

SPONSORED BY PITTMAN

(Associated Press.)

A new proposal, affecting valuations where tremendous mergers are concerned, yesterday emerged from the hearing by the Senate interstate commerce committee on the Couzens bill looking toward consolidation of communication systems.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, announced that he would offer an amendment to the pending bill allowing railroad consolidations. It will seek to stipulate that the Interstate Commerce Commission must fix values for rate-making purposes before it could approve any proposed merger.

The Nevadan divulged that he would offer a similar amendment to the Couzens bill to fix in advance, for purposes of rate-making, the valuations of radio, telegraph and cable companies which sought to merge.

To Eliminate Litigation.

Describing his proposal as "revolutionary," Pittman—a member of the committee—said it would eliminate litigation and disputes by fixing valuations indisputably and definitely before the merger could go into operation.

"I can see no other way in settling the valuation problem," he added.

The Nevada senator's statement followed testimony by Ellery W. Stone, president of the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co., who opposed mergers of radio and cable companies.

In a long-preparred statement, Stone expressed particular objection to the proposed consolidation of the Radio Corporation of America and the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., which both companies have asked Congress to approve.

Against Public Interest.

He said the proposal struck at the "very heart of radio communication and is distinctly against the public interest."

At the conclusion of Stone's testimony, Chairman Couzens announced that Joseph B. Eastman, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, would appear today.

Discussing the proposed merger, Stone asserted that the radio corporation would make about $85,000,000 by the consolidation. He argued that "does not offer much hope for the promised economies of operation."

Like Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Co., who testified Tuesday, Stone derided as a "bugaboo" the previous testimony of Owen D. Young, president of the radio corporation, that his concern was menaced in the international field by the British wireless-cable monopoly.

Stone approved creation of a new communications commission, proposed in the radio bill, and said there was a definite need for a transfer to it of the present regulatory powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Former Soviet Envo Sentenced to 10 Years

Moscow, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—M. Bessedovsky, former charge d'affaires of the Soviet Embassy at Paris, today was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment after conviction of embezzlement of funds of the embassy. Bessedovsky, however, is still in France so that the sentence would appear to have no other effect than to exile him.

The public prosecutor decided to investigate further allegations that Bessedovsky had indulged in treasonable activities against the Soviet government and may present charges on this score to a court later, in which case death doubtless would be the penalty. Bessedovsky ignored an invitation of the Soviet government to send a lawyer from Paris to defend him in the trial today.

Mexican Army Honors Calles With Banquet

Mexico City, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The army paid homage today to former President Plutarco Elias Calles, who commanded it in its successful campaign against the rebellion last spring. The banquet at Valbuena Park was attended by President Portes Gil, the entire cabinet, members of the permanent congressional commission and nearly 2,000 others.

Undersecreatry of War Matias Ramos, speaking for the army, said that the military forces of Mexico recognized Gen. Calles as a chief who will always indicate to them "the path of honor and duty." He praised the former president as a brave leader willing to risk his life in defense of democratic government.

EIELSON SEARCHERS BALKED BY WEATHER

Wind, Fog and Lower Mercury Hold All Planes in Arctic on Ground.

DOG TEAMS ARE MISSING

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Wind, fog, and thawing weather combined today to hold at a standstill all search for Capt. Pat Reid, William Hughes and Jim Hutchinson, as well as Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing in the storm-swept wastes of the Arctic.

At Nulato, a wireless station in the Yukon, about 290 miles west of here, Matt Niemenen, with one of the cabin planes sent to Alaska to search for Mr. Eielson and Mr. Borland between Teller and North Cape, Siberia, was held to the ground by bad weather.

Capt. H. A. Oakes and Gifford Swartman, who plan to search for Reid and his companions, who disappeared Saturday while attempting to reach Nome from here, were powerless to pierce the fog and wind to determine the Candian's fate.

Warm Wave Thaws Ice.

Wind howling along at 50 miles an hour swept over the Nulato planes and on to Fairbanks in a warm wave that was thawing the ice and snow of the region. At Nome a 40-mile-an-hour wind hurled a wild snowatorm over the city, keeping Frank Dorbandt, who left there Sunday to search for Reid, at Solomon, but a short distance away.

Mr. Dorbandt scouted the Norton Bay region Sunday, but was forced to land at Solomon because of fog.

At Teller and aboard the Nanunk, the ice-bound fur-trading vessel, where Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam are awaiting fair weather to continue their search for Mr. Eielson and Mr. Borland, the storm kept them inside. Their planes were useless before the gale.

Dog teams sent out from the ship had not reported and fear was felt that they had been caught in the swirling snow and lost. Searchers were to go out for them as soon as possible.

(Associated Press.)

Representatives of the Interior Department, interested in pressing the search for Carl Ben Eielson in Siberia, conferred yesterday with F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War, and were told that the Army planes equipped with skis which are to fly from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Spokane, were not suitable for the Arctic search.

Northcutt Ely, Assistant Executive Secretary of the Interior, said the War Department had tried to make its planes available for the search, but because those equipped with skis have water cooled motors, and do not have a long cruising radius, they could not be used in the Arctic.

Four British Fliers Die In Midair Collision

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The British air ministry announced today that four members of the royal air force had been killed at Abu Suelr, Egypt in a collision of two airplanes in midair.

The officers who were piloting the machines were Flight Lieutenant Richard S. Greenslade and Flying Officer Charles E. Galpin. The two other victims were noncommissioned men. Today's crash was the first fatal one in the royal air force this year. Last year there were 42 deaths in the royal air force in flying accidents.

Order to Deport Prince Held Error

Cortes Descendant Denies Having Sold Bulk of Archives.

Mexico City, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Antonio Aragon Cortes, Prince of Pignatelli, today said that he had not yet been notified officially of the deportation order against him announced by the government last night.

He said that he believed the misunderstanding over certain documents concerning his ancestor, Hernando Cortes, Spanish conqueror of Mexico, which he had presented the Mexican government, would be cleared up. He denied the bulk of the documents had been sold in the United States and said "not one-half of 1 per cent of the immense volume of Cortes archives has ever gone out of my possession."

The government, in explaining its order for deportation of the prince as a "pernicious foreigner," had said it considered the Cortes records the property of the nation rather than that of the Italian family which was the heir of the conqueror.

SENATE APPROVES RAYON DUTY RAISES

Work on Section Is Nearly Completed; Yarns Draw Wheeler Protest.

CALLS RATES "SCANDAL"

(Associated Press.)

Further increases in rayon tariffs were approved yesterday by the Senate during an all-day session devoted exclusively to this fast-growing industry.

With the exception of the first paragraph in the new schedule, approved Tuesday, but reconsidered yesterday and deferred for final action until new import statistics are received, work on committee amendments to the rayon section was completed.

Another controversy then began over whether the papers and books schedule, which follows rayon in the bill, or the highly disputed sugar duties, should be taken up today. That was unsettled when the Senate adjourned.

No Record Vote Required.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, said the sugar rates had been deferred long enough and asked that they should be disposed of immediately. Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, however, asked that they go over until Monday and made a motion to that effect, but Smoot prevailed upon him to postpone offering it until today.

Not a single record vote was required yesterday, despite a severe assault on the proposed increases by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, who cited Treasury income tax figures to show that 70 per cent of the American rayon mills were foreign controlled and were making millions in profits while paying their workers "pitiable pittances" for wages.

Yarn Duty Called "Scandal."

It was at Wheeler's suggestion that the Senate reconsidered its action of yesterday in approving slight increases in duties on single and plied yarns not specially provided for. He wanted particularly to eliminate the proposed 45 cents a pound minimum rate on these yarns, but agreed at the request of Smoot that a final vote be deferred until the Tariff Commission could produce figures on recent imports.

The Montanan described the minimum duty as "little less than a scandal" and said it was equivalent to an ad valorem of between 60 and 112 per cent. The ad valorem rates in the bill on these yarns are 45 and 50 per cent, depending on weight.

Wheeler read from tax data showing the American Viscose Co., a subsidiary in this country of a British concern, had earned net profits of $27,609,050 in 1926, or 55 per cent of its gross sales; $29,051,180 in 1927, or 43 per cent and $31,645,901 in 1928 or 46 per cent.

"I don't know how much this concern paid to the Republican party," Wheeler said, "but if this tariff goes through they will get back every cent ever paid into the Republican coffers and much more besides."

Trapper's Wife Said To Be German Countess

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A trapper's wife whose husband has been missing nearly two months in wild country about 100 miles inland from here was declared in a copyrighted article in the Vancouver Sun today to be the former Marta von Mecklenburg, a German countess in her own right and distant relative of the former Kaiser.

The paper said she is a descendant of the grand Duke of Mecklenburg but prefers to be known as Mrs. Marcus Cox. She came to America 14 years ago and married Cox, a native of Western Canada.

WHO'ZAT?

1. He was a famous character of antiquity whose exploits form the theme of one of the works ascribed to Homer.
2. He took part in one of the famous sieges of ancient history.
3. After this siege he started home but, according to legends, he was detained on the way by a variety of marvelous adventures and did not reach home until twenty years had passed.
4. His name formed part of the name of a famous American general during the Civil War.

THEY INSTRUCT SENATORS

Ruth Peterson, left, of New York, and Evelina K. Southworth, of New Orleans, qualified experts and textile advisers, yesterday attained the distinction of being the first women, other than members of that body, to be admitted to the Senate chamber. They are experts on rayon, a silk substitute, and they were called in to give information to senators when the rayon section was reached in the tariff bill.

plauded the prohibition killings in the House Tuesday."

Beedy added a new verse to the prohibition "scripture," Schafer said, when he explained that Coast Guards had drunk some of the confiscated liquor after working for hours in water to their knees in bitter cold weather.

Bible Again Quoted.

The verse Beedy added, Schafer said, reads:

"Red blooded gobs take a little drink of confiscated liquor on a cold December night for the sake of thy stomach and knees."

"I sincerely hope," the Wisconsin wet concluded, "that the day is not far off when the disciples of Volstead will extend their creed and advocate 'Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities.' (I Timothy v. 25.)"

Schafer has been given permission to address the House for an hour tomorrow on prohibition.

The question has been thrust to the forefront of late by differences over enforcement among drys in Congress. A number of the House wets are expected to meet today to discuss their plans toward attempting to secure modification of the Volstead act.

Meanwhile the report promised by the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission is awaited.

Chairman Wickersham of that group has indicated that it would have something to say about its conclusions within a day or so, but nothing in that connection was forthcoming yesterday.

Chinese Naval Chief And Five Are Kidnaped

Foochow, China, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Yang Shu Chang, commander of the Chinese navy, and five members of the Fukien provincial government, were kidnaped at an official dinner last night by a gang of bandits.

The bandits entered the dining room and held up the guests with revolvers. Yang was seized and bound. He is believed to be still in Foochow, but the other five have been taken up the Minkiang to the bandit stronghold.

MACHINERY INROADS STIR GREEN'S FEARS

Displacement of Laborers Major Problem of Unions, A. F. of L. Board Told.

TALKIE MUSIC IS CITED

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Unemployment and displacement of labor by mechanical devices are the two greatest problems confronting the American Federation of Labor.

President William Green today told the executive committee of the federation that the Nation's 3,000,000 unemployed presented a problem equaled in acuteness only by the displacement of workmen by machinery.

While expressing grave concern at the inroads "talkie music" has made in the ranks of theater musicians, President Green deplored also the fact that such music "is tending to curb the development of artists."

The labor chieftain said a remedy for the unemployment situation will be sought through a census and survey of conditions at the same time that the national census is being made.

Blames Market Crash.

"There are different kinds and characteristics of unemployment," he said. "The principal one resulted from the downward economic cycle which followed the recent stock market crash.

"Then there is the seasonal unemployment, found in industries like ladies' garment workers, automobiles and luxuries, and what we call technological unemployment, such as the displacement of men by machines.

"Remedies for all of these must be found. The talkie music has presented a situation of grave concern and has been a big blow to theater artists. Perhaps it will tend to curb their development, but I hope not."

May Talk Mill Strike.

President Green said the textile strike in the Carolinas probably would come up for discussion by the council, although he said the matter had been gone into thoroughly at a recent meeting in Charlotte.

Today's meeting of the council was brief. A program of all-day sessions for the remaining days was mapped out by President Green, Secretary Morrison and the eight vice presidents.

World peace, policies of administration, legislative program, child labor and other matters also will be discussed at the sessions, President Green said.

He will take for his sermon topic, "A Test of Jewish Character." Services at the Sixth Street Synagogue have been conducted throughout the winter by a series guest rabbis.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Missions Here Fete Wedding Of Royal Pair

Ambassadors of Belgium and Italy Are Hosts at Observances.

By JEAN ELIOT.

CELEBRATING the marriage of H. R. H. Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, and H. R. H. Umberto, Prince of Piedmont, two brilliant embassy fetes were given last night. The Italian Ambassador and Nobil Donna Antonietta de Martino were hosts at a reception and ball attended by over 400 guests, including Vice President Curtis, the Cabinet group, heads of foreign missions, with the ladies of their families, and many guests from resident society. Dancing, with many pretty girls as partners for the junior diplomats, followed the formal reception.

The Belgian Ambassador, Prince Albert de Ligne, gave a dinner earlier in the evening, with the Italian Ambassador and Mme. de Martino as the ranking guests. In the absence of Princess de Ligne, who is abroad, Mme. de Martino filled the role of hostess. The entire dinner party went afterward to the Italian Embassy ball. In the company were the Counselor of the Italian Embassy, Count Marchetti; the Second Counselor and Signora de Catalani, Miss Vittoria Catalani, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren Brown and Mrs. William Brown Meloney, of New York; Mme. Seyerick and Baron Bussen, both of Belgium; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Andrew T. Long, Mrs. Lewis Stewart and Miss Francesca Stewart, Wing Commander and Mrs. T. G. Hetherington and Mr. C. J. Torr, of the British Embassy; Miss Katherine Wilkins, Miss Adelaide Wolstenholme, Capt. Luigi Notarbartalo and Signor Carl Andrea Soardi, of the Italian Embassy staff, and Viscount de Lantsheere, of the Belgian Embassy.

Guests from numerous other official dinner parties also came together at the ball. The Italian Embassy is one of the handsomest foreign properties in Washington, built about a garden court, with an open loggia at one end into which the guests wandered between dances, lured by the almost springlike softness of the air. Over 800 pink roses were used as decorations, arranged in great crystal jars, in low bowls and other containers, with potted pink azelias for variety. The Italian flag hung above the doorway and such airs as the "Marche Royale" and the "Brabancon" were interspersed with music for dancing.

The Ambassador and Mme. de Martino received in the drawing room. In the dining room long tables were laid, rose decked and candle lighted, from which a buffet supper was served. And the ballroom was left free for dancing. This is a long high ceiling apartment, with a great carved stone mantel, which takes color from its rose damask curtains and from the fine paintings on its walls. In the foyer, which has a graceful winding stairway at one end, hangs an interesting collection of paintings of ancient Rome. Here chairs were arranged in cozy groups "for flirtation."

At the Belgian Embassy the colors of Belgium were displayed in honor of the royal marriage uniting the reigning families of Italy and Belgium, in which all the world seems interested.

President Hoover had as dinner guests last evening the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, Mr. and Mrs. Diehl and Miss Joan Diehl, of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Hoover, who has been suffering from a cold, remained in her room, conserving her strength for the reception to the judiciary, which is to be held tonight, the first of the annual series of state functions at the White House.

Once FAT
but now SLENDER
You see them daily
Ask them why

THIS is to the many slender people who have learned the right way to fight fat. Tell your friends about the method, as someone told you, perhaps. It will mean a kindness which no friend forgets.

Science has found that a common cause of obesity is an under-active gland. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it falls down, too much food goes to fat. So modern physicians combat excess fat by feeding the lacking substance.

That is what Marmola does. A famous medical laboratory prepares these tablets, so that all may employ this method in the right way at small cost. A book in each box states the formula and explains the good results.

Marmola has for 22 years, by sheer merit, held the top place in this field. Millions of boxes have been used. New youth and beauty, new vigor and health have come in this way to many. In any circle one can now see how slenderness prevails.

Now we ask those happy people to tell others. Ask them to try Marmola and watch results. Tell them that starvation is not necessary, not safe. Show them the right way. Urge them to start at once.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

DAME FASHION decrees tiers smartest afternoon and evening vogue, especially when they dip the back hem and hug the hips as in style No. 8246 sketched.

It rather suggests the princess silhouette with its molded bodice and hips. The fullness in tiers is concentrated at left-side front to combine with the jabot frill of bodice to carry out vertical line which adds height to the figure.

It is luxuriant not only in line, but in the material Paris selected. It is crepe Elizabeth in the flattering dark purple shade, so suitable for tea, bridge or Sunday night occasions.

It is irresistible in black panne velvet with jabot frill of bodice lined with white ninon.

Black net is another captivating idea all the smart young things are wearing for theater, dining and dancing.

Black canton crepe, electric blue sheer velvet, dark brown faille silk crepe with jabot edged with ecru lace, chantilly lace in rich dark brown shade, black crepe satin, deep maroon red flat silk crepe, silk moire in bottle green, and plum shade in flat silk crepe are combinations only found in exclusive shops.

You can copy it exactly, for it is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

'TRISTAN AND ISOLDE' IS WELL PRESENTED

German Grand Opera Troupe Brings Itself Honor in Wagnerian Work.

ORCHESTRA IS PRAISED

The favorable impression made by the German Grand Opera Company in its opening performance of "Die Walkure" on Monday night was deepened last night by the excellent presentation of another Wagnerian favorite, "Tristan und Isolde," at Poli's Theater before a large audience.

First honors were captured by Juliette Lippe in the role of Isolde. Her beautiful voice was at its best and histrionically she also scored heavily with the audience. Fraulein Lippe has the personality of the Wagnerian heroine to a marked degree. Like the rest of the company's personnel she was selected from among a number of German singers for the important roles with which she has been entrusted during the present tour of this German aggregation in America. In her singing of the death song at the end of the opera, known as the "Love Death," she proved herself worthy of the highest traditions of an "Isolde."

Ritter Repeats His Success.

Rudolf Ritter, as Tristan, repeated his individual success of Monday night as "Siegmund." His voice was fully responsive to the heavy demands of Wagnerian opera and in the duet "O, Night of Rapture," sung with Isolde, the audience paid tribute to the beautiful singing of this pair of lovers.

Before passing to a discussion of the other singers, it would seem fair to pause in tribute to Herr Ernest Knoch and his instrumentalists in the orchestra. If the vocal requirements are severe in "Tristan und Isolde," the orchestral score is more so. But Herr Knoch's skilled baton guided the players safely. The ensemble tone was restrained but capable of the magnificent crescendos and climaxes with which Wagner embellished his operatic scores.

As the faithful Brangaene, maid of Isolde, who warns her repeatedly of the danger into which her love for Tristan has carried her, Sonia Sharnova again justified the prediction of an outsanding future. Her mellow voice was well suited to the requirements of that role and she sang her passages with vivid interpretation and technical accuracy.

Marwick's Work Is Praised.

The role of King Marke was well portrayed by Dudley Marwick, whose voice was excellent and whose action was of unusual merit.

One of the most realistic parts of the opera was the singing of the part of Kurwenal, servant to Tristan, by Gotthold Ditter. Much character work was put into this part of Herr Ditter. Others who deserve honorable mention for their share of last night's success were Franz Egenieff, as Melot; Josef Lengyel, as the sailor; Gustav Werner, as the shepherd, and Albert Jablonski, as the steersman; while Helene Lanvin, Jean Spira and Mari Marshall, in their brief appearance as Ladies of the Isolde, left a pleasant impression.

The opera proceeded with smoothness last night and the waits between the acts were cut down to the minimum of time essential to mount a Wagnerian opera.

The third opera will be presented tomorrow night and will mark a departure from the Wagnerian series in that it will be Mozart's "Don Juan," which presents that master in his best vein.

It is in this highly diverting picture that Bebe Daniels does everything they said she would do in "Rio Rita." Her singing is infinitely better, her vibrant role is played with all of the vivacity and humorous appeal that formerly characterized the more engaging of her silent vehicles and, when occasion demands, she is earnestly and dramatically emotional. The same qualities of agreeable assurance that mark her work—the best she has done to date, I should say — are somehow communicated to those of greatest prominence in her supporting cast.

BEING an old codger who in his declining years has acquired a notable degree of patient resignation to arduous tasks that suddenly impose themselves without adequate warning, I have just completed cursorily wading through the midwinter annual issue of Variety which far exceeds its usual ample dimensions by virtue of being also the first anniversary number of RKO Pictures.

RKO, represented in the Capital by the RKO-Keith Theater, under the managerial direction of Corbin Shelid, one of Washington's veteran showmen, has accomplished wonders during the past year and through the pages of Variety promises multiplied achievements in the field of popular amusement to serve as an earnest of what may be expected to mark the eleven months following its "January Good Times Jubilee."

I should take less stock in these glittering assurances of record-breaking pictures to come, were they not in large measure personally sponsored by Hiram S. Brown, president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, and Joseph Plunkett, long managing director of the famous Strand Theater on Broadway—the first de luxe presentation house in the world—vice president and general manager of theaters for RKO. These gentlemen, it may be said, know their stuff and are principally responsible for the outstanding success of a consistently good product that boasts "Rio Rita," "Street Girl" and "Love Comes Along" as the high spots of its first active year of production.

These hits are to be immediately followed locally by two more that are said to be even better—"Seven Keys to Baldpate," adapted from the Earl Derr Biggers story of the same name, by a coincidence to be offered on Fifteenth street the same week that George M. Cohan, producer of the stage play, is appearing at the National Theater, and "Hit the Deck," ranked among the greatest of the musicals so far produced, with Jack Oakie starred.

The success of the RKO-Keith Theater, from the very day of its reopening has been one of the surprises of the season to many. Its dedicatory capacity business was held by some of the wise ones to be only a flash in the pan, but while it has been necessary for some of us to pan a few of its flashes, the average of the RKO entertainment has been high and the house has consistently clicked—as I hope it may continue to do.

And the Rialto over on Ninth street is hitting its stride, too. The opening of "Hell's Heroes" on New Year's Day registered the biggest business since the reopening of the house—a pace that has been maintained ever since. And the outlook is for better pictures right along from now on.

On Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the voice of Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher again was heard on the air in the Vocational Guidance hour conducted by the Kiwanis Club. Mrs. Locher for many years was director of the Public Service and Educational Departmetn of the Stanley-Crandall Theaters and recently has been called into consultation by the Will H. Hays organization as an expert in the preparation and presentation of screen programs especially assembled for juvenile consumption—an activity which she originated in the Stanley-Crandall neighborhood houses and in which, naturally, she is the pioncer in America.

A note from Irene Juno apprises me that the Organists Club has been at it again and this time has elected Harry Manville, president; Pearl Hauer, vice president; Blanche Levinson, secretary; Frank Higgins, treasurer, and Miss Juno, business manager.

Miss Juno also is in charge of music at the Wardman Park Theater and playfully adds, "I can't even mind my own business, so why should they give me the club's business to 'tend to?"

A prize of one new Apeda print of Mae West and Ben Turpin in the balcony scene from "The Cock-Eyed World" is offered for the best solution.

The entire original footage of Paramount's epic of the air, "Wings," is being run off at the rate of four reels a day in the office of the chief of the Army Air Corps in the Munitions Building, this city. As is always the case in filming a spectacle of such unusual proportions, a great deal more celluloid was exposed than was ever shown on any but the producing company's projection room screen. It is my understanding that the first assembled print of "Wings" was some 16 or 18 reels in length. It is this uncut version that is being reviewed by the Army officials, who originally sat in, I believe, on the determination of just what episodes should be incorporated in the prints for public presentation and which deleted.

Were there 28 hours in a day instead of the mere 24, I should act on the tip that it would be an interesting exhibit to look over.

Oh, yes, those incoming attractions to be shown next week. Well, then: Metropolitan, John Barrymore, in "General Crack;" his first all-talkie; Palace, Norma Talmadge and Gilbert Roland, in "New York Nights," also Miss Talmadge's first all-talkie; Fox, Janet Gaynor, in "Christina;" RKO-Keith's, Richard Dix, in "Seven Keys to Baldpate;" Rialto, Constance Bennett and Edmund Lowe, in "This Thing Called Love;" Columbia, Julia Faye, Conrad Nagel and Kay Johnson, in "Dynamite;" Earle, William Powell, Helen Kane, Fay Wray and "Skeets" Gallagher, in "Pointed Heels."

The Rialto week begins tomorrow; the Earle's, tomorrow midnight.

I note from this oversize Variety Annual—about the size of a Sears Roebuck catalogue—that THE WASHINGTON POST is still "The Capital's Only Real Picture Medium." Variety makes very few mistakes!

John BARRYMORE

Yesterday a speechless shadow-

To-day a vivid, living person--

thanks to

VITAPHONE

Until you've heard him in "General Crack" you can but guess at the full force of the flaming personality that is the real John Barrymore.

"Don Juan", "The Sea Beast"—all his famous silent roles, have been just shadows of his vivid Vitaphone self!

Not figuratively, but literally, John Barrymore "comes to life" in "General Crack."

For here for the first time, Vitaphone restores the pent-up power of the thrilling voice that made him the star of stars of the speaking stage... And resplendent scenes in COLOR show you what he really looks like as he storms recklessly into the vortex of cyclonic romance and adventure, breaking heads and hearts and sweeping monarchs from their thrones to suit a gypsy whim!

So now millions may sit in the living presence of that same John Barrymore whom brilliant Broadway audiences hailed as the most magnetic figure that ever faced the footlights.

But if you come just to hear this brilliant star's first talking picture, you'll stay to enjoy, besides, a love story so tense and virile it would be a sensation without any star—a story picked from the perfect pages of George Preedy's famous novel, and dressed by Warner Bros. in extravagantly sumptuous trappings to celebrate this greatest of all Vitaphone events.

THE SCREEN'S GREATEST FIGHTING LOVER ...

in "GENERAL CRACK"

HIS first TALKING PICTURE!

"General Crack" is another example of the treats that await you every week at theatres that feature Vitaphone pictures, produced exclusively by WARNER BROS. and FIRST NATIONAL

Coolidge to Speak Over Air Tonight

Former President, in Florida, Will Talk on Life Insurance—Crime Story on WMAL—Post Brevities 8:15 A. M.

For the first time since he left the Presidency, Calvin Coolidge will speak over the radio tonight. A coast-to-coast network of stations will be in readiness at 9:30 o'clock to broadcast the address. The occasion is a banquet given by a life insurance company in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Coolidge's subject will be "The Economics of Life Insurance." This program will not be broadcast by Station WRC, but may be picked up through WJZ, WLW or other stations associated with the blue network of the National Broadcasting Co.

An evening of varied entertainment is proffered by both local network stations tonight. Irene Bordoni and Maurice Chevalier, both of whom have achieved fame on screen and stage, are the outstanding individual attractions. Miss Bordoni will be featured in the Sunshine hour from Station WRC, along with Rudy Vallee and His Connecticut Yankees, at 8 o'clock, while Mr. Chevalier will inaugurate a new program from WMAL at 8:30 o'clock.

The new Philco hour will have its premiere over the Columbia Broadcasting System, including WMAL, at 10 o'clock tonight. The program will introduce a new Philco star, Lois Bennett, former Ziegfeld soprano, in Jerome Kern's one-act opera, "Lamplight." Supporting Miss Bennett will be John Barclay, barytone; Dan Gridley, tenor, will also be heard. William Artz will be in charge of the new Philco Orchestra.

A review of the greatest light operas from Offenbach to current Broadway operettas will comprise a program entitled "Fifty Years of Light Opera," which the recording artists of the Victor Light Opera Company will broadcast in the Victor Hour at 10 o'clock from Station WRC. Nathaniel Shilkret will direct the salon orchestra through the selections, which follow:

"Tales of Hoffman," Offenbach; "Die Fledermaus," Johann Strauss; "Erminie," Jakobowski; "The Mikado" and "Pinafore," Gilbert and Sullivan; "The Chimes of Normandy," Planquette; "Robin Hood," DeKoven; "El Capitan," Sousa; "The Fortune Teller," Herbert; "Floradora," Leslie Stuart; "The Prince of Pilsen," Luders; "The Merry Widow," Strauss; "The Chocolate Soldier," Strauss; "Maytime," Romberg; "The Firefly," Friml; "Lady Be Good," Gershwin; "Peggy Ann," Rodgers and Hart; "Good News," DeSylva-Brown-Henderson, and "Show Boat," Kern.

A tabloid version of Giuseppe Verdi's three-act opera, "La Traviata," will be presented by the National Grand Opera Company, under the direction of Cesare Sodero, at 11 o'clock via WRC.

The cast follows: Violetta, Genia Zielinska, soprano; Flora, Paula Hemminghaus, contralto; Alfredo, Julian Oliver, tenor; Gastone, Steele Jamison, tenor; Germont, Theodore Webb, barytone; the baron and the doctor, Frank Croxton, bass.

An aria from Gounod's "Faust," sung by James Melton, tenor, and Wilfred Glenn's bass solo interpretation of "The Midshipmate" represent highlights of the entertainment which the Seiberling Singers, directed by Frank Black, pianist, will present at 9 o'clock from WRC.

Steffy Goldner, guest artist, will play the Fantasie from "Tales of Hoffman" as a harp solo during the program at 9:30 o'clock. Eugene Ormandy, conductor, will appear as violin soloist.

Methods for increasing the safety of sea voyagers will be discussed by United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, in a talk from the studios of Station WRC at 7:30 o'clock. The senator, an advocate of revision of laws governing operation of seagoing vessels, will discuss present ocean safety conditions and his suggestions for improvement. Senator Wagner believes that present laws governing travel on the high seas are out of date and inadequate.

Another in the series of talks by outstanding speakers will be offered by WRC at 7:15 o'clock, when E. S. Carter will discuss "The World Gathering at Kyoto."

Ida Bailey Allen will conduct another in the "Radio-Home-makers" series from WMAL at 10 o'clock this morning. This talk is followed by another at 10:45 o'clock by Helen Chase.

Local programs from the studios of the station include Morrison's Merry-makers and Gude's "Garden of Melodies" during the early evening.

Capt. James F. Bean, of the Los Angeles Police Department, is the author of "Take Him for a Ride," the crime solution story from real life which will be dramatized during the True Detective Mysteries program at 9 o'clock over WMAL.

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Washington Post will be broadcast at 8:15 o'clock this morning for a ten-minute period.

An organ recital will follow the luncheon music at noon. The station will be on the air all afternoon, with dinner music scheduled for 6 o'clock. Estelle Wentworth will broadcast a program at 6:30 o'clock, followed by Jimmie Harbison, pianist.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

JUDGING from the number of persons who called up the radio station and the storm which broke at the sudden canceling of "Amos 'n' Andy" the other night to make way for a talk made by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur on the use of radio in education, there was much dissatisfaction and criticism of the National Broadcasting Co. on the part of the listening public.

This, in our opinion, was justified. Deciding to change a broadcast feature in the last minute without proper notification defeats its own purpose. In the first place, as in the case of the highly specialized talk of Dr. Wilbur, it does not reach the audience for which it is intended because they do not know the thing they are interested in is to be broadcast. Secondly, it disappoints the audience looking for the feature that has been announced and canceled.

Third, it brings unwarranted criticism on the newspapers "for not getting it right." Let it be said in defense of the last mentioned that the change was decided upon by the broadcasting people after 5 p. m., less than two hours before the broadcast and too late to catch the edition of any newspaper.

As the thing worked out, Secretary Wilbur's speech, because of its length, could have been cut, with profit to himself and the radio audience, in time to hear "Amos 'n' Andy." We have it on good authority that he had finished reading his prepared address and was talking along extemporaneously just to fill in the time. At any rate, he was allowed to ramble along.

AS a matter of fact, the flurry over Secretary Wilbur's speech was entirely out of proportion to the importance of the speech itself and its eleventh hour broadcasting over WRC was a gesture of good will to Dr. Wilbur and Chairman Ira E. Robinson, of the Radio Commission, who introduced him, rather than a conscientious effort to serve the listening public.

Both the N. B. C. and Columbia are now playing up to the radio educational movement as this will come in handy if, in the future, as in the past, they are accused by the Radio Commission or Congress of too much commercialism. Their reply would then be "Look at what we are doing for education!"

Taking a rap at English as spoken over the air, Dr. Wilbur suggested that for research purposes a grant of funds could well be made "by the commercial interests or some philanthropic individual to some university which has a good school of speech."

If that were brought about, we wonder if a scholarly announcer like Milton J. Cross would then pronounce "education," "ejication" as the learned university president did so frequently.

APPARENTLY Columbia, in putting the Diplimatic Corps on the air, which it will do beginning with an address by Sir Esme Howard, dean of the corps, has again beaten the N. B. C. to it. According to a story current, the N.B.C. through the League of Women Voters, began lining up the diplomats several months ago.

Columbia got wind of it and through fast work on the part of Harry C. Butcher, new Washington representative, yesterday announced that Sir Esme, introduced by William S. Paley, president of Columbia, would lead off the series at the time of the opening of the five-power naval conference in London on January 21.

The broadcasts will be given every week thereafter and will be unique in that before they have concluded it is expected that every Ambassador and Minister accredited to the United States will have been heard.

IT'S been some time since a Senate committee has seen such a square and determined jaw as that of Ellery W. Stone, president of the Kolster Radio Corporation, who took a bite out of Owen D. Young yesterday. Stone, apparently full of fight, came loaded for "b'ar."

Senators didn't bother him much on the technical side of it, because he knows the radio game backwards and forwards, having at one time been a Federal radio supervisor.

Also Mr. Stone was apparently pretty much at home with regard to the financial end of it and dealt lightly with the millions of dollars involved.

The explosion which shook the Capitol late yesterday afternoon was caused by Senator Tom Heflin. He had just been told that the Vatican is to erect a powerful radio station by means of which the voice of the Pope may soon be heard.

ALTHOUGH the public is being fed by the Radio Commission with propaganda about what a success cleared channels are, we observed the phenomena last night of WJZ, New York, and WJR, Detroit, each supposed to be on a cleared channel, 10 kilocycles apart, coming into Washington exactly on the same frequency and at the same time.

When a local wag heard they were again going to attempt to pick up a broadcast from Australia half way around the world, he remarked, "I think that is carrying it a little too far!"

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, Jan. 8.

YESTERDAY I was telling you about underwear, which followed the line of the gown with which it was worn, particularly regarding the length. But take heed that it is smartest and ever so elegant to wear bloomers, which match the dress, with all the tailored circular skirts or skirts that flare at all.

These bloomers do not always match the dress in material, of course, but in color, yes. And one does not wear costume slips with this bloomer—just a chemise top, brassiere and girdle.

With most all the afternoon gowns, one wears a slip, which either matches the dress and usually, indeed, is a part of it, or a flesh colored satin slip, even black crepe, heavy enough so that it is shadow-proof.

Voila, the lingerie system!

• • • •

What better could you wear with that sports ensemble than a Day-ray designed necklace that you make yourself? 'Tis made of button molds, paint and colored thread, with the assistance of an illustrated leaflet of complete directions, which will be sent to you by the Dare Department of The Washington Post in exchange for a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • • •

The beautiful Russian artist simply raved over it—and she has such perfect taste that we can not but think it even smarter than the illustration shows. It's a Marcel Rochas design, developed in dark green jersey, with a light green jersey blouse and white collar. Anyway, she brought it over for me to sketch for you, and there it is!

The Couturiers.

This one is an easy one—Redfern. It's pronounced just as it's spelled, with no accent on any syllable. But Monsieur Courtot, the present director of Redfern's, has a name that's a bit more difficult to pronounce—say this "Cour-toe," with the accent on the "toe," and sound the "ou" with a long "o" sound with your lips pursed as when you say "prunes."

• • • •

For the lovers of blue, it is welcome news that Jenny makes all shades of blue for spring, stressing, if anything, the paler shades. Don't forget, all blondes—golden blondes, ash blondes, Titian blondes—all blondes except demiblondes, wear blues perfectly. And one brunette type, the demibrunette

Coin de Coleur.

It is quite true, as La Chic Secretaire says, that people wear the colors they like best, regardless of style trends. Yet it is equally true that color trends do predominate and are sponsored by smart women—one remembers chartreuse green, for instance, and after that the popularity of blues in all shades.

This winter it seems quite evident that black and white are the colors. More of this tomorrow.

By all means you should look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post. Every Sunday.

Au revoir!

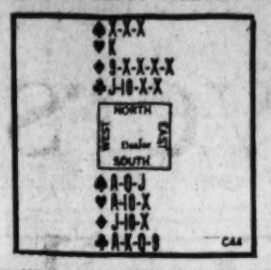
WORK'S BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



THE hand was played at Contract Bridge. South, with a count of 22, bid three No Trumps. It was an unsound bid because the Diamonds were unstopped. There was no other bidding.

At Auction, South would have obtained the contract with a bid of one No Trump.

In the play, the first card led was the Queen of Hearts. North won with the singleton King and the Declarer started to make up the Diamonds—his longest unestablished suit. He did not lead Clubs as he wished to keep dummy's Club entry to cash his long Diamonds. The adversaries won the first Diamond and established their Hearts in two leads. The Declarer continued his effort to make up Diamonds, and the adversaries took in all three Hearts and three Diamonds, Declarer making only one-odd.

What should have happened?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer, after winning the first trick with the King of Hearts, should have seen that an attempt to establish the Diamonds could not produce game; the adversaries would win the first three Diamond tricks with their Ace, King and Queen, and that would give them leads enough to establish their Hearts and run them. There was just one chance for game: if East held the King of Spades, two Spade finesses would yield three Spade tricks; and as Declarer was sure of two Hearts and four Clubs, that would give him game. The first Spade finesse should have been tried at trick 2, by leading a Spade from dummy. If South's Jack (or Queen) won, dummy could be put in with a Club for a second Spade finesse.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Girl With the Past."

IS there hope for the girl with a "past?" Read the two letters that follow, both from men who married under circumstances that the crepe hangers would consider guaranteed misery.

Dear Miss McDonald: Your forceful and magnetic style has engaged my interest for several years, even when the subject matter could not possibly interest me. But your views on the woman whose youth has been an unhappy succession of harrowing shocks happens to strike home. About 18 years ago I met a very reserved and lovely young woman in business. The attraction was mutual and instantaneous. But she promptly told me that she did not care to encourage friendship with me. Believing her to be married I asked her why she did not obtain a divorce. She then became very frank about her life, and assured me she preferred to live without men friends because of her long-past folly. She was a girl who had been one of an over-large and undernourished family and had worked since she was 15. It was when she was 19 and until she was 24 that she departed from the straight path. After that she lived as she should.

To me the whole thing was just another tragedy and it never entered my mind to hesitate, but I felt I should explain the situation to my two married sisters lest at some future time they might innocently discuss morals in her presence and perhaps hurt. I might far better have taken that chance, as they instantly united in a boycott against my future wife. To this day they have never met her and I have never seen either of them since although we were a most devoted family once. However, my wife has made life a heaven on earth for me and for our four children. She is still adorably young and lovely although now 48 years old. She dances, plays golf and has reared our children beautifully.

As far as character is concerned, I know no woman who can compare with her. She has no censure for any living being, but she has taught our children that heaven and hell are here on earth in the mind and heart through consciousness of guilt and the knowledge of having broken nature's laws for the preservation of beauty in life.

I am thankful that I married my dear "girl with a past" and hope my daughter may inherit her dear mother's beauty of soul and strength of character. B. L.

And Dr. M—— has also a story:

"I married a nurse who just before our wedding told me of a serious mistake she had made. I have always regretted that she told me, as I can not see why a woman should feel any compulsion to reveal her past unless, indeed, she happens to have had a child, in which case a man would, of course, want to decide whether he cared to adopt it or what course to pursue. It took most of the joy out of the first months of our marriage for me. Not because I felt she was unworthy, but because it was a terrible shock and hurt deeply.

"However, time has healed that, and after seven years we are now one of the happiest of couples. She mingles with my friends and no doubt of her ever crossed my mind. From the time she told me her story until now she has been like a different girl, cheery and happy. She is a loving wife and devoted mother and I want to second your plea for the girl with a so-called 'past,' only I am strongly against her revealing it, since it is her affair alone.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:50 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

To follow Ruskin's advice to work while you have light, especially while you have the light of morning, is advisable on this date, as the influences favor you up to 12 noon, after which time conditions will be most unsettled. A mystery will come to your notice.

A child born on this January 9 should be made to fend for itself during early childhood, as it will naturally lack both initiative and independence. It will be thoughtful and have a subtle intellect. It will be much attracted to water and occult matters.

If you were born on a January 9 you are level headed, and if you have to shove your way in this world, you will shove it with your head and not your shoulders. Your wits will be your strength and power. You have imagination and vision, but you never gaze too far ahead of the ship to see the immediate reefs.

You may not be a great logician, but you do know the laws of human nature, and you understand the foibles and weaknesses of the average person without despising them. Although endowed with a superior intelligence, you do not suffer from any complex. You are truly modest, unaffected and kind. You are thankful for nature's gifts to you, and for that which you receive, but you never gloat over your talents or blessings.

It is seldom that you completely lose your temper. He is a fool who can not be angry, but he is a wise man who will not. There is a limit to your endurance, however, and you are capable of becoming a human fury, whose wrath commands both respect and fear. In times of peace your tongue harms no one, but in times of war your words are more cutting than a sword.

Successful people born January 9:

3—Alexander K. McClure, journalist.

4—John K. Paine, musician and composer.

Birds Which Follow Snow

MOST birds like to be where it is warm, but there are some which do not mind the coldness of winter. On the contrary they seek places where there is snow. Among such birds is the snow bunting, which also goes by the name of "snowflake."

Snow Buntings Seek Places where There Is Snow.

The summer home of snow buntings is up in the region of the Arctic Sea. They are found in Iceland and Greenland, in northern Canada and Alaska.

Even in those far northern parts in certain places during the summer grass and plants grow. The snow buntings build their nests on the ground among rocks, using curly Arctic grass and moss. The nest walls are about an inch thick, and are warmly lined with feathers so that when the eggs hatch the young need not shiver.

During spring, summer and fall snow buntings give their gift of song to the people who live in northern lands. They bring up their young caring for them tenderly until the wings are ready for flying.

These birds do not mind snow and a fair degree of cold, but they seem to wish to avoid the bitterest winds of the Arctic winter. They fly southward during the fall.

Most birds which fly south do not stop until they reach a region where there will be little or no cold weather. Not so with the snow bunting. It will go no further south than it feels sure there will be snow.

From Maine to Oregon flocks of snow buntings spend the winter. Each flock is commonly made up of from 10 to 20 birds. It has been said that they "come with the snow."

The feathers of the buntings are mainly white, but there are black or brown markings on head and back. The colors match well with fields of snow.

For food the birds eat seeds of plants which poke their heads above the snow. Great amounts of weed seeds are thus destroyed. The birds also scratch down to find worms which are trying to spend the winter beneath the snow. When the buntings are near the seashore they eat small shelled creatures which are washed in by waves and tides.

Snow buntings have been reported as far south as Georgia, but the few which straggle there do not remain a great while. As soon as the snow begins to give away they fly northward.

New York to Hear Japanese Actors

Theater Guild Announces Plan to Import Troupe From Orient.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A company of Japanese players will be brought to New York this spring by the Theater Guild for a four-week repertory engagement in classical and modern Japanese drama, the guild announced today.

Before its New York appearance the company will play in California under the auspices of the Japanese Theater Association, an organization of Japanese on the Pacific Coast. With the company, arriving in San Francisco, January 22, are native musicians, swordsmen, dancers and 25 actors and actresses.

It will be the first New York engagement of a Japanese company. In 1928 such a group visited California to play before Japanese audiences, and through the interest of motion picture folk, including Charles Chaplin, it was given a hearing in Hollywood, before the general public.

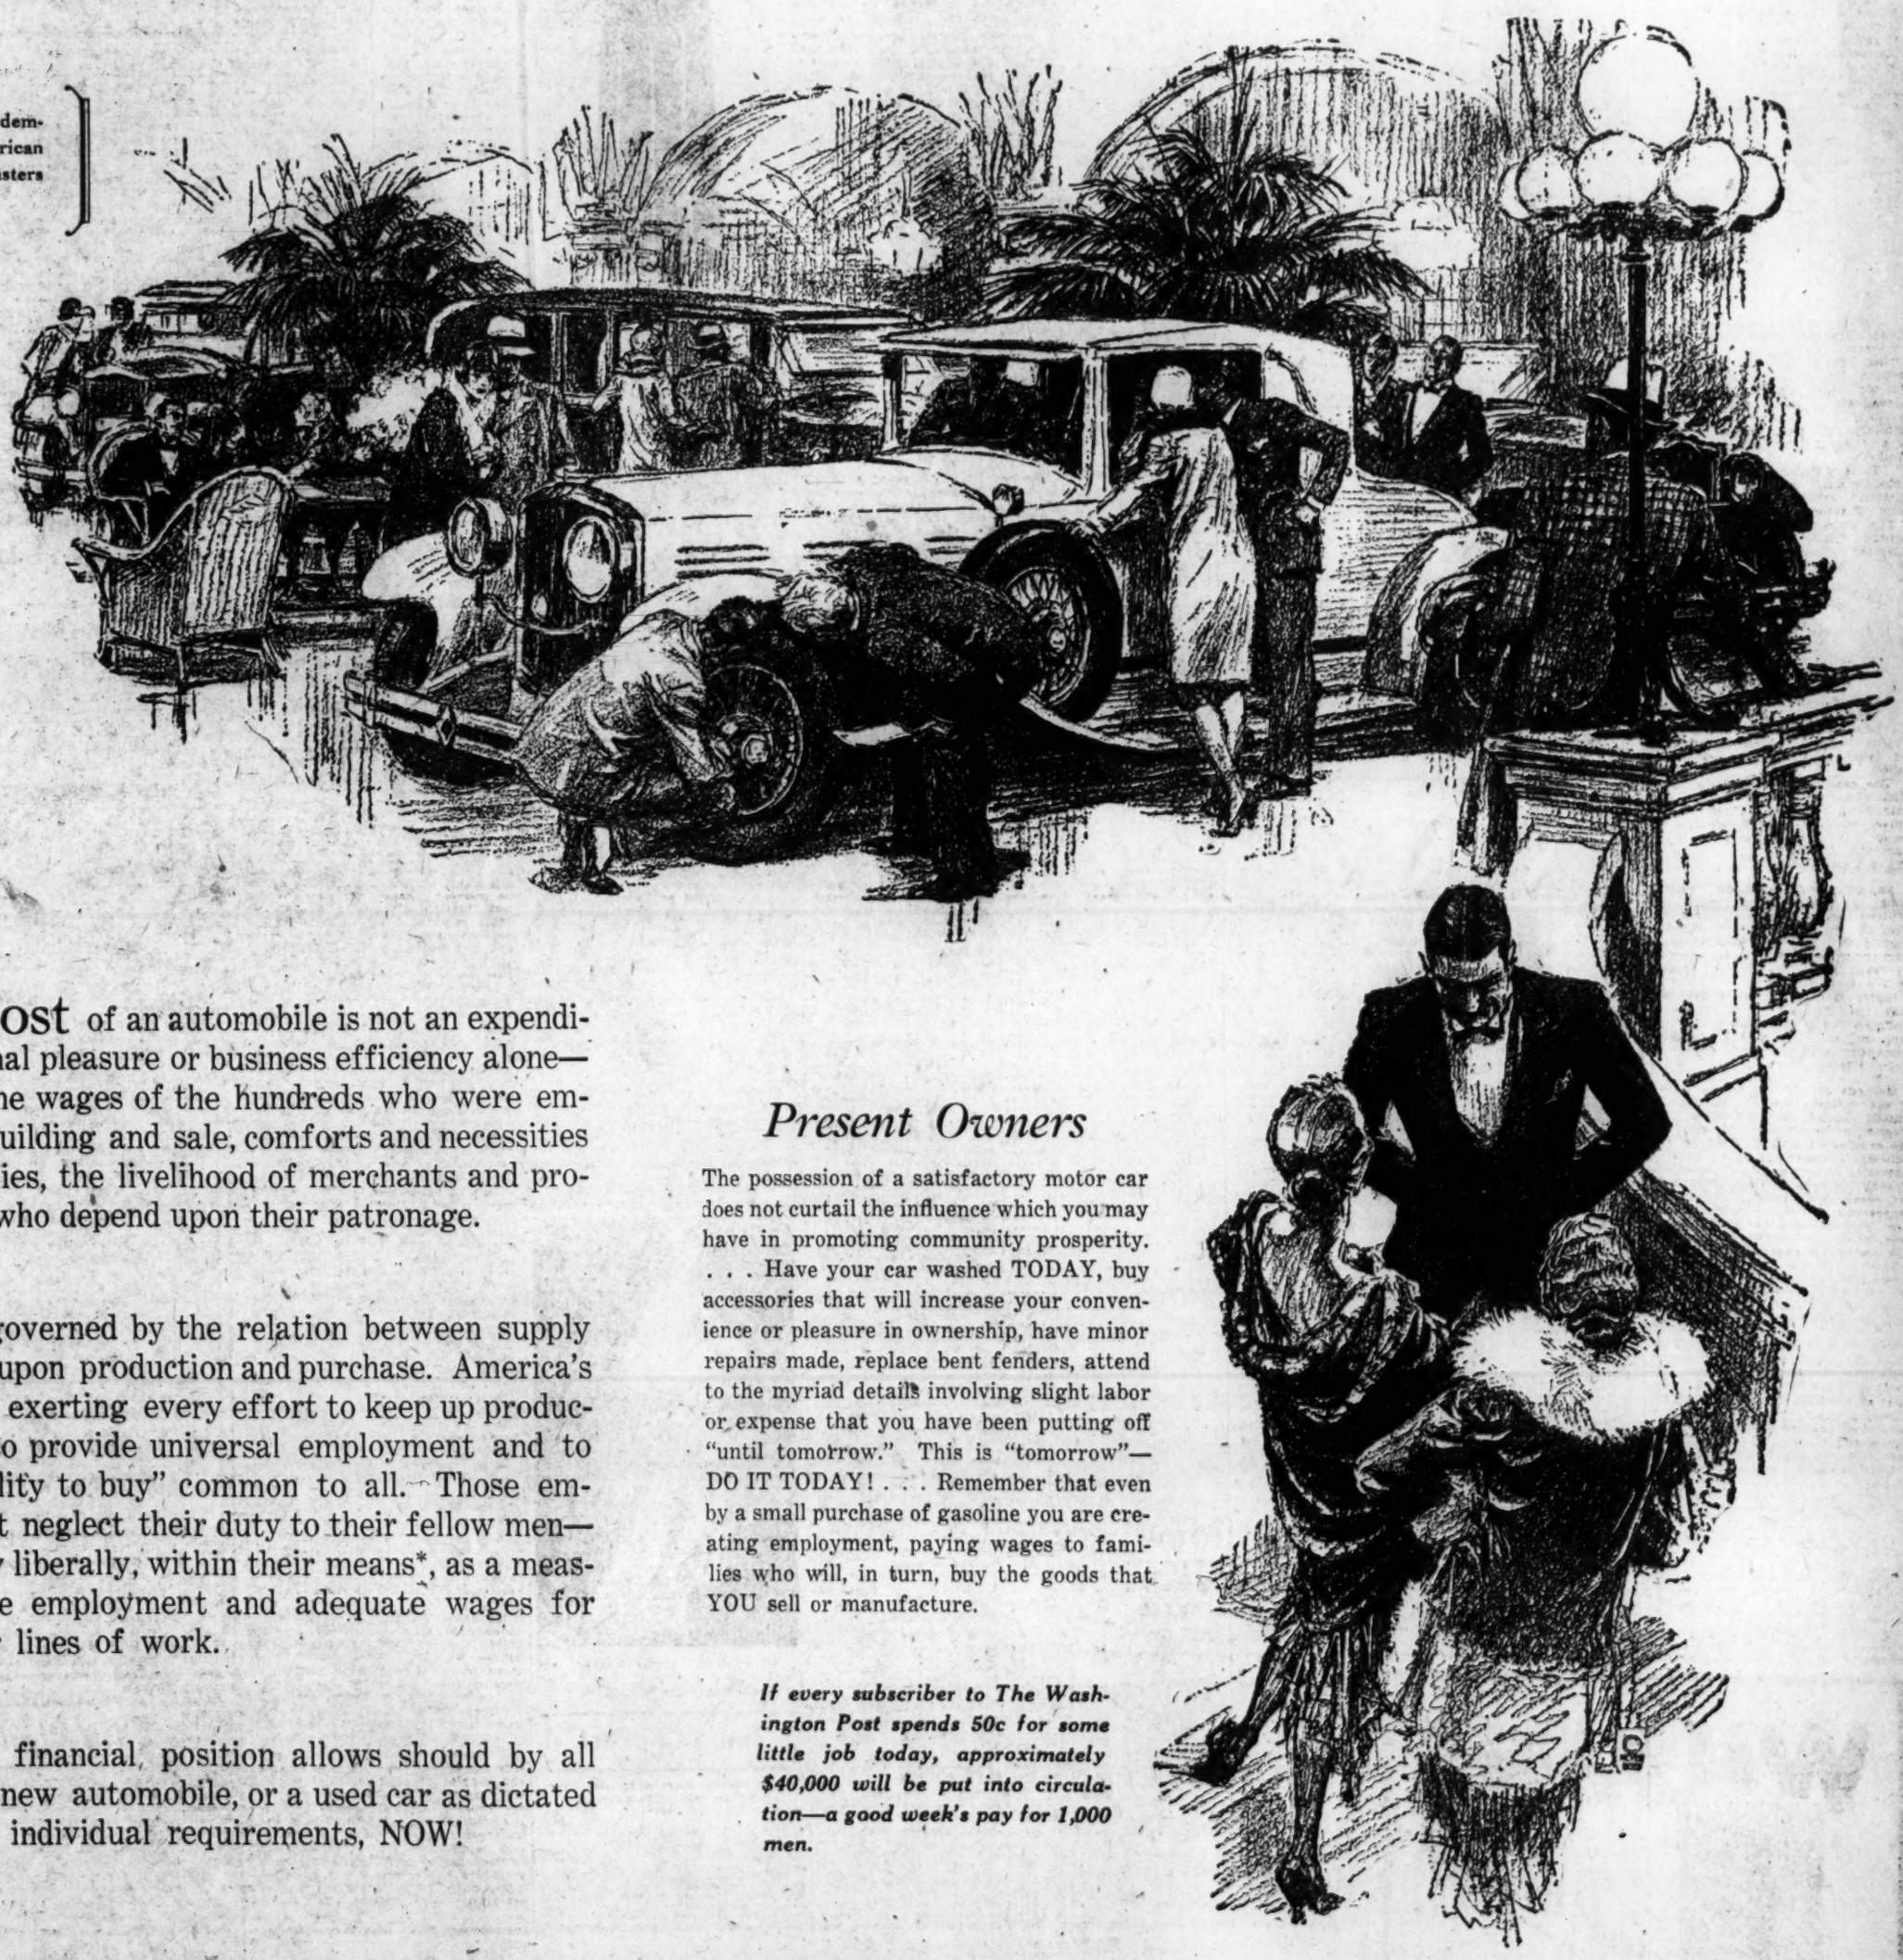
Buyers of Automobiles Are Builders of Prosperity!

The second of a series demonstrating that "American Individuals Are The Masters of Prosperity."



THE cost of an automobile is not an expenditure for personal pleasure or business efficiency alone—it represents the wages of the hundreds who were employed in its building and sale, comforts and necessities for their families, the livelihood of merchants and professional men who depend upon their patronage.

Prosperity is governed by the relation between supply and demand—upon production and purchase. America's industries are exerting every effort to keep up production in order to provide universal employment and to make "the ability to buy" common to all. Those employed can not neglect their duty to their fellow men—which is to buy liberally, within their means*, as a measure to provide employment and adequate wages for those in other lines of work.

Those whose financial position allows should by all means buy a new automobile, or a used car as dictated by purse and individual requirements, NOW!

Present Owners

The possession of a satisfactory motor car does not curtail the influence which you may have in promoting community prosperity. . . . Have your car washed TODAY, buy accessories that will increase your convenience or pleasure in ownership, have minor repairs made, replace bent fenders, attend to the myriad details involving slight labor or expense that you have been putting off "until tomorrow." This is "tomorrow"—DO IT TODAY! . . . Remember that even by a small purchase of gasoline you are creating employment, paying wages to families who will, in turn, buy the goods that YOU sell or manufacture.

If every subscriber to The Washington Post spends 50c for some little job today, approximately $40,000 will be put into circulation—a good week's pay for 1,000 men.

The Washington Post

"The Capital's Greatest NEWSpaper"

*This series is not in any sense a suggestion that people should indulge in profligate spending, but is designed to show the influence of individuals in the creation of prosperity . . . America is in a most favorable economic condition. It is important to every one that this situation shall be maintained. The danger would lie in a spirit of pessimism that might curtail normal buying on the part of the public in general.

STOCK SALES SLUMP TO 1,638,830 SHARES

Traders Express Varying Opinions as Turnover Again Declines.

UTILITIES PROVE ACTIVE

New York, Jan 8 (A.P.).—Paralysis penetrated further in the stock market today. The day's trades aggregated only 1,638,830 shares, the smallest full session's business since August 13, 1928. The ticker tape stood still for minutes at a time.

Rarely has there been such a divergence of speculative opinion as there is in Wall street at present, and pending visible signs of a definite market trend, most traders prefer to express opinions rather than act on them. Experimental efforts on the part of both speculators for the rise and for the fall have gone unrewarded by definite results.

Some observers liken the present pause to the lull that precedes a storm, and predict that the market will soon have a violent awakening. Others, however, believe that business and industrial conditions will improve but gradually during the next two months, and that indecisive results of the current quarter will dampen speculative enthusiasm on either side of the market.

Day's News Is Mixed.

The day's news was mixed. Freight car loadings for Christmas week were reported as falling off sharply from the previous week, but showing only moderate declines from the corresponding weeks of 1928 and 1927. The weekly steel trade reviews pointed to the upturn in production that has appeared after two months of sharp curtailment, but Iron Age stated that further improvement is expected to be gradual.

Higher dividend rates were announced for Columbian Carbon and the J. C. Penney Co., but Zenith Radio omitted the payment due at this time, attesting the highly competitive conditions and unsatisfactory profits in the radio manufacturing industry.

Credit conditions remained easy. Call money again renewed and dropped to 4, although the surplus of funds offered was not so large as yesterday. Time money was a little easier, with the longer maturities quoted at 4¾ per cent flat, against 4¾ to 5 yesterday. Foreign exchange rates continued to sag, and further talk of a reduction of the Bank of England rate was heard.

As an indication of the low ebb of speculative activity, only a little more than 600 issues were traded on the stock exchange, approximately half of the issues listed. Price changes were narrow and indecisive.

Rails Again Advance.

Rails came into favor late in the session. Chesapeake & Ohio, Atchison, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago Great Western Preferred, Nickel Plate, and St. Louis Southwestern rose 2 to 4 points. Other shares closing higher included General Electric, General Refractories, Canada Dry, Indian Refining, and Western Union, up about 2 to 5 points. Some of the utilities were well bought. Pacific Lighting rose 3 points, and United Corporation was actively traded, closing fractionally higher.

Pools were said to be conducting experimental activities in a few of the lower priced issues. International Nickel and U. S. Pipe & Foundry were bid up about 2 points in large turnovers.

U. S. Steel closed a point lower, and shares losing 2 to 5 points included Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Auburn Auto, Bordens, International Business Machine, Lambert, Union Pacific, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Radio Keith, a strong spot yesterday, sagged a point.

Commodities Prove Firmer.

Commodities were generally firmer. Wheat sold up nearly a cent on unfavorable weather reports from the Southwest, and corn gained fractionally, reflecting bad weather in Illinois.

The cotton market was extremely dull, but closed firm, reflecting a better tone in the Liverpool market. Coffee futures rallied a little and refined sugar was advanced 1-10 cent to 5 1-5 cents a pound for fine granulated.

In the foreign exchanges, attention was focused on the Spanish peseta, which dropped about ½-cent to 12.50 cents, the lowest in several years. The decline was attributed to the political situation in Spain.

Sterling dropped about 1¼ cents to slightly under par, reflecting the prospect of a lower bank of England rate. Cables were quoted at $4.87.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—With premiums being asked on United States wheat ready for export, the shoe was on the other foot today regarding theoretical competition from Russia. Furthermore, instead of breadstuffs coming out of Russia to seek a market, that country was reported today as inquiring abroad for flour and also for wheat to seed. Under such circumstances quotations on wheat future deliveries advanced readily in Chicago today with much notable buying due to sleet storms in Kansas and Missouri.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝ to 2¼ a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼ to ⅝ cent advance; oats ⅛ to ¼@⅝ cent up, and provisions showing 20@22c to 37c gain.

Helping to restore prestige today to the buying side of the wheat market here were upturns in Liverpool quotations, together with general agreement of advices from all sources that Russia has little wheat to sell this season. The gist of current information was that recent Russian sales of wheat to other countries were of scattered parcels which would be greatly inconvenient to move to the interior of Russia from Black Sea ports, and thus was to be disposed of by export. It was predicted in some quarters that Russia's total exports of wheat this year will not amount to more than 10,000 tons.

In sharp contrast with apparent dwindling away of the specter of possible large Russian exports of wheat, late advices at hand here today told of Portugal seeking to purchase 47,000 tons of wheat, about 1,500,000 bushels. Meanwhile Omaha prices today for No. 1 domestic hard winter wheat were declared to be on an export basis. In addition, all offers of No. 2 hard for export at the Gulf of Mexico were said to have been cleared up, unless a premium was paid of 1c a bushel over the price of May delivery. Actual new export business in North American wheat today was estimated at 600,000 bushels with numerous inquiries from overseas at figures near to a working arrangement.

Better shipping demand here for corn did a good deal to lift the corn market. Besides rural offerings of corn to arrive were scant, owing partly to adverse weather. Oats sympathized with upturns in wheat and corn.

Active buying for commission houses carried provisions higher. Reasons included an advance in hog values and also noted improvement of consumer demand both for lard and meats.

BOND PRICES CLIMB DURING ACTIVE DAY

Rails Lead Advance Which Is General in All Issues but Convertibles.

FOREIGN SHARES STRONG

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Bond prices rose on easing money tendencies today. The advance, added to the improvement registered earlier in the week, carried securities of the highest grade close to their 1929 highs. Sales were the largest since before Christmas.

Rails led the advance, closely followed by the utility liens. United States Governments were inclined to lag, with the bulk of the trading in Fourth Liberties and Treasury 4¼s, both of which made slender advances.

Dealers reported a livelier demand from small investors for bonds of the best ratings, and a fairly good proportion of the day's business came from this source. Interest charges on longer time loan maturities declined to 4¾ flat against recent quotations of 4¾ to 5, but inquiry was light. Call money repeated its Tuesday performance by renewing at 4½ per cent and then dropping to 4. In the outside market a 3½ per cent rate appeared.

Rails Are In Demand.

Demand for the rails centered in the legal group, but was also felt among the secondary issues. Some of the stronger obligations were Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s, Gold 4s and Southwestern Division 5s, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul General 4½s, Erie Refunding 5s, Soo Line 6s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Northern Pacific 6s, Union Pacific 5s and First 4s and the extensive listings of New York Central, Pennsylvania and New Haven.

Trading in the utilities was of average proportions. The firmer issues included Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, May, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Detroit Edison 6s, Laclede Gas 5s and New York Telephone general 4½s. Industrials were dull. A rise of 1¼ in Republic Iron & Steel 5½s provided one of the few features in this group. Shell Pipe Line 5s and Shell Union 5s made fractional improvement on fair buying.

Poor Showing in Convertibles.

The convertibles made a poor showing. More than half of the day's turnover in American Telephone 4½s appeared in the first half hour and after an extremely narrow price movement the debentures were unchanged at the close. An unusual occurrence among the share feature bonds was the record of only one sale in International Telephone convertible 4½s, involving a $1,000 bond. A few months ago this issue was trading to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars daily.

Foreign obligations were again stronger and moderately active. German 7s held firm on a substantial turnover. Brisbane City 5s advanced nearly 4 points, while numerous South American loans rose a point or more.

New bond offerings scheduled for tomorrow include a $7,500,000 issue of Butler Brothers serial debenture 5s, maturing from February 1, 1932, to 1945, priced to yield 5.30 to 5.75 per cent.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1930. 17

SHARKEY-SCOTT BOUT SCHEDULED FOR 15 ROUNDS

SALARY ACT REHEARSED BY RUTH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The ballyhoo for the winter program of the sport industry among the itching palms of Florida now seems to be well under way. Babe Ruth has conferred with his employer, Col. Jake Ruppert, the brewer, at the brewery, on the matter of compensation for his next season's home runs, and has adjourned the discussion to St. Petersburg, a pleasant place, except that a great many tent-show prohibitionists, acrobatic exhorters and professional horrible examples go there to spend their off-season and some portion of their gate receipts.

And the Garden Corporation, in the apparent belief that the worst available prize fight is good enough for the City of Miami, has hired Fainting Phil Scott, the Tilbury seagull, as Jack Sharkey's accompanist in the annual Battle of No Particular Importance. The engagement of Fainting Phil for this performance appears to be final, as Mr. Wealthy Will Carey has signed a contract to this effect with Mr. James Johnston, owner of the American rights to the noted dry diver and the New York Prize Fight Commission has always been very meticulous about the protection of Mr. Johnston's contractural rights.

Commission Can Not Protect Everybody.

Of course, in protecting Mr. Johnston's contractural rights, it is sometimes necessary to inflict cruel and unusual punishment on the customers, as Mr. Johnston now and again comes up with a very depressing pugilist, but a prize fighting commission can not protect everybody.

Mr. Ruth seems to have been quite brusque to the benefactor, Col. Jake Ruppert, who put him in a position to hit large numbers of home runs and even went so far as to build a stadium holding, at a pinch, 80,000 cash patrons to watch him do this. In all previous negotiations about his wages with Mr. Ruppert, the Babe has walked into the office at the Colonel's near-beer reservoir, laid his hat on the desk and inquired, mildly, "Where do I sign?"

Three years ag, Mr. Ruth went to the brewery fully instructed as to what he was to say to the colonel and under positive orders to hold out for $100,000 a year for three years. Mr. Christy Walsh, the alert young journalistic junk-peddler, who had been selling the vicarious essays of Mr. Ruth and much similar literary offal to the press for some years, had become a sort of manager for the Babe and had schooled him in box-office values for several weeks while they were touring the Pacific coast.

Ruth's Act a Hit—In Rehearsal.

When the time came for the Babe to return to New York and come to terms with Col. Ruppert, Mr. Walsh rode as far as Ogden or Salt Lake City with him in the drawing room, rehearsing him in his responses.

"Now I will be Jake Ruppert and you will be Babe Ruth," Mr. Walsh said, in the final rehearsal of the scene. "You come into the office and I say to you 'Hello, Babe; you are not looking very well. Do you think you will last through next summer?'

"Now, what are you supposed to say?"

"I am supposed to say 'I want a three-year contract at $100,000 or I will retire from the great national game.'" Mr. Ruth replied brightly.

"Fine," Mr. Walsh exclaimed. "Now I say, 'you must be crazy. I think I will trade you to the Red Sox.' And what do you say?"

"I say 'all right, then, there is no sense of our talking any more, so good-by, Jake.'"

Mr. Walsh said that would be great and got off the train.

Grabs Pen Out of Owner's Hands.

"And a few days later," Mr. Walsh related afterward, "I picked up a paper and read something like this: 'Babe Ruth walked into the Yankee offices at the brewery today, grabbed a fountain pen out of Jake Ruppert's hand, signed a contract for three years at $70,000 a year and walked out saying he was well pleased with the terms and expected to have a great season.'

"That was the year," Mr. Walsh said, "that he knocked 60 home runs. He was worth $125,000 that season alone."

But yesterday when Mr. Ruth met the colonel he did not forget his lessons. Col. Ruppert offered Mr. Ruth $70,000 for the season of 1930 only.

Lynch Is Star As C.U. Five Bows, 35-25

Mount St. Mary's Led to Victory Here by District Boy.

Cardinals Gain Early Lead But Trail by 16-11 at Half.

By JACK ESPEY.

LED y Joe Lynch, former Gonzaga High star, a clever bunch of basketeers from Mount St. Mary's College sent the Catholic University Cardinals down to their first defeat of the season by a score of 35 to 25, last night in the Brookland gymnasium. It was the third straight win for the Emmitsburg collegians, who previously had defeated Blue Ridge and Franklin and Marshall. Catholic's record now is two games won and one lost.

Lynch, the son of the famous veteran, Mike Lynch, local marathon runner, proved in one respect a chip off the old block. He ran all night, that is, for the duration of the game, and appeared to have enough wind left at the end to keep on until this morning.

Joe and his teammates, all of whom have performed in varsity competition for two seasons, were too speedy for the Cardinals. This advantage, in the final analysis, was decisive. From start to finish the Mountain boys showed the ability to outfoot the Catholic defense, "breaking" for the basket at timely moments and sinking most of their shots unimpeded.

Catholic Fought To Finish.

Catholic's resistance, however, was by no means weak and the visitors never could feel at ease until the final whistle blew. Toward the end of the first half, the Cardinals took the lead, but shortly thereafter the Saints closed the gap and went ahead for the rest of the game. They led at the intermission, 16 to 11.

Coach Fred Rice upset the dope by starting the first-string Catholic team and this combination played intact until ten minutes before the end. It previously was Rice's policy to start a team of "shock troops" whom he would keep in action for five or ten minutes before the regulars took the floor. Last night the regulars showed improvement over earlier games but still couldn't match the speed and all-around class of Mount St. Mary's.

Walsh Puts C. U. In Front.

Capt. Joe Walsh staked Catholic to a 2-point lead with a long heave in the first minute, but Buddy McGarrigan and Capt. Mike McCall soon put the Saints ahead with two successful charity tossers each. After Hickey sank a foul, Eddie Ryscavage sent Mount St. Mary's into a 6-to-3 lead with a sensational one-hand stab from side court.

Johnny Oliver and Ray Clemons found their scoring "lamps" at this stage and not only cut down the visitors margin but sent Catholic in the van by 11 to 6. It began to appear as if the touted Marylanders were going to belie advance notices of their power. But just then Jerry Connell, Chick Chanowski, Ryscavage and finally Lynch flipped field goals in rapid succession to place Mount St. Mary's on top for good.

All hopes of a Cardinal victory were virtually snuffed out in the early moments of the second half when the Saints, with Lynch leading the way, ran the score up to 24 to 11. Despite desperate efforts, the Cards subsequently were never able to get within ten points of a tie.

Spohrer Bout For Shires Allowed

Boston Gives License; Illinois Clears Art of All Charges.

'Daly' Suspended for Life; Michigan to 'Try' Shires.

BOSTON, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today decided to grant a license for the bout scheduled here Friday night between Charles A. Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, and Al Spohrer, catcher for the Boston Braves.

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission today exonerated Charles Arthur "the great" Shires, fighting White Sox baseball player, from all charges of dishonesty in his fight here December 9 with "Dangerous Dan" Daly, of Cleveland, and suspended Daly, who made the charges, for life.

James Mullen, of Chicago, who promoted the match which ended in a knockout victory for Shires after 21 seconds of fighting; Eddie Meade, of Cleveland, manager for Daly, and Nessie Blummenthal, manager for Shires, also were exonerated.

Daley Made False Affidavit.

In ordering Daly's life suspension, the commission said he had made a false affidavit as to name and age when he applied for a license and that his statement to the Ohio State Journal, of Columbus, that he was intimidated into taking a "dive" in the fight, was as "false as his affidavit."

Chairman John Clinnin of the Illinois commission said he "yet didn't know what Daly's right name was."

Daly failed to appear before the investigating body either yesterday or today to repeat his charges.

The great Shires, without a mark on his boyish face to show that he won a one-round victory over Tony Faeth at St. Paul last night, broke into a lengthy discourse upon why he happened to take up boxing. He was low financially and needed money he said.

Has Respectful Tone Of Perfect Witness.

Going through the usual formalities, Gen. Clinnin asked Shires, as he stepped into the witness chair, his name.

"Arthur," was the answer in the respectful tone of a perfect witness.

"Just plain Arthur, or simple?" Gen. Clinnin asked.

Even the red-headed ball player broke into a smile as he hitched into a more comfortable position.

"Well, I guess it's a little of both," he sheepishly answered.

Shires, in telling the commission of what he knew of the fight, declared with emphasis that he never had taken part in anything dishonest in his life, had never asked for favors in any of his athletic endeavors, and that his knockout of Daly was absolutely on the level. He said he never had seen Daly until the afternoon of the fight, when they appeared at the commission offices for the weighing-in.

Blumenthal, Shires' manager, testified that in arranging for the match he had only asked Promoter Mullen to get an opponent with no more ring experience than Shires. He denied that any attempt had been made to intimidate Daly or that he had been asked to lay down.

Shires and his manager left tonight for Lansing, Mich., to appear before the Wolverine Boxing Commission tomorrow to clear themselves of charges that they attempted to frame a fight between Shires and a heavyweight named Battling Criss, at Detroit last week.

Basket Ball Erupts Peace of Hoosiers on Many Battle Fronts

GARY, Ind., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The 1930 edition of Hoosier Hardwood Follies is on along Umteen battle fronts and basket ball news is lively.

Confronted with an unexpected tax refund from the State board, a small Indiana town was given the choice by the municipal fathers of building a new gymnasium or paving Main street. In the plebescite, the gymnasium and bigger basket ball games won.

Franklin and Columbus have severed athletic relations because the principal of one school is alleged to have said something critical concerning the size of the opposition's floor.

Wiley and Garfield high schools of Terre Haute played a game which ended in a 33-to-15 victory for Wiley. Yet each team accused the other of "stalling."

When a Southport foul tosser winked to a team mate stationed beside the basket and passed to him instead of trying for a free throw, the referee refused to permit the subsequent field goal, and, in turn, fouled Southport. Broad Ripple won, and the referee was almost mobbed.

STENOGS WIN, 24-23, OVER GONZAGA

Regulars Sent Into Game and Register Clever Victory.

THE regulars of Business High School's Basket Ball Team had their work cut out for them very definitely yesterday at the Gonzaga High School Gymnasium, but when given an opportunity to perform their task, came through with flying colors.

A decision of Coach Lynn F. Woodworth kept the entire first team of the Stenogs on the bench for the first quarter of the game, which opened Gonzaga's court schedule, and the Purple quintet ran wild against the Orange and Blue reserves to run up a 11-2 lead in the first ten minutes of play.

However, letting loose with his entire array of first-string performers at the start of the second quarter, Woodworth had the satisfaction of seeing them outpoint the Purple for the remainder of the game and overcoming the handicap consigned to them by their reserves, were ahead of the Gonzaga Five at the finish, 24-23.

Early Lead Aided Gonzaga.

Had it not been for the 9-point lead amassed by the Purple against the Business "shock troops" it is doubtful whether the prepmen would have been in the running at all. The conquerors of the championship Tech Five played rings around their hosts all afternoon, with the exception of a few minutes in the last quarter, when Coach Orrell Mitchell's henchmen rallied to draw dangerous-

Garden Signs Fighters for The Year

Plan to Match Victor With Schmeling for Title in June.

Griffiths, Loughran May Fight on Supporting Card.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Articles of agreement calling for a fifteen-round match, if permitted under Florida boxing laws, were signed today in completing agreements for Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, the British champion, to meet in a heavyweight feature bout at Miami, Fla., February 27.

The Madison Square Garden Corporation obtained an option on the services of the winner for the rest of 1930 under the agreement signed on behalf of Scott by Jimmy Johnston, and for Sharkey by his manager, Johnny Buckley.

This will enable the Garden to stage what it expects to be the final and decisive chapter of the heavyweight title series some time in the summer. The plan is for Max Schmeling, of Germany, to meet the winner.

Originally plans called for a ten-round Sharkey-Scott match. Although the experts consider this sufficient in which to reach a decision, representatives of both principals prefer a fifteen-round limit, if possible.

Fighters Will Share 50 Per cent of Net.

It was announced at the official signing today that the gladiators will share 50 per cent of the net proceeds. Scott will receive but 20 per cent if the gate falls below $200,000.

Johnny Buckley, manager of the Boston belter, will head southward about January 20. The heavyweights will start serious training about the first of February.

The task of building a supporting card was started as soon as the principals signed for the main bout. Present plans call for two American heavyweights, probably Tuffy Griffiths and Tommy Loughran to oppose the best pair of foreign goliaths available in two 10-round matches. Victorio Campolo, who arrived here today from Argentina, is expected to get one assignment and either Otto von Porat or Paulino Uzcudun the other.

Florida Will Permit Long Bout.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Louis MacReynolds, chairman of the boxing commission, said today there was no regulation in the Florida State boxing law which would prohibit a fifteen-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott.

"There is a local ruling by which the Miami commission can govern the number of rounds in a fight and their length, but Sharkey and Scott can fight fifteen full-time rounds if they wish, MacReynolds said.

MacReynolds said the local ruling

DUKE TO FACE MARYLAND TONIGHT

District Boys on Both Expected to Draw Capacity Crowd.

THE most attractive college basket ball game of the young season here will be played at Ritchie gymnasium, College Park tonight when the high-powered Maryland and Duke quintets clash starting at 8 o'clock. The exceptional lure of the contest has indicated that a capacity crowd will be present.

The presence of many Washington natives in both squads serves to make the game unusually appealing. At least seven former Capital schoolboy stars will perform for one team or the other.

In the line-up of Duke, which was second to North Carolina State in the Southern Conference championship race last winter, will be Harry Councilor, forward; Joe Croson, center, and Bill Werber, guard, all of whom learned their basketball at Tech High School. The starting Maryland line-up is certain to include Bozie Berger, forward, formerly of Tech and Julie Radice, guard, a product of Eastern, but it is also very likely that Bills Evans, forward, a graduate of Business, and Al Heagy, guard, an alumnus of Western, will see action.

Shipley Undecided On Starters.

Coach Burton Shipley, of Maryland, was undecided last night as to whom he will use at right forward and left guard. Either Evans or Ronkin will get the forward call at the beginning, while either Heagy or Gaylor will start at the open guard position. Fred Hetzel is definitely picked to take the center post.

Duke also has other Washington boys available—Don Garber, forward, formerly of Western, and Bob Grist, guard, former Tech player, being ready to serve as substitutes.

All signs point to a high-scoring game, as there is a wealth of keen-eyed shooting talent in each squad. Councilor, Werber and Croson are deadly shots, who have supplied a great deal of the punch for Duke since the middle of the 1928-1929 campaign when Croson became eligible for varsity competition. This youth, possessed of exceptional height and reach, is "poison" to his rivals under the basket.

Maryland Boasts Marksmen.

In Berger, Evans, Ronkin and Radice, Maryland boasts a quartet of sure-fire marksmen, who require mighty attentive guarding on the part of their opponents. Any one of them is dangerous from short or long range.

Maryland holds an edge in one respect. Coach Shipley being blessed with an extraordinarily large force of reserves. In all he has twelve players on whom he can rely for capable relief work.

Hadley First to Sign; To Work on Bonus Plan

Irving Hadley, young Washington Club pitcher, is the first player to sign a 1930 contract, surprising President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, yesterday by showing up at club headquarters and quickly affixing his name to the papers.

"I am not prepared to give the terms," said Griffith, "but found Hadley, who was accompanied by his father, most reasonable. He agreed with me that his work was disappointing last season and was willing to accept a bonus proposition, whereby he gets a basic salary and as much more in the form of a bonus as his work justifies."

Hadley, who looked to be in good physical condition and to be carrying little excess weight, came here with his wife by automobile. They are en route to Florida, where they plan to spend the winter either at Palm Beach or at Miami.

Campolo Invades U. S. For Second Campaign

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, arrived here today for another campaign in American rings. He retired to South America following a defeat last summer by Phil Scott.

Ruth Out Shopping For Trip to Florida

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth spent today spending money instead of trying to get more. The big Yankee home-run hitter, after leaving his minimum terms of $85,000 on the desk of the Yankee club officials, devoted today to shopping preparatory to going south Saturday.

The slugger will go to St. Petersburg and Miami before starting active baseball training. His plans, he said, call for golf and more golf.

Ruth declared his demand for a three-year contract at $85,000 annually was serious and he expected to get it. Yankee officials repeated previous statements that they were not signing baseball players to three-year contracts now and had offered Ruth their limit, $75,000 a year for two years.

HIGH SCORES IN COAST TOURNEY

McLeod Fails to Qualify in Los Angeles Open Trials.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—In 36-hole tests marked by few par or near-par figures, 84 golfers won their way through the qualifying rounds of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open Championship Tournament. Their names were added to the list of 45 contestants whose low scores last year in the United States open and the Los Angeles open exempted them from the qualifying trials.

Tom Kerrigan, of New York, and Harold Long, of Denver, posted total scores of 140 to tie for medal honors. With few exceptions other scores mounted to the class of ordinary golf.

Favorites mostly came through as expected, although several strong golfers failed to make the grade. Included in the list of nonqualifiers were Larry Nabhowtz, of Houston, Tex.; Clarence Hubby, of Waco, Tex., and Fred McLeod, of Washington, first round, touring the Lakeside Course in 87, 17 over par. Nabholtz and Hubby faltered in the final round.

Farrell Plays Steady Golf.

Johnny Farrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., a former national open title holder, played steady golf to chalk up 71—72—143 for the Lakeside course, while William ("Wild Bill") Mehlhorn, of New York, another first liner, went around the Rancho course in 73—71—144.

Because of the entry list of more than 300, qualifying rounds were held over seven courses, with the low eleven and ties moving into the preferred class.

Championship play will begin Friday, with 18 holes that day and Saturday and the 36-hole finals on Sunday.

Plan to Reduce Number Of Fouls Suggested

Detroit, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A method for reducing the number of fights decided by fouls, is being put forward by Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia. Dunn would have the fighters meet again the following week as an added attraction to another card. Both boxers who took part in the match which ended in a foul would have their purses held up until after the second meeting and if either fighter refused to fight again his purse would be given to some suitable charity.

Harvard and Yale Nines To Play Coachless Game

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Harvard has accepted Yale's invitation to play their annual baseball series this spring without the assistance of coaches. Yale and Princeton have entered into a similar agreement which will leave the control of the game entirely within the hands of the captains and players.

Prof. George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of Yale University Athletic Association, said today the agreements "are in full harmony with the general principle, long supported and advocated by Yale, of encouraging the initiative and self-reliance of the players themselves."

SECOND BASE IS BIG "IF" IN 1930 PLANS OF GIANTS

Reese to Bid Strongly for Position

Veterans in All Other Posts Lessen Worries of McGraw.

Walker and Hubbell Bulwarks of Bulky Mound Staff.

This is another of a series of stories on 1930 prospects of major league baseball clubs by Brian Bell.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The biggest "if" in the preseason baseball plans of the New York Giants hovers about second base. If manager John J. McGraw knew that this position would be well cared for in 1930 most of his worries would be over before they start.

The other infield positions are in the capable hands of Bill Terry, Travis Jackson and Freddie Lindstrom. Andy Reese, regarded last spring as a likely successor to a long line of great Giant second basemen, was unable to show to advantage on account of a bad foot. Eddie Marshall, likely infielder, was sent away for experience and got it in the Eastern League. A two-fisted fight may be waged at the training camp between Reese and Marshall for the job.

Eddie Farrell, who has had plenty of experience, will make a bid, and Dave Bancroft, who will be a player as well as coach, can perform in a pinch. Pat Crawford, reserve, first baseman, third baseman and pinch hitter, again will await emergencies.

Ott Stands Out Among Eight Outfielders.

Eight outfielders will report at San Antonio. Melvin Ott, the boy wonder, being the stand-out. Fred Leach, Charlie Fullis and Ed Rousch are among the 1929 forces reenlisted, and George Fisher, Sam Leslie, Art Veltman and Ray Fitzgerald will try to show enough to displace the veterans. Leslie, formerly a Southern Association and Southeastern League first baseman, will become an outfielder under tutelage of Giant experts. It is understood that he needs no lessons in hitting.

The McGraw team had plenty of pitchers last season, but unfortunately some of them could not pitch. The two star lefthanders, Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell, will be back and so will Larry Benton, sensational right-hander of 1928, who could not get started in 1929. Freddie Fitzsimmons, the fielding star, Joe Genewich, John Scott, and Ralph Judd will be back.

Herb Pruett Among Newcomers.

Among the new men Leroy Parmelee, Ray Lucas and Herb Pruett are known to be highly regarded. Pruett knows his way about both major leagues, having worked his left-handed wizardry for the Browns in the American and the Phillies in the National. Wallie Brush, a Florida youngster with more stuff than he knows what to do with, James Tennant, Joe Heving, Pawley and Puttman are other pitchers to be inspected.

Three of the four catchers on the roster are named Francis, so the ranks are sure to be in a majority with Bob O'Farrell, their only rival. Frank Hogan has nothing to worry about but his weight. Frank Healey and Frank Leveque are willing to learn.

CRESCENTS WIN AGAIN.

Crescent Five took another opponent into camp last night, defeating the Calvary Reds, 35-16, at the Central High Gym. Weigle led the victors with 11 points.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY HENRY F. COLLYER.

COUNT PALATINE $17.00. That is the happy hooligan your Uncle Bertram pulled out of the pickling vat for the faithful down at Fair Grounds Tuesday and at the same time, I doled out no less than four nice ones at Havana. Some stepping, eh? Just by way of making conversation, I have slipped you folks no less than eight winners in three days at this track—and I am confident of giving you at least three more today.

Be that as it may, the good KADIAK, which is scheduled to sport silks in the fifth down at the Fair Grounds this aft, looks to be far and away the best betting proposition of the day. Frankly speaking, this trick has at least a five-point call on the field and I know the connections expect as much as 3 to 1—and their own dough back.

They are beginning to trot out some of the classy nags that have been warming their feet at the old course (while the cheaper mavericks have been earning their salt at Jefferson Park), and today's program finds such as LEUCITE and TANTIVY billed to face Starter Bill Hamilton.

By the same token the good Whitney trick GRIZEL is tossed into the day's appetizer, a maiden race at 6 furlongs. Boy Walter shoots me this as his XXX special, and, although he has not been out for some time, it looks like something of a spread. At the same time the pride of Louisville quirks that IRAQ is at the top of his best form and appends: "Tell the gang to go hook, line and sinker."

The very first heat down at Havana looks like one of those things for STYLISH MACK, a good third last time. After you grab that one go right back on LASSA and CHARBUEL, and don't ever let any one tout you off, either.

Just received a flash on ESCONDIDA in the second spasm at the Fair Grounds. For this and all that has gone before let your conscience be your guide. So be it.

"Fights have generally been ten-round affairs here," he said, "but we have had twelve-round bouts at times, and the commission will allow Madison Square Garden Corporation to put on any length fight it wishes to in this case."

ly close to the Orange and Blue Team.

Sent into the fray trailing by nine points, the Business regulars uncorked a scoring spree at once which was uninterrupted by a Gonzaga score until well in the third quarter. Eight baskets in a row were scored by the Stenogs before Pyne could put Gonzaga back in the scoring column and when the final period of play began, Business was boasting a 20-15 lead. Fancy shots, and one-handed tosses by Chase, Capt. Newman and Loftus, all had a hand in the Business rally with the last named looking especially good while leading his team with seven points.

Late in the game, the Mitchell-coached aggregation showed signs of increasing power and was forcing its foes to the limit at the end. Buddy McVean came through with several neat shots in the last quarter rally, while the all-round play of Danny Pyne was of high caliber.

A. A. U. BASKET BALL TOURNEY STARTS MARCH 10

Knight Store Five May Be Barred

Court Committee Will Recommend Ban for Playing Eagles.

Entries to Close at The Post at Midnight Feb. 28.

THE District of Columbia A. A. U. championship basket ball tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, will start March 10, it was definitely decided last night at a meeting of the basket ball committee of the local association at a meeting held last night at the Boys Club. While the place for the games was not agreed upon, the choice lies between the Tech High and the George Washington University gymnasiums.

At the same time the committee broadcast warning that teams and players contemplating entering the tournament refrain from playing against the Skinker Brothers Eagles and the R. E. Knight Store five, of Alexandria. The basket ball committee will recommend to the registration committee thot the Knight Store team and all players who participated in the game be barred from entering the tournament because of playing the Eagles at Silver Spring last Sunday.

The committee set midnight on February 28 as the time for the closing of entries for the tournament. Entries will be accepted at the Sports Department of The Post until that hour.

Players Must Register Before February 1.

Teams contemplating entering the tournament are being reminded by the committee that players in the unlimited and 145-pound classes must be registered in the A. A. U. before February 1 while last night action was taken that will make it necessary for all tournament players to have participated in at least one game prior to February 1, the box score of that game to be published in The Washington Post.

In the 100, 115 and 130 pound boys' classes and the two girls' classes it will be necessary that all players participate in at least one game before March 1.

Players may apply for registration to William E. Russell, registrar of the District Association, at 1503 North Capitol street.

Team entry blanks, as well as applications for registration, will be available at the sports department of The Washington Post early next week.

Few Changes in Rules For Tourney.

With one or two exceptions the tournament will be conducted under rules similar to those in force in the South Atlantic championships of recent years. All teams will be allowed ten players this year, instead of eight, as has been the case heretofore. All players on the winning team in each class will be presented with regulation A. A. U. gold medals.

The entrance fees, classes and weight limits remain the same. Teams in the 100, 115 and 130 pound classes will be assessed $2.50 with clubs in all other classes paying $3.50.

Owner of Pelicans Commits Suicide

New Orleans, La., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A. J. Heineman, president and owner of the New Orleans Pelicans, of the Southern Association, shot himself fatally early tonight in his office at the local ball park that bears his name.

The baseball magnate had been in ill health for some time, friends asserted, and had been given to fits of despondency. Coroner George F. Roeing pronounced the death a suicide.

Heinemann was 51 years old and was a prominent figure in the organized baseball field. Although he lost heavily in the recent stock market fluctuations, friends believed that his health, and not his financial affairs, induced his act.

He was an idol of the fans who took a delight in razzing "Heinie." Outside of New Orleans he was well liked by sportsmen and followers of baseball.

"He was one of the best guys that ever lived, but nobody ever just understood him," said Jake Atz, manager of the Dallas Baseball Club, as he looked at his friend's body.

Maryland Trackmen To Be Busy Indoors

Maryland University plans greater activity in indoor-track competition this winter than in three years. Coach "Swede" Eppley has a fairly promising squad of thin clads and wants to work them as often as possible in winter meets so as to have them in good shape for a strenuous outdoor season that has been arranged. The Terrapins will compete at New York in the Millrose games on February 8, at Philadelphia in the Meadowbrook games on February 12, and at Charlottesville in the University of Virginia meet toward the close of the season.

Out of doors, Maryland will send representatives to the Penn Relays and Southern Conference championships, in addition to dual meets with Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Washington & Lee, Virginia Military Institute, Navy and William and Mary. A feature of the Maryland outdoor track campaign will be the revival of the annual Maryland interscholastic games, which will be held in conjunction with the Terrapin-Virginia dual affair on May 3.

Kieckhefer Remains In Cue Title Race

New York, Jan. 8.—(A.P.).—Staging a late rally, Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, remained in running for the national three cushion billiard title this afternoon with a 50 to 49 victory over Charlie Jordan, of Los Angeles, in 72 innings. Both players had a high run of five.

Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, won his second game of the tournament in another afternoon match, defeating Harry Schuler, of New York, 50 to 25 in 50 innings. It was Schuler's sixth straight defeat. Denton had a high run of five, while Schuler's best cluster was three.

In a brilliant defensive game, Johnny Layton, of St. Louis, remained in the battle for his title by turning back the youthful Allan Hall, of St. Louis, 50-to-35 in 55 innings. It was Layton's fifth win in six starts. Otto Reiscit, of Philadelphia, is his only remaining opponent. Hall dropped out of the race, as it was his second defeat. Layton started off sensationally with a high run of nine, the second highest of the tournament, and was never headed.

West Virginians Improve As Game With G. U. Nears

Expect to Have Smoth-Working Machine Against Hilltoppers in Game at Morgantown Tomorrow Night.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 8. Having exhibited the improvement expected of them in their battle with Carnegie Tech last Saturday night, following a disastrous start against Nebraska on Thursday, the West Virginia University hoopsters returned to their drills Monday and have spent most of the time since in a "weeding out" process. They are planning to eliminate plays this week which did not function properly against either the Cornhuskers or the Tartans, with the end in view of hitting their stride in their third battle of the season next Friday night with Georgetown University's quintet as the opposition.

In the Nebraska game, the seasonal opener, the Mountaineers passed raggedly and their goaling was atrociously off. Against Tech there was a marked improvement in both departments and the defense was tightened up considerably also.

Capt. Glenn Not Yet in Shooting Form.

Capt. "Little Sleepy" Glenn, considered West Virginia's greatest basketer, has not hit his stride as yet and has not been up to form in goaling. His floor game has been virtually as sparkling as ever, and, if he begin sinking goals with his customary regularity, the Mountaineers will have a great scoring machine.

The improvement marked in the play of two new cogs in the Mountaineer floor machine, Eddie Bartrug, center, and Eddie Cubbon, lanky sophomore forward, and a like gain by the veteran guards, George Ratcliffe and Lawrence Plaster, have added new life to the spark of hope in the West Virginia camp that even yet the Mountaineers will sprint out and hang up their best record.

Bartung's jumping and general floor play has been much better than it was in the opener with Nebraska, and the removal of Cubbon from a reserve center post to a regular forward job was apparently to his liking. The lanky sophomore gave an exhibition befitting a veteran against Tech.

Mountaineers Beginning to Look Formidable.

With Glenn expected to hit his stride soon and the two new units—Bartrug and Cubbon—beginning to function right while the veteran guards—Ratcliffe and Plaster—are doing their parts well the Mountaineers are beginning to look formidable. The group of reserves, including two veteran forwards, Truehart Taylor and Emory Lepera, one veteran guard, Eddie Fox, and three promising sophomores, Johnny Doyle, forward, and Beverley Michie and "Red" Gordon, guards, add even more attractiveness.

NAVY SCORES OVER WAKE FOREST

Deacons Miss Many Shots and Bow, 39 to 20.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 8.—A fast-passing five from Wake Forest College of North Carolina failed to locate the rim consistently despite their other good work, and Navy rolled up win No. 3, as the Southerners were tripped for the same number in a row. The score was 39 to 20. Play was fairly interesting, the Carolinians having more scoring opportunities than did the Middies.

At the start neither side could score, players rushing up and down the floor shooting at random. Coach John N. Wilson of Navy began his second team, as is customary, but the visitors had so many scoring opportunities in the first eight minutes, although they made but a lone foul, that the Middie mentor sent his first string in with the score 5 to 1. At half-time the count was 18 to 13, Albert Dalton, center, making 8 points in order to keep his mates in the running.

Navy Starts Regulars In Second Half.

Navy kept its combination in to start the second half, because of difficulty in stopping the Deacons' thrusts, which, however, aside from the flips of Dalton, high scorer of the day, were ineffective. Wake Forest did not score at all in the first ten minutes of the second half. The underhand shooting of the players was somewhat of a novelty, but lacked precision.

Most of Navy's scoring came from out-of-bound plays before which all opponents this year have been completely baffled.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FIGHTING THE COMMON COLD.

MANY men have many treatments of colds. Probably, as is the case with horse colic, the fact that many men have many treatments is proof enough that nature cures without much help from man. If this be true, the best treatment for that most prevalent and most important infection, the common cold, is that which interferes least with the works. This may be considered a good quality in the method used by Dr. William Woolf.

In his conception of the cause of cold he ranks chilling of the surface of the skin, and the lining of the nose and throat high in the list. Therefore, he rather concentrates on warming procedures. He would keep the body warm by means of warm covers and warm clothing. If the sufferer is only mildly uncomfortable, he should keep his feet warm and dry by means of heavy socks and roomy, warm, dry shoes. If his temperature rises above one hundred he puts him in a warm bed with plenty of cover on his feet. The doctor believes in keeping the sickroom warmly comfortable, but of course, not too warm. If the man's temperature goes to 105, he gives a combination of synthetic remedies for temperature control, but only enough to hold the temperature a little above one hundred.

The doctor does not allow the patient to eat ice cream or to drink ice drinks. These foods are soothing, particularly if there is sore throat, but chilling the membranes of the throat promotes infection. He opposes application of cold cloths around the throat, the head, or elsewhere. He does not allow the use of any cold foods. On the other hand, he advises the use of warm sprays and the inhalation of steams. Under certain circumstances he heats the body within through the use of diathermy.

As to diet, he has but little to say. In the main, his trend is toward the "starve a cold" plan. He allows soups and other warm foods in small quantities, perhaps more as sources of water and minerals than for their caloric or food values. He does not enter into a discussion as to the relative values of acid ash and alkaline ash diets. However, a mild degree of acidosis develops under starvation, or a very little of a low calory diet.

SEE AN EYE SPECIALIST.

Mrs. B. I. P. writes:

1. In the sunlight and in certain other degrees of light I see a black spot in front of my eye, which travels with the direction of the eye. I am very nearsighted. Has this anything to do with the weakness of the eye, or, as I have heard, is it some form of intestinal poison?

2. I am perfectly healthy, as several physical examinations indicate. Is there any way I can eliminate this spot? It is very disturbing to my peace of mind.

REPLY.

1. In more than 90 per cent of people floating spot or spots before the eyes is of no consequence and calls for no treatment. In rare cases it is a symptom of some consequence. Have an eye specialist examine the eye and see if your spot has any significance and, if so, tell you what to do.

2. If nothing is wrong it is up to you to treat yourself for absence of "peace of mind."

At a meeting of the Vienna Town Council recently, the council went on record as favoring the installation of an adequate water supply for fire-fighting purposes. It was planned to appropriate $1,500 for the installation of a system that would protect the entire town. It would include water reservoirs located in different sections of the town. The council will meet Saturday afternoon with County Engineer F. Novell Larkin to investigate local conditions and to get his suggestions in locating the reservoirs.

A committee of ten members of the five volunteer fire departments in this county met last night in the town hall at Vienna. A tentative charter and by-laws for the proposed Fairfax Fireman's Association were drawn. These will be submitted to the full membership of each department at their regular monthly meetings. The association will meet again on the first Tuesday in February to receive the report and suggestions from each of the departments.

Since the month of May the force has traveled 71,112 miles. The fees collected were turned over to the county treasurer and placed in the county police fund.

The nurse made 2 health talks to adults, 4 dental clinics were held for 15 days and 96 new patients treated. In conducting the school clinics, 318 pupils with one or more defects were found and 126 corrected; 459 pupils were examined by nurse and doctor and 356 examined by the nurse and dentist. The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of an invitation to attend the fourth State-wide publicity conference of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce at an all-day meeting January 15. E. C. Gibbs, of Mount Vernon, has been selected to represent the local Chamber at this meeting.

The Missionary Society of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church will meet with Mrs. F. A. Wilcox in Windover Heights this morning. Devotional leader will be Mrs. William Seligman, of Clarendon. Mrs. Ralph Shockey, of Falls Church, will review a chapter in the study book, "Crowded Ways." Cohostesses are Mrs. James Allen and Mrs. B. Martin.

The meeting of the Oakton School and community which was to have been held last night has been postponed until tonight. The meeting will take the place of the regular meeting, which fell on New Year's night.

President J. H. Beattie of the McLean School and Community League, at its recent meeting appointed Gordon E. Smith, John Payne and Orland Whitley a committee to suggest the plan and cost of the beautification of the school grounds. The work will consist of the construction of a semicircular concrete roadway and the planting of shrubs around the front of the school. The playgrounds on both sides of the building will be graded and covered with small stones. Plans will be made to secure as many donations from the local nurserymen and school patrons as possible. Arrangements will be made to change the location of the coal bins in the basement, so that the coal can be put in from the side rather than from the front.

Several committees were appointed, consisting of standing committee on schools, the Rev. J. G. Sadtler, chairman; I. Benjamin Fadely and T. M. Corner; civic committee, T. M. Corner, chairman; Orlando Whitley, W. P. Lockwood, Lewis R. Lowe and H. C. Mackall; entertainment committee, J. P. Frech, chairman; Mrs. U. S. Walters and Mrs. J. H. Beattie.

The league instructed the corresponding secretary to write the State Highway Commission urging that the Chain Bridge highway be widened as soon as it is possible, and if the entire road can not be widened at present that the road through congested areas be treated.

At a meeting yesterday of the Wednesday Morning Club of Vienna, the club went on record as favoring the widening of the Chain Bridge road. The secretary was instructed to write the various community organizations of Fairfax, Oakton, McLean and Langley and to urge them to be present at the meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce in the town hall in Vienna Tuesday night, January 14. The chamber will be the guests of the town that night and the general public has been invited.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA brought home a baseball and bat.

"What on earth are you doing with those?" I asked, testing the bat—an old Louisville slugger, the kind we loved on the sandlots.

"They're for you," she said, seeing me pleased.

"It wouldn't be a bad idea to buy a kite and some tops the next time you're downtown," said I, joshing.

Luella eyed me. "There's no money in kite flying, or top spinning, is there?" she asked—a faraway look in her eyes.

"Money? Money? Money? What d'e mean, money?"

"I mean," she explained, "you'll do better with a bat and ball——"

"A bat and ball? I don't understand!"

* * * *

"DIDN'T you see where 'Babe' Ruth is holding out for $85,000 a year——"

"Certainly, but what's that to do with me?"

It seems that once I told Luella of my mighty batting ability—in the old days—and how I knocked a baseball farther than any other player, from Washington to Baltimore, but I failed to tell her the rest of it. The batted ball fell on a freight car, a passing gondola, and got a free ride.

"I should think," she said, "that a man who can play baseball so well would go out and join the Yankees——"

"But the Yankees have 'Babe' Ruth——"

"Not if he doesn't sign the contract. Anyway, what about Walter Johnson's team? He has a team, hasn't he?"

* * * *

"OH, yes! The Senators."

"The Senators? Since when have they taken up baseball? Is Heflin on the team?"

"You don't understand, Luella. That's the nickname of the Washington Team in the American League."

"It is, is it? That makes it much better. You could play right here in Washington, and you wouldn't have to travel——."

"Do you think the Washington Team stays home all the time? It goes around the circuit, playing other teams."

"Oh, goody!" she exclaimed, clapping her hands. "I could go along with you and see some of the country."

To cool her enthusiasm, I had to tell her that the Washington Team is all made up for the season ahead.

* * * *

"THEN my original contention stands," she said. "You'd better try for 'Babe' Ruth's job. I'm sure they'll never pay him $85,000, and you could get the seventy he refuses."

"Tush, tush, tush!" is all I could say.

"Don't you try to wriggle out of it," she commanded. "You're every bit as good a player as 'Babe' Ruth, and you'd better get the job before he changes his mind——"

Modesty overcame me. "Well, I wouldn't say that. Put it this way: When I was playing baseball I was just as good as 'Babe' Ruth is now—but——"

"But what?"

"They've changed the game. I'm out of touch—out of practice——."

"That's why I bought you this bat and ball! You can practice—get in shape——"

So the neighbors are amused at me, out in the back yard every afternoon for batting practice.

BUILDING PROJECTS TO COST $2,000,000

Half-Million-Dollar Power Plant Largest Item in Rockingham.

NEW THEATER PLANNED

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 8.—A half-million-dollar power project on the Shenandoah River, between Elkton and Shenandoah City, by the Shenandoah River Power Co., of Harrisonburg, is the biggest item of the $2,000,000 projected construction program this year in Harrisonburg and Rockingham County.

This hydroelectric plant will generate 2,000 horsepower, and is to be the largest of the many plants along the South Fork of the Shenandoah. The dam will be 24 feet high and will back up the water for nearly 2½ miles, covering an area of 190 acres. The seven plants of the Shenandoah River Co. now have a capacity of 1,600 horsepower, thus the new development will double its output.

Included in the $2,000,000 building program for the city and county are the proposed Alexander Spotswood Hotel, costing $400,000, and the Administration Building at the Harrisonburg State Teachers College, costing $250,000. These projects are not certain to be carried out this year, the hotel depending upon financial developments, and the college dependent upon action of the State Legislature on the budget item. This Administration Building is the capstone of the Harrisonburg plant.

Announced as certain to be built here this year is the new theater of the Shenandoah Valley Theaters, costing approximately $150,000. Work on the foundation for this structure was started some time ago.

In the county, the principal construction work besides the power project will be road building by the State Highway Commission, which is to spend $250,000 on the Valley Pike south of Harrisonburg, and on the Rawley Spring Pike, across Shenandoah Mountain to Pendleton County, W. Va. Construction of residences in the city and county is expected to require another $250,000 this year.

Duke Medical School Gets $300,000.

ANNEXATION CROWDS ARLINGTON SCHOOL

Washington-Lee Plans Double Shift to Care for Influx of New Pupils.

SCHEDULES ARE CHANGED

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Owing to crowded conditions at Washington-Lee High School, S. P. Vanderslice, principal, yesterday announced many changes in the schedule of classes. These changes, he stated, will continue until February 1, at which time it is planned to make a change in the hours of pupils attending the school.

Instead of receiving 17 pupils from the George Mason High School as was expected, annexation proceedings sent 47 pupils to Washington-Lee.

Including this increase, the total enrollment is now 1,261, in a school building with a capacity of 850 pupils. With the increase from promotions from elementary schools in March, indications are that the total will far exceed 1,300 pupils.

Discussing the proposed plan for the change of hours, Mr. Vanderalice stated that many of the pupils will report for classes at 8 and continue through to 12:30 o'clock with another shift from 12:30 to 4:30 o'clock.

"How Arlington County can continue to take care of the continued increase in the school population without making immediate provisions for added classrooms, especially at the Washington-Lee High School, is a question I am unable to answer," he said.

The average attendance for the year is in excess of 95 per cent, which Mr. Vanderalice stated is unusual for this period of the year.

"Taking the figures from educational standards, and there is no other way to consider it, the average for each classroom should not exceed 30 pupils.

"With the present enrollment of 1,261 there should be 42 classrooms, including the laboratory, special rooms and the gymnasium. There are 26 classrooms at Washington-Lee, which shows there is immediate need of 16 more rooms without consideration of the increase which will result from promotions in March.

"Estimating this increase to be 70 pupils, the total enrollment will be 1,331 and with a graduating class in June of 89 pupils, which will be the largest in the history of the school, the enrollment will still be 1,242, which is still 392 more than the capacity of the school."

The Arlington County Chamber of Commerce holds its annual meeting and election of officers tomorrow night at the Washington Lee High School.

The business meeting will be preceded by a dinner, open to all members, prospective members and county civic leaders at 6:30 o'clock.

Plans have been made to entertain 200 persons, and those planning to attend are asked to notify the office of the executive secretary not later than this afternoon.

Allen J. Saville, of Richmond, Va., who directed the zoning of Arlington County, together with members of the zoning commission, are announced as speakers. Reports will also be received showing the activities of the organization during the past year. Sixteen directors will be elected who in turn will elect the officers.

The newly elected secretary-stenographer, Mrs. Kathleen M. Clarke, who has been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the secretary, P. P. Woodbridge, effective January 15, will assume her new duties on that date.

With only six days remaining in which to secure auto license tags, J. V. Turner, in charge of distribution in Arlington County, urges owners of cars who have received their card from Richmond to get their license plates without delay.

Next Wednesday is the final day for use of 1929 tags and Mr. Turner, who is in the offices of Sheriff Howard B. Fields each day until 4 o'clock, announces that he will not stay any later on the last day.

Plans are being made by the ladies auxiliary to the Clarendon Fire Department for a benefit card party January 16.

The Arlington Lodge, No. 133, I. O. O. F., announces they will give a benefit dance in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon tomorrow night. Dancing will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Frank U. Sanderson has been elected president of the Ballston Improvement Association, Inc. Other officers are John T. Lyon, vice president; A. C. Putnam, treasurer, and Lyman M. Kelley, secretary. The members of the board of directors are J. M. King, Elmer E. Speer, E. C. Howell, John McQuinn and George T. Runaker.

According to a report from Sheriff Howard B. Fields, the total number of arrests for the past year was 552, with an average each month of 46. Of the total number, Sheriff Fields stated, a greater number were for violation of the prohibition laws.

Funeral services for Dorothy Ann, 20 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Blackmer, who died at the home of her parents yesterday, will be conducted from the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Scheffel, 124 Jefferson street, Arlington, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Howard E. Snyder, of the Lutheran Church, Washington, assisted by the Rev. Edward G. Latch, of the Arlington Methodist Episcopal Church, will conduct the services. Burial will be in Chestnut Grove Cemetery, at Herndon.

The county board of supervisors will meet in executive session tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the courthouse with the Arlington County Zoning Commission, at which time they will receive copies of the approved zoning ordinance from the commission.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club, meeting last night at the courthouse, made plans to hold its January dinner meeting jointly with the Woman's Club of Washington. The meeting is to be held at the A. A. W. W. Club, 1634 I street northwest, Washington, the night of January 16 at 6:30 o'clock.

Ralph Rhoderick, pleading guilty to a charge of stealing 130 dozen eggs, and Howard Nelson held on the same charge, pleading not guilty, were each held for the action of the grand jury yesterday by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas. Bond for each was fixed by the court at $1,000.

Suit for a divorce was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday by Irma Marguerite Moon against Jonathan Dennis Moon.

Three-year-old George Tucker, of Jefferson Park, Va., suffered minor effects from rat poison swallowed at 10:15 o'clock yesterday morning at his home. He was taken in a passing automobile to Emergency Hospital and was dismissed after treatment.

SHRINE CLUB NAMES G. W. ZACHARY AGAIN

President of Alexandria Group Is Chosen for Fourth Term.

OTHER OFFICERS PICKED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

George W. Zachary has been elected president of the Shrine Club of Alexandria, for the fourth consecutive term, other officers chosen being C. C. Lamond, first vice president; Joseph H. Kretchmer, second vice president; Claude W. Fletcher, treasurer for the fourth term; R. B. Sullivan, recording secretary, and W. J. Permar, chaplain.

The club has indorsed the candidacy of President Zachary for the post of imperial representative to the Imperial Council of North America, in the election which will be held at a meeting of the Shrine in Richmond in February.

The newly-elected officers of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, A. F. and A. M., will preside at their first meeting of the new year at the Temple on Cameron street tonight, the communication being called promptly at 7:30 o'clock. A program of entertainment, followed by refreshments, has been arranged. It has been announced that no degree work will be done at this meeting.

The newly-elected officers are C. F. Swetnam, worshipful master; E. J. Skidmore, senior warden; S. Nelson Gray, junior warden; J. Edward Shinn, treasurer; C. Page Waller, secretary; Robert S. Barrett, senior deacon; R. M. Reeve, junior deacon; C. C. Lamond, jr., senior steward; S. C. Cross, junior steward; George W. Zachary, tiler, and the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, chaplain.

After hearing additional witnesses in Police Court yesterday in the case of James Robinson, colored, 29 years old, who is alleged to have fired shots from his car at Policeman Charles Curtis the night of June 30 while being pursued by the officer for an alleged traffic violation, Robinson was held by Justice W. S. Snow for the grand jury, Robinson's bond of $1,500 being continued.

Justice Snow, however, stated that the evidence was of a conflicting nature. Arthur Skillman, member of the Alexandria Fire Department, the only witness heard yesterday, testified that first one shot was fired from the automobile on the running board of which Policeman Curtis was riding, and that this was followed by a shot from the car occupied by Robinson. The shooting, according to Skillman, took place on the 300 block South Royal street.

The charge against Robinson is attempted assault with a dangerous weapon. Robinson is said to have abandoned his car and taken to a swamp at the extreme southern limit of the city, and the police, aided by a posse of citizens, searched for him several hours without success. He was finally arrested a week ago by Policeman Grimm.

News was received here yesterday of the death in Ellicott City, Md., Tuesday of Mrs. Emma Wheat Carlin Fulton, wife of William F. Fulton, of Fairview, Ellicott City, after a lingering illness. Frank Carlin, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. J. S. Baker, of Beverly, Mass. She also leaves four children, Mrs. Charles Rogers, of Ellicott City; Mrs. Carroll Kilbourne, of Catonsville, Md.; Miss Nina B. Fulton, of Catonsville, and Carlin Fulton, of Ellicott City. Wa ter, keeper of records.

The tribe has named a committee to cooperate with the fraternal order committee of the George Washington Birthday Association in plans for the parade on Washington's birthday.

A crusade against unlicensed dogs will be launched by the police department February 1, it was announced yesterday. The records show that so far licenses for only 600 dogs have been issued, while last year the total number issued was approximately 1,500. Since the area and population of the city was greatly increased January 1, when the annexation of new territory became effective, the authorities calculate that the number of dog licenses issued in 1930 should considerably exceed those of 1929.

The delinquents will be summoned into court after January 31 for their failure to obtain the required license, and the State law provides that they shall be fined for a misdemeanor. The cost of a license for a male dog is $1, and for a female $3.

The Relief Truck and Engine Company has submitted its annual report, showing 193 local alarms of fire and 8 general alarms during the year 1929. VIRGINIA ASSEMBLY HEARS BYRD REPORT

Retiring Governor Reviews His Administration as Session Convenes.

SALARY BILL IS FIRST UP

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8.—With Gov. Harry Flood Byrd rendering an accounting of his stewardship and showing great strides the State has taken during his term of office, the Virginia General Assembly got down to work today to continue 60 days in attacking the State's problems.

The first bill considered would provide for increasing the salary of the governor from $5,000 to $10,000, which to be effective must be passed before next Wednesday when Gov.-elect John Garland Pollard takes up the reins of office. It was reported out by the finance committee, with two adverse votes.

Alexandria, too, came in for early recognition when Senator Frank L. Ball introduced two bills that would clear up a technical difficulty in a $750,000 bond issue and allow immediate sale to save the city some $100 a day in excess interest charges. The bonds are in connection with the territory recently annexed from Arlington County. They will be rushed through tomorrow and be sent immediately to House, where Delegates Hugh Reid and J. Fred Birrell will seek to expedite them as emergency measures.

Income Tax Bill Offered.

Three other bills, among the first to go into the hopper, would provide income tax relief to some 45,000 citizens of the State by raising the exemption rate in the lower brackets to parallel those allowed by the Federal Government. Under the provisions more than 16,000 persons would be relieved entirely of income taxes.

One bill—all are sponsored by Senators Robert Gilliam, Petersburg, and Lloyd E. Warren, Portsmouth—would reduce the rate from 1½ per cent to 1 per cent on incomes below $3,000 and from 2 per cent to 1½ on incomes from $3,000 to $5,000. This, it is estimated, would reduce the tax burden by about $300,000.

The other bills, companions, would raise the exemption on unmarried persons from the present $1,000 to $1,500, and the exemption of heads of households with dependents to $3,500. By this plan the burden would be lightened to the extent of approximately $593,216, totally relieving more than 16,000 taxpayers of income taxes and materially reducing the levies on 45,000. Allowance has been made in the budget, which will be presented Friday, for a reduction of some $300,000.

Stubbs May Be Censured.

Senator R. H. Stubbs, of Saluda, Middlesex County, today launched an attack of Senator Saxton W. Holt, on whose motion the Middlesex senator last night was expelled from the Democratic caucus because of his affiliation in the past two campaigns—for President and for governor—with the anti-Smith and Republican factions.

Senators, while saying nothing for publication, were of the opinion that a resolution of censure, the first in such a long time that none can remember another, is likely to be presenetd against him for his action. The attack was made when the senator gained the floor on a point of personal privilege.

"In my judgment," he read from a prepared manuscript, "he would do better as an advance agent for a rumrunner than he could in the Senate of Virginia."

Lieut. Gov. West, banged loudly for order and told the Saluda senator to take his seat and cease dealing in personalities. But the parliamentary squabble rambeld on and he finally succeeded in reading all but one sentence of his paper.

Senator Stubbs represents the tonger element in the oyster war zone and has had many tiffs with Senator Holt, Senate floor leader, in previous legislation, for the Newport News senator looks on the oyster problem with the eyes of the planter. "Any one," read Senator Stubbs, "could easily see behind all this the smoke screen of the Commodore Maury." The Commodore Maury is the flagship of the oyster fleet and a sore spot with the tonger element in the oyster controversy.

The wrangle started Tuesday night and Senator Stubbs was expelled from the caucus. His seat was moved over to Republican corner today where he sits with two Republicans, members of the Senate. There is almost certain to be some action, and, according to parliamentarians, the resolution of censure is the only method available.

The House had a much less tempestuous day, merely going through the routine of electing the officers chosen at its caucus, and installing J. Sinclair Brown, of Roanoke, as speaker.

Byrd Reviews His Term.

Gov. Byrd's address was little more than a review of the administration, which, during four years, has seen Virginia take tremendous strides to the fore in the industrial world and embrace a new life throughout its length and breadth.

The governor did not make any recommendations, leaving the few he will make for his budget message, which will be presented Friday.

He did review, however, the revision of the constitution, the reorganization of the Government and the many advances it had made along many lines, increasing revenue and at the same time cutting taxes as the result of better administration of the tax laws.

Outstanding in his statistical review was that more than $70,000,000 had been spent in four years for the building of roads; that there is a surplus in the Treasury of $6,256,956 where he found a deficit four years ago; that Virginia's industrial output for 1930 will reach $1,000,000,000 in 1930 as compared with $367,000,000 in 1916; that fire insurance rate legislation had cut $833,000 from the premiums of Virginians.

Through every district there is an awakening, he said, as farmers, through segregation of taxes, have been relieved of taxes of more than $6,000,000 in three years.

New residents are being attracted, he said, through the repeal of taxes on foreign-owned corporations and the nonresident inheritance transfer taxes. Bank resources have grown phenomenally, he said, and education is receiving more support than ever before in history.

The State, owing only about $20,000,000, is more than solvent, he declared, the one-sixth ownership in the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad and cash on hand being more than enough to discharge this debt. The road system, he continued, has added more than 2,000 miles, bringing it to a total of more than 7,000 miles, and with the gasoline tax to thank, owes nothing on them.

The Shenandoah National Park is nearing reality, and another $1,000,000 not included in the surplus is available for the completion of that object.

What appeared to please the governor most is the vanishing sectionalism, and this, he declared, is nowhere better demonstrated than in the whole-hearted suppor being directed toward the upbuilding of trade through the port of Hampton Roads.

The governor said he was embarrassed sometimes because some sought to give him too much of the credit for accomplishments of the four years. "The people of Virginia," he said, "and the far-sighted cooperation of the General Assembly made possible this progress." He urged the assembly, in parting, to make as few laws as possible and repeal as many as possible, and commended to them his successor, Dr. John Garland Pollard.

Tonight the legislators were guests at a reception at the governor's mansion, and tomorrow they will get down to the tedious business of canvassing the gubernatorial vote.

Federal Bureau Romance Revealed in Divorce Suit

A romance between her husband and a woman who works with him in the General Accounting Office is charged in a suit for limited divorce brought yesterday in District Supreme Court by Muriel W. Stoup, of 1723 G street northwest, against Earl A. Stoup, who is said to reside at Clarendon, Va. Mrs. Stoup tells the court that she, too, is an employe of the General Accounting Office and that her husband's attentions to the other woman have caused her embarrassment and humiliation.

The Stoups, according to the wife's bill, were married on October 30, 1923, and on February 16 last separated, when the husband is alleged to have deserted her. The wife charges that at the time he left the husband told her that he "cared too much" for the other woman ever to live with her again.

The wife alleges that since December 1 last her husband has established his residence at Clarendon. This, she states, is in order that he can sue her for absolute divorce. The wife asks that the husband be restrained from prosecuting divorce action in Virginia or any other jurisdiction. She also asks for alimony. Attorney H. R. Grossman appears for the wife.

Man Who Aided Hoover Faces $40 Check Charge

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The man who loaned President Hoover his raincoat today faced charges of passing a worthless $40 check.

He is Donald Henderson, who supplied a coat for the President when the latter came into the Detroit City Hall dripping wet last October. Henderson told police he had lost his money in the stock market crash. In his pocket was a letter from the President, another from Henry Ford and a Christmas card from the President and Mrs. Hoover, all inspired by the raincoat incident, which occurred during Thomas Edison's Golden Jubilee of light.

MAN SLAYS WOMAN, HER MATE AND SELF

Accountant Uses Machine Gun to Kill Former Wife and Another.

YOUTH VIEWS TRAGEDY

Atlanta, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Doris Elizabeth Mason, 26, and her husband, George Mason, 31, were slain today by Mrs. Mason's divorced husband, John Ernest Barnett, 34, Chattanooga, Tenn., accountant, who then fired a bullet into his own head.

The Masons were killed while en route to work. Barnett drove his automobile alongside the Mason car, forcing it into the curb, then jumped to the walk and poured a fusillade into the other car with a home-made machine gun. He then pulled a pistol from a shoulder holster and fired a single shot into his own head. Both men were dead when ambulances arrived and Mrs. Mason died an hour later in a hospital.

In Barnett's car, police found a shotgun, ammunition and an automatic pistol, in addition to five notes, one of them a diary detailing the slayer's three-day vigil in the vicinity of his former wife's home, waiting for an opportunity to kill her.

Olin McCullough, an 11-year-old boy on his way to school, told police he was within a few feet of Barnett as he poured the deadly fusillades into the Mason car.

The boy said the Barnett car almost ran over him as the slayer brought it into the curb to stop the other machine.

"A man with a black overcoat and a machine gun in his hand opened one of the doors and stepped out almost on me," he said.

"He waved me back and ran toward the other car. He hurried up to the other car and poked his gun through the side window next to the man who was driving. He must have fired five or six times. I ran up the street, but was close enough to see him pull a pistol from a holster. * * * He put it in his mouth and —bang."

Barnett left notes addressed to the police, "the gentlemen of the press," "to whom it may concern," and two unaddressed, one of them relating incidents of his three-day vigil.

"My companion in death is my former wife (to me she is still my wife)" he wrote in one. "If any one except us two are killed it will be an unfortunate necessity. It is not premeditated."

He told of his marriage to Doris Elizabeth George in October, 1924. She obtained an uncontested divorce in April, 1928, and married Mason in July, 1929.

One note named as his nearest relative his father, "Albert H. Barowsky," of Atlanta. Mr. Barowsky explained that his son changed his name to Barnett when he entered the Army during the World War.

"PARROT" DISEASE BAFFLES EXPERTS

Three Annapolis Residents Catch Tropical Fever From Pet Bird.

U.S. DOCTORS CONSULTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8.—State and Federal medical authorities united today in making a study of the "parrot fever," a rare disease in the United States, with which three residents of Annapolis have been stricken, and the condition of whom is regarded as extremely serious. They are working in cooperation with Dr. J. Willis Martin, of Annapolis, attending physician.

Those ill from the disease are Mrs. Martin, 60, wife of Simon S. Martin, secretary Annapolis Chamber of Commerce, confined to her home near Annapolis; her daughter, Mrs. Edith M. Kalmey, 28, and son-in-law, Lee W. Kalmey, 32, patients at Emergency Hospital.

They are supposed to have contracted the disease from a parrot, purchased by Mr. Martin, at a Baltimore bird shop during the holiday season. The bird died Christmas day, and the three were stricken five days later. Mrs. Martin's illness is reported as less pronounced than that of Mr. and Mrs. Kalmey.

Public Health Doctor Called.

Dr. Charles Armstrong, of the hygiene laboratories of the United States Public Health Service at Washington, came to Annapolis this afternoon, held consultation with Dr. Martin and examined the patients. He declared the diagnosis made by Dr. Martin undoubtedly is correct. He said he had never examined a case of the malady, and that its development furnished the medical fraternity an excellent opportunity to make a study of it.
